Influenza Vaccine Still Available For High-Risk Persons

Following a statewide teleconference late Wednesday afternoon, the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene officials and health officers across Maryland elected to expand influenza vaccinations to certain individuals, according to an announcement from the Garrett County Health Department.

The expansion will allow persons aged 50-65, out of home caregivers, household contacts of persons in high-risk groups, and children aged 2-18 years who are household contacts of high-risk persons to receive the influenza vaccine. Quantities of vaccine are limited, but an additional limited supply of vaccine is anticipated to be available in two to three weeks.

The recommendation to expand the high-risk priority groups followed guidance provided by the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practice and Center for Disease Control. The effective date for expansion of eligibility was Jan. 3, if the vaccine supply was sufficient to meet the demand.

Persons who may qualify (see list below) and wish to schedule an appointment for a flu shot should call the local health department at 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111. Immunizations will be given by appointment only at the cost of $18 each.

Persons with Medicare cards should bring them to allow the health department to bill Medicare for the vaccine. The department is not responsible for billing private insurance companies or Medical Assistance.

Persons with the following conditions may be considered high-risk: Those age 50 or older; out-of-home caregivers and household contacts of persons in high-risk groups; those aged 2 months to 64 years with

A QUIET PLACE, FOR NOW – The playgrounds are quiet indeed these days, as the weather could hardly be worse for outdoor play. Rain, rain, and more rain, sometimes very cold, continues to fall on Garrett County, making residents long for a glimpse of sunshine or even a pretty snowfall (yes, some people like snow). The forecast has some promise, as the sun might actually burn through the clouds for a while on Friday, and maybe again on Sunday. It's a good time to stay in, play some board games, put together a jigsaw puzzle, or curl up with a good book. Might as well forget the swings for a while. Photo by John McEwen.

Officials Warn Of Sewage Hazards In Local Streams

Garrett County officials issued statements yesterday afternoon warning all citizens to avoid a temporary potential health hazard involving two local streams, the Little Youghiogheny River and the Savage River.

The public is advised to avoid contact with the Little Youghiogheny River below Mtn. Lake Park, and also avoid contact with the Savage River from approximately a quarter-mile upstream from Bloomington to that stream's confluence with the North Branch of the Potomac River.

Recent excessive rainfall amounts was cited as causing both alerts. The Little Youghiogheny was contaminated after diluted sewage

Public Utilities Gives Update On Various Projects

The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities staff this week updated the county commissioners on numerous public water and sewer projects.

The staff reported that they recently purchased computer software which allows them to better monitor the status of those projects. Each project was broken down according to the required tasks and time needed to complete them, such as developing a request for proposals, bids for design, obtaining easements, and construction. A clear, easy-to-read chart showing the timeline for each project was then developed.

The staff, county officials, and contractors can now more easily determine when and what deadlines need to be met, what milestones have already been reached, and when a project is estimated to be complete. A master schedule was also created that compares the timelines of all the projects.

"It's a very useful format to use," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg as he looked through the various charts. "It's a nice tool."

Engineer Jim Thomas, who worked with the software, stressed that the charts were only guidelines, but they were still useful to have, especially when dealing with contractors.

Engineer Jeff Gilbert also reported that his department is trying to get funding for the Deep Creek Wastewater Treatment Plant expansion project through USDA Rural Development and the Maryland Department of the Environment.

AN IMPORTANT LIFE SAVED – The Kristine and Mike Nash family of Great Falls, Va., visiting Deep Creek Lake for Christmas, certainly never expected the wild turn of events that took place involving their beloved pet, a 10-year-old golden retriever named Calvin, pictured with Ella Rey Nash, 2. Calvin wandered off on Christmas day, and, to the family's horror, fell through the lake's thin ice layer. A local individual (the family regrets they did not get his name) flagged down another resident, David Paolini, a surgeon at Garrett Memorial, and the two men hopped in a boat, broke through the ice, and pulled Calvin to safety. However, the older dog was in bad shape after his struggle, and was laboring to breathe. Dr. Paolini whisked him to Garrett Memorial, where he wrapped the dog in warmed blankets and started an IV. When he was stable, Calvin was transported the Pine View Veterinary Hospital, and spent the night there. The next morning, he was his old self, the family reported. "Words cannot express how thankful we are to these two men for so graciously saving Calvin's life," said Kristine. "Thank you for turning our worst Christmas into the best — what a miracle!"

Swanton Mother Shares Story Of Her Son's Tsunami Survival

Day Family Now Helping Thai People Rebuild

While Internet sites around the world continue to post messages from thousands of distraught families around the globe desperately seeking information about loved ones missing in the wake of the Indian Ocean tsunami disaster, one local family thankfully learned early on that their son was safe.

Temporarily residing on the Thailand coast, Justin Day, a former Adventure Sports student at Garrett College, made it through the tragedy unscathed – and since then has been hard at work helping the region rebuild. This is the story of Justin and his parents, who are mounting a campaign to assist the Thai survivors.

By Judy Day

December 26, 2004 will be one of those dates we will always remember. We will know exactly where we were when we heard the news of the tsunami. My husband Ray and I will never forget!

It was the morning after Christmas. Our telephone rang at 7:30 a.m. It was one of those calls that jolts you out of bed. My husband answered the phone. I heard him say "Hello" (…long pause…) "Is your bungalow all right?" At that moment I knew it was Justin.

It was a brief cell phone call to say there had been an earthquake and tsunami that morning and everyone in his traveling group were okay, but the beaches were destroyed and many boats and people were missing and he would call again when he could.

We immediately turned on the TV and found the first news stories of the devastating tsunami that hit the coast of Southeast Asia – exactly where our son was traveling. Thank goodness he was able to get through to us before we saw the news.

Justin, our youngest son, is a rock-climbing guide for Seneca Rocks Mountain Guides in West Virginia. Justin learned his skills from the Garrett College Adven-

Better Business Bureau Warns Of Tsunami Scams

The Better Business Bureau (BBB) of Greater Maryland has issued a statement of caution to consumers, advising prudence when donating to causes that are reported to be helping the victims of the tsunami catastrophe.

"The BBB encourages the public to contribute to helpful causes that will assist the families and victims of the tsunami disaster," said Nicholas Greaves, president of the Maryland BBB. "Donors should make certain, however, that the charity is properly registered with appropriate state government agencies, that it describes exactly what it will do to address the needs of the victims, and that it is willing to provide written information about its finances and programs."

Donors may visit the give.org web site on the Internet to access detailed, evaluative reports on many of the U.S. based relief organizations currently providing assistance to South Asia.

"We also encourage other disaster relief organizations providing tsunami assistance to enroll with the BBB Wise Giving Alliance at give.org so that the alliance can evaluate their efforts in relation to the 20 Standards of Charity Accountability," Greaves said.

In addition to checking with the BBB web site, donors should consider the following tips:

All persons should be wary of any charity that is inexperienced in carrying

A SAFE HAVEN that helped Justin Day escape the tsunami, the Swanton resident's Railay Beach bungalow was situated far enough from the water's edge that it survived unscathed. Justin and his fellow rock climbers had gathered at their favorite beachfront restaurant the night before the tragedy unfolded, and were "sleeping in" at their bungalows the next morning as the waves began to strike. The late-night revelry may have saved their lives, although the restaurant where they commonly ate their meals – including breakfast – was wiped off the beach.

Commissioners Issue Statement On Wind Energy

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners issued a public statement this week in response to requests for additional public informational hearings on the wind energy issue. See a display ad on page C-3 of this issue of The Republican.

The Maryland Public Service Commission has approved the construction of 67 wind turbines along 13 miles of Backbone Mountain by Clipper Windpower and is reviewing plans for another 24, slated for construction atop Roth Rock by Synergics Energy Services.

The commissioners note in their statement that they have already met a number of times with those opposed to the construction of the turbines.

County administrator Monty Pagenhardt said the commissioners, however, had received several letters from residents asking that another meeting be held on the issue.

Commissioner Dave Beard said the commissioners have talked to individuals and with members of the Friends of Backbone Mountain in their office, conferences, administrative sessions, and public sessions.

"We've heard their concerns numerous times and have not heard anything new in the last several sessions with these folks," he said.

The commissioners, therefore, state that the "appropriate" public forum for the issue should now be the MPSC and "the admin-

MADELYNN OLIVIA HANLINE was the first infant of 2005 born at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, arriving at 7:56 p.m. on New Year's Day. Her proud parents are Oakland residents Patrick and Heather Hanline, who also have two sons, Zachary and Brandon. Madelynn weighed 6 pounds, 13.7 ounces, and was 19½ inches long. She was delivered by Dr. Karl Schwalm. Photo courtesy of Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Environmental Groups Appear At Odds Over Issue Of Wind Power

The debate over proposals to place a number of 30-40 story tall wind turbines along the ridgeline of Backbone Mountain has caused fault lines among organizations that would normally seem aligned in their stance on the issue.

Leading environmental advocates in Maryland have called for the resignation of the state chapter's conservation committee chairman, Bowie resident Dan Boone, based on what they claim is his refusal to approve the release of radar and acoustic studies that Boone had asked for. Clipper Windpower, the wind energy producer that has already gained Maryland Public Service Commission approval for 67 turbines it has proposed along Backbone Mountain, funded the study. Boone and several associates who oppose the proposed Clipper facility selected the researchers and helped design the study parameters.

Although Boone claimed the studies were in Clipper's possession, Kevin Rackstraw, the company's eastern regional director, said that the studies were in the possession of the contractors who examined the numbers and patterns of bird movements above the Backbone ridgeline. Rackstraw said he would be interested in releasing the studies if Boone and his associates would agree to do so, as stipulated in a pre-study agreement. This morning Boone said he would likely agree to do so, and would speak to his associates about the matter.

The hold-up on the release of those bird studies helped cause the Chesapeake Climate Action Network (CCAN) – a Maryland-based organization dedicated to promoting the use of clean renewable energy in an effort to trim global warming – to call for Boone's resignation from his Sierra Club post. The group claims that the study data have been available since last spring, but says Boone has rebuffed requests to release that existing data while calling for additional studies.

"In all my years of environmental advocacy, I have never seen such a misuse of power and a total disregard for the Maryland environment and the welfare of Maryland citizens," said CCAN director Mike Tidwell. "Dan Boone is committing a huge disser-

Doctors, Hospitals Urging Governor Not To Veto Malpractice Legislation

The Save Our Doctors, Protect Our Patients Coalition has commended Gov. Robert Ehrlich and members of the General Assembly for their "hard work and dedication" during last week's special session to resolve the state's medical liability crisis. The coalition and other groups are now urging Ehrlich not to veto an emergency bill on the issue that was passed by the General Assembly.

"We acknowledge the efforts of legislators in both houses, and on both sides of the aisle, who supported stronger tort reform measures," said Dr. Karl Riggle, founder of Save Our Doctors.

After going through several revisions, the compromise bill, HB 2, passed in the Senate by a vote of 32 to 13 and 85 to 44 in the House.

Riggle acknowledged that his group was disappointed that a conference committee could not "sustain the fuller measure of tort reform approved by the House." But he said the final bill was a "step in the right direction for both doctors and patients."

"If comprehensive long-term tort reform measures are not enacted," Riggle added, "we believe that we will be dealing with a recurrence or worsening of this crisis in the near future."

The governor, however, has indicated that he will veto the bill because it includes, among other things, a 2 percent tax on health maintenance insurance premiums. Reportedly, several HMO companies have already said they would pass this increase on to their customers.

Ehrlich has also indicated that HB 2 is not tough enough on tort reform. He said doctors and hospitals would find it hard to get more reform if this bill is passed. Ehrlich noted that the tort reform issue only came around every five or 10 years, and if HB 2 passed, the issue may not be addressed again for many years.

The governor has until Monday, Jan. 10, to veto or allow the bill to become law without his signature. If he does veto the bill, legislators can still vote to override his decision when they reconvene in another special session the next day.

The regular session of the General Assembly begins the following day, Wednesday, Jan. 12. The governor, however, is expected to veto HB 2 and introduce his own bill, which calls for stronger legal reform.

Prior to last week's special legislative session, House Minority Leader George Edwards said any tort reform bill had to address short-term and long-term issues at the same time in order to be the most effective. He indicated this week that much of the original legal reform in HB 2 had been taken out, and what is left in the bill only addresses the short term.

He, Sen. John Hafer, and several other Republican legislators voted against HB 2.

The Save Our Doctors, Protect Our Patients Coalition and other groups, including MedChi (the state medical society) and the Maryland Hospital Association (MHA), however, are urging the governor not to

Two Injured In Three-Vehicle Crash Sunday

Two persons were injured in a three-vehicle pile up Sunday night in front of Unos Restaurant, according to the McHenry Barrack of the Maryland State Police. One person was charged in the 9:14 p.m. mishap.

Police said the crash occurred when Nicholas P. Bryant, 19, Sparrows Point, Md., attempted to turn from southbound Garrett Highway into the restaurant's parking lot. Bryant reportedly turned his 2004 Honda Accord into the path of an oncoming 2002 GMC Envoy, which struck the Honda sedan in the passenger side. After that initial impact, Bryant's car continued into the parking lot, where it struck a stationary vehicle.

Bryant and his passenger, Meghan B. Bryant, 19, also of Sparrows Point, were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The GMC's driver, Joan V. Janoski, 43, Cranberry, Pa., escaped injury.

Nicholas Bryant was charged with causing the accident by failing to yield right of way.

UNITED WAY THANKS FIRST UNITED – The United Way of Garrett County recently presented First United Bank & Trust with a plaque of gratitude for the company's continuous support. Since United Way's establishment in 1999, the bank and its staff have donated time and funding in a variety of ways. The local United Way works through 18 local nonprofit organizations to improve the quality of life for area citizens, a spokesperson said. United Way's primary means of funding these organizations are donations from businesses, payroll deductions, and private donations. First United gathers funds partially by employee matching. Many of the bank's employees donate money from their paychecks to United Way. The bank then matches these donations. In this way, First United and its employees donated almost $6,500 last year, the spokesperson reported. In addition to donating funds, some of First United's employees donate their time by volunteering for the organization. They have been involved in the Day of Caring and Sharing, and have participated in the Lunch Buddy program. First United also holds the annual Charity Golf Tournament, with all proceeds going to the United Way of Garrett County. The past year's event was the 16th annual, which brought in a record donation to the United Way of $17,791. Volunteer representatives from the United Way are available to any businesses or organization interested in learning more about the agency. For further information, persons may call the organization at 301-359-9697, or visit the web site at www.garrettunitedway.org. Contributions may be mailed to the United Way of Garrett County, P.O. Box 394, Oakland, MD 21550. Ohio Resident Arrested For Alleged Assault

An Ohio man was arrested after police responded to an E St. residence for a reported assault at noon on Saturday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Police arrested Jeffrey William Norris, Dublin, Ohio, after they were met by two victims of an alleged assault. Norris was charged with two counts of second-degree assault.

In other police news, deputies responded to a Swanton Road residence at 1:30 p.m. for a 911 hang up. Following further investigation, Todd Allen Tasker, 23, Swanton, was arrested. He was transported to the Garrett County Detention Center and charged with disturbing the peace and failure to obey a lawful order.

Drunk Driving Arrests Made By Deputies

Two drunk driving arrests were made in the early morning hours of Saturday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Kenneth Wosczyna, 30, Norwalk, Conn., was charged with drunk driving after his 2003 Volkswagen Jetta failed to stop at a stop sign on Deep Creek Drive near Sang Run Road at approximately 2:30 a.m., police said. After failing field sobriety tests, he was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI), driving while impaired by alcohol (DWI), and failure to stop at a stop sign.

Almost an hour later, Adam Cooper, 19, Oakland, was arrested for drunk driving after his 1996 Pontiac was observed crossing the center line on several occasions on Hutton Road. He was charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, violating a license restriction, and failure to drive right of center. Cooper was released after signing his citations.

In other police news, a traffic stop on Garrett Highway near the entrance to Wal-Mart in Oakland Thursday night led to the arrest of a Terra Alta, W.Va., man.

Michael Pingley, 26, was charged with DUI, DWI, driving while impaired by drugs (DWID), possession of marijuana, and possession of CDS paraphernalia.

Further investigation at the stop led to the arrest of a 16-year-old from Terra Alta being charged with civil citations for possession of alcohol and tobacco.

Charges are pending in a motor vehicle accident that occurred on George Washington Highway in the area of Callicoat Road Sunday at 6:45 p.m. According to police, a vehicle operated by Pennie Mae Hawk, 27, Bayard, W.Va., was traveling eastbound on George Washington Highway when her vehicle crossed onto the shoulder of the road, lost control, crossed the center line into the westbound lane, and struck a vehicle operated by Ashley Lambert of Callicoat Road.

Lambert's vehicle then struck a dirt bank and caught on fire. Both drivers were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Gorman firefighters assisted at the scene.

Donations Sought For Pillows For Patriots Campaign

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce's "Pillows for Patriots" campaign will be wrapping up next week, and is still less than half way to the goal of 110 pillows for soldiers in Iraq.

Some pillows have been donated by individuals, but most have come from businesses, said Rachel May, director of communications at the chamber. "There is so much suffering in the world now and we all want to help any way we can," she said. "But let's not forget our young men and women risking their lives in Iraq. Please join with us in this small effort to show our appreciation for their sacrifices."

With the "Pillows for Patriots" campaign, the chamber is contacting businesses and local individuals to help with a campaign to gather 110 new pillows for soldiers in Iraq who have none. Pillows should be delivered to the Chamber of Commerce office in McHenry before Jan. 14. Arrangements have been made for the shipment to Iraq.

Staff members of the chamber have stepped forward with donations of their own in an effort to support those who give their lives to protect us.

"We all know someone fighting for us," said Laura Reilly. "This is one way we all can make a difference."

Persons with questions may contact May at 301-387-4386 or rachel@garrettchamber.com.

2003 SHS Grad Assisting With Sri Lankan Relief

U.S. Air Force Airman Nathan Fitzwater, a 2003 graduate of Southern High School, arrived in Sri Lanka Sunday to provide fire protection and a variety of relief services in the wake of last month's tsunami disaster.

A member of the 36th Civil Engineering Squadron, Fitzwater is one of six firefighters who have been detailed from Andersen Air Force Base in Guam to operate the fire department at a major Sri Lankan airport serving as a landing site for transport planes loaded with relief supplies. On days off, Fitzwater, a certified water rescue technician, and his fellow airmen are performing search and rescue operations. He will be stationed in Sri Lanka for 45 to 60 days.

Fitzwater is the son of Ralph and Joyce Fitzwater, and the grandson of Patience Fitzwater, all of Oakland; and the great-grandson of Dessie Bell of Accident.

MLP Man Faces Second-Degree Assault Charge

A Mtn. Lake Park resident was arrested after police investigated an alleged domestic violence complaint on Deer Park Avenue in Mtn. Lake Park on Tuesday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Police reported that Robert Charles Baker, 73, grabbed his wife by the neck and threw her from a chair. At that point, he threw her inside a bathroom causing injury to her side, and reportedly barricaded her inside the bathroom, but she managed to escape and flee from the residence.

Baker was arrested and charged with second-degree assault and false imprisonment. He was released on his own recognizance after appearing before a District Court Commissioner.

ON A MILITARY MISSION OF MERCY, U.S. Air Force Airman and firefighter Nathan Fitzwater is in Sri Lanka helping victims of the Dec. 26 tsunami rebuild their lives. "This is a dream come true to be able to help others," the 2003 Southern graduate wrote family and friends in a recent e-mail. "I know that I am in all of your prayers, but please pray for those families in other countries that have lost their friends and loved ones...you all have supported me so much, and I hope only to be able to return the support to the unfortunate families in this time of need." See story.

WINNER ANNOUNCED!

Family and friends of Amanda Chonko, beneficiary of the proceeds raised by the Jingle, Jingle, Jingle Raffle tickets sold for a sleigh ride on the Deep Creek Express, announce the winner is Blair Glass of Oakland. We would like to thank everyone whose generous contributions over the holidays made the raffle a success with proceeds for Amanda's care.

It's been a year now
But only seems like yesterday
There are so many things
We didn't get to say

It doesn't seem that long ago
That we last said good-bye
But each time I think of you
It makes me want to cry

It's hard to look at pictures
And see your smiling face
They bring back all the memories
No one or time can replace

You are loved and missed by us all
This much I know
But no one can see why
You had to be the one to go

An angel came and called your name
From Heaven far above
A place had been made for you
And a void made in those you dearly love

You can't be far away
When we feel you so near
In our hearts is where you stay
And you will always be here

Stop Sticks To Be Added To Six Deputy Vehicles

Garrett County Sheriff Dick Sanders announced that through contributions from the Oakland-based Shillito-Hansford Nationwide Insurance Agency and grant funds received from the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention, six patrol vehicles will soon be equipped with Stop Sticks. As additional funding becomes available, Sanders said his goal is to equip the entire fleet of patrol vehicles.

Stop sticks are tire deflation devices which, when deployed into the roadway by a Sheriff's Office deputy and run over by the fleeing vehicle, result in a controlled deflation of the fleeing vehicle's tires. This greatly reduces the violator's ability to continue to flee.

The acquisition of this equipment will position the deputies to be more able to quickly and safely terminate vehicle pursuits, said Sanders.

Patrol personnel will be trained and a demonstration will be given regarding the use and deployment of the Stop Sticks on Monday, Jan. 17.

Bureau Warns

out relief efforts but is suddenly soliciting for tsunami assistance. Although well intentioned, such organizations may not have the ability to quickly deliver aid to those in need.

Persons should be wary of appeals that are long on emotion, but short on describing what the charity will do to address the needs of victims and their families, Greaves said. Persons should also investigate what the charity intends to do with any excess contributions remaining after it has fully funded the disaster relief activities mentioned in solicitations.

As with all other disaster relief situations, most relief charities prefer financial contributions rather than donated goods, Greaves said. This enables them to purchase needed items near the disaster relief sites for easier distribution. The collection and delivery of inappropriate donated items can also clog transportation channels and delay more vital items in getting through to disaster victims.

Persons who do contribute should not give cash, Greaves said. Donors should make a check or money order payable to the name of the charitable organization, not to an individual collecting the donation.

Those who decide to contribute online should find out more about the charity before making a contribution, and should be aware of "red flags."

"For example, some charities imitate the name and style of a well-known organization in order to confuse people," Greaves warned. "Also, when clicking on the link to 'donate,' look at the organization's URL in the browser window. Exercise caution if the domain name is hidden, is not familiar to you, or is not the same as the one stated in the text of the link."

Donors should watch out for excessive pressure for on-the-spot donations, and be wary of any request to send a "runner" to pick up a contribution.

Persons should not give credit card numbers or other personal information to a telephone solicitor or in response to an e-mail solicitation. It is always wise to ask the caller or sender to provide written information on the charity's programs and finances.

Charity organizers should never hesitate to provide written information that describes their programs and/or finances, such as the latest annual reports and financial statements. Even newly created organizations should have some basic information available, Greaves said.

Charity spokespersons who are reluctant to answer reasonable questions about their operations, finances, and programs should be considered unsafe. It is wise to ask how much of a gift will be used for the activity mentioned in the appeal and how much will go toward other programs and administrative and fundraising costs.

To help ensure the contribution is tax deductible, the donation should be made to a U.S. based charitable organization that is tax exempt under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Persons may go to IRS Publication 78 on www.irs.gov for a current list of all organizations eligible to receive contributions deductible as charitable gifts.

"It is also important to remember that if you are unable to contribute at this time, relief charities will welcome your donation next week and next month. Organizations will be addressing a variety of activities in the weeks to come, as the needs of relief victims change," Greaves advised.

Urging Governor

veto the House bill.

Spokespersons for MedChi and MHA said their groups would support the General Assembly's override if Ehrlich vetoed HB 2.

"While we agree with the governor and others that Maryland needs more comprehensive reform," they said, "it does offer important positive elements that we cannot walk away from, given the need to assure access to health care to citizens of Maryland. We believe this bill will keep physicians on the job."

Riggle said the legislation was a "good first step toward meaningful, long-term liability reform."

"In the days and weeks ahead, difficult political decisions must be made," he said. "The consequences of a veto are stark. The repercussions of a veto override effort could damage future attempts at conciliation on broader reforms."

Riggle added that HB 2 should become law because it temporarily preserves access to medical care.

His said his coalition supported a number of specific provisions in the bill including:

•Mandating board certification for expert witnesses in the same specialty;

•Eliminating double recovery in wrongful death cases for non-economic damages;

•Establishing a court-appointed neutral economic evaluator to assess future medical expenses and wage loss;

•Calculating past medical expenses based on the actual amount paid, not billed;

•Strengthening Expert's Certificate of Merit to require greater specificity as to the standard of care breached; and •Making inadmissible a statement of apology, among other provisions.

"We look forward to working with the governor and Legislature in the general session to add more meaningful long-term solutions to resolve the tort crisis that still exists," Riggle added.

He said those solutions included:

•More realistic calculation of future economic damages;

•Protecting access to patient recovery of funds through structured settlements and annuitization;

•Strengthening protection for physician apologies and benevolent gestures;

•Ending double recovery of damages through collateral sources;

•Ensuring greater award share for plaintiffs through guaranteed fair victim recovery;

•Expanding good Samaritan protection for emergency room and volunteer care; and •Guaranteeing "speedy trial rights" by establishing a health care court to fairly and accurately evaluate medical liability issues.

Riggle said the coalition is conducting a comprehensive review of the 79-page House bill and would comment later on "other beneficial reforms to be pursued in the general session."

Another Reason to Give...

'Tis the season for giving for at least two reasons: because of the holidays and because of Internal Revenue Service regulations that allow one to take deductions on his taxes for making donations to legitimate, non-profit organizations. This year, however, we have another good reason to give: to help so many of our fellow human beings half a world away who have been ravaged by the disastrous earthquake/tsunami. And to date, the giving by Americans is utterly overwhelming.

Online donations are being received at an average rate of $100,000 per hour. Scores of organizations, from service groups to Brownie troops, from churches to elementary schools, are enthusiastically raising funds for the purpose. Children are running lemonade and hot chocolate stands; one little boy even had his parents return all of his Christmas gifts so he could donate the money spent on them to the tsunami victims. Superstar celebrities — actors and athletes alike — are making enormous contributions, and musicians are planning major fundraising concerts. Two former presidential rivals (George H.W. Bush and Bill Clinton) are working together as co-chairs of the national donation effort.

Besides the monetary assistance, our military personnel are working around the clock, many of them refusing to take any leave hours off, to get vital supplies to the victims. Thousands of U.S. volunteers, including medical personnel, are either on the scene now or will be soon to do whatever they can to aid these people whom they have never met.

When it is all said and done, this will likely wind up as our greatest response to a major human tragedy in the history of our nation, for which each of us should be proud. Even with the various "sins" of our nation since its founding, our record of coming to the aid of nations and peoples throughout history is unmatched.

There are many excellent organizations and agencies to which persons can make a wise donation. The three that top the list in terms of the percentage of money that actually reaches the victims are the Salvation Army, which ranks #1 with 90%, plus Save the Children and UNICEF. Persons who have yet to make a donation and want to do so may want to consider one of these three, or go to web sites such as give.org to ascertain legitimacy of the various organizations.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

In recent years I have occasionally had the thought that too rapid development in the Deep Creek Lake area may well detract from the very reason that people come here. The houses on the ridgelines are particularly disturbing. After all, it is the natural beauty and the rural feeling that attract people (me, anyway) to Garrett County and the lake. This esthetic element is one of the area's greatest assets, second only to the friendliness of the people. But this isn't a letter about development around the lake, because I know that it's the natural course of progress, whether I like it or not.

But it is with this perspective that I have been reading with interest about the "wind farms" that some would like to bring to Garrett County. I don't understand why the residents of the county as a whole would even consider allowing these structures to be erected on our mountaintops. I don't recall seeing any wind turbines on the peaks surrounding Lake Tahoe. Nor do I recall seeing them as I drove along the coast of Maine a couple of years back. I can attest that the coast of Maine is a windy place. These are places of great natural beauty as well. Why should we tolerate them here in Garrett County?

Property values would suffer, I imagine, but it's the vistas and the feel of the place that would be irreplaceably lost if they were to come.

Sincerely,
David Dusenbery

To the Editor:

Gary Skulnik and Mike Tidwell are tin men shilling for the wind industry. Their respective "organizations"–Clean Energy Partnership and Chesapeake Climate Action Network–function in the same stalking horse way as the Heritage Foundation does to promote corporate causes. They make repetitive unsupportable claims using seductive Orwellian rhetoric; trusting that a diffident press and an often indifferent public will not challenge them. Their pretentious "environmentalism" fosters the illusion the wind industry will solve many of our environmental problems, in effect masking the real nature of the commodity: tax sheltering schemes for a few investors at the expense of average taxpayers and rate payers. The fact is, for all their ballyhoo, wind energy here in the East will not put a dent in the problems of air pollution and global warming.

Over the last week, Tidwell and Skulnik, colluding with wind developers, have resorted to a disinformation diversion worthy of Karl Rove in order to "take out" one of the most effective opponents of irresponsible windplant operations, Dan Boone, who presently chairs the Conservation Committee of the Sierra Club's Maryland chapter and who remains "one of Maryland's finest naturalists," according to The Baltimore Sun.

Tidwell/Skulnik charge that Boone (my brother) is at fault for not releasing studies that might demonstrate how safe wind technology is for migratory wildlife. Since Boone was responsible for getting those studies done in the first place, the charge is more than ironic. But it is also inaccurate–and misleading. The companies involved, Clipper Windpower and US Windforce, both insisted on the non-disclosure conditions imposed on those studies and now a number of people aside from Boone must agree to their release.

Since I am one of those people, here are my conditions. Both wind corporations must admit in writing that it, not Dan Boone or any others, insisted on "secret" studies; the studies must be released in their entirety, including all data, without restriction; and these reports must not be used to excuse the need for additional research to map the complex mosaic involved in wildlife migration over the Allegheny ridgetops. I'm confident that this investigation will demonstrate, as similar recent research already has, that massive windplants constructed atop mountains in areas well known for wildlife migration pose an unacceptable risk to birds and bats. At the same time, this important issue should not distract from other threats posed by this industry–devaluation of property, destruction of heritage views, and noise/light disturbances to nearby residents.

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to Governor Robert Ehrlich requested that it appear in this column.

Dear Sir:

Without a doubt, the upcoming Maryland legislative session is going to grapple once again with the issue of slot machines. The prime consideration is where to locate them, and what percentage of the money goes to the victor of the spoils. The leading contender for the winner's circle at this time appears to be the horse racing owners. The justification for this seems to be that the racing business in Maryland is in failing condition and needs a boost in revenue for it to survive.

But I wonder why our citizens should bequeath the golden egg to them. It is in no way our obligation to help prop up a failing industry, and the percentage take that the avaricious owners want I find to be obscene. The wife and son of Peter Angelos (owner of the Baltimore Orioles) recently purchased the ailing Rosecroft Raceway in Prince George's County. Is it not obvious that the motive is windfall profits?

If the slots are to be legalized, who then should get them? In my mind if we are going to allow gambling to generate many millions of dollars, then it should be fully for the benefit of communities and citizens of our state, not just some percentage that is negotiated with lobbyists. My earnest proposal would be for the NAACP of Maryland, or similar organization, to be the recipient of the rights for slots and casino games. An analogous situation already exists and has been accepted in federal legislation: Indian tribes have been given rights for establishing casinos.

Correct me if I am in error, but I feel certain that this was done to attempt in some way to atone for historical abuses and discrimination, so why not provide some type of benefit to the African-Americans of our state whose people in the past were subjected to the yoke of slavery and decades of blatant discrimination? Legislation can be crafted to be sure that the monetary benefits of the gambling industry would go to programs that are directed to education, job training, and other worthy projects.

I cannot help but believe that this proposal or something similar would be infinitely more beneficial to our state than lining the pockets of those who are politically connected.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey Davis

A ROYAL CITY

My ancient geography is not good enough to say in which of the three parts of Gaul the city of 21st twenty-first century Paris. Family came to see me: my mother, nephew Tanner and niece Grace. Part of my role as a good host was to devise interesting outings. A trip to Senlis was one of those.

Today the rail traveler arrives at Chantilly, and rides the bus the final several miles to what not long ago was the Senlis rail station. Chantilly is famous in its own right for one of the great French chateaux, for whipped cream (called Chantilly cream in France), as one of the centers of the French thoroughbred world and – thanks to Elvis Presley – for its lace.

We enjoyed the gentle rolling hills of the country between the two towns. There were farms, solitary houses, stately homes, villages and edges of the great forest of Chantilly. Since the station is on the far side of Senlis, one experiences what is evident on the city map: Senlis is built on a circular plan. Roundness begins the Senlis loveliness.

The city's archeological museum, located in what was once the bishop's palace, displays evidence that civilized people lived there before the Christian era. The coming of the Romans in 8 B.C. transformed the lives of the tribe Sulbanectes, a name which – with a little imagination- one can see as the etymological predecessor of the city's present name.

The Sulbanectes surrendered some freedom, and gained some peace and prosperity. The new cultural synthesis lasted for two centuries with the borders of the Empire well to the north. Meanwhile, the Germanic tribes outside the Empire increased in population and in ethnic restlessness.

Whether the barbarians wanted to attack the Empire or merely to join it is not clear. Whatever their goal, they challenged the imperial boundaries. Across the northern frontier the Roman peace had to be secured with fortifications. The circular, 15-foot-wide stone wall built by the Romans during the third century established the roundness of Senlis which, 1,800 years later, endures today.

When the legions withdrew from the area, the Sulbanectes, now well Romanized, were on their own. The wall served them well. After a period of invasions, life not only continued but flourished. Kings and emperors resided there because they could hunt to their hearts' content in local forests.

When the last of the Carolingian kings died in a hunting accident, the archbishop of Rheims, a city 100 miles to the east, called a meeting in the Senlis castle. Hugh Capet, Duke of France – then just a sizable district – was elected king. In that election the nation of France was born.

Senlis thrived in the wake of the Capetian dynasty. The city expanded to the point that another wall, of far greater circumference, was built. That established the outer limit of the modern city. It also marked the high tide of Senlis' prominence and prosperity. That Paris, and not Senlis, became the capital of France made it possible for Senlis to retain numerous, historically delightful characteristics.

Senlis is as charming and as pretty a town as one could want to meet.

The cobblestone streets, the scenic ruins, the sweet Gothic cathedral, the restored historic buildings all provide a fine background for the kind and helpful people of Senlis.

We were looking for a place to take our midday repast. Our criteria were simple: French food, not expensive. The obvious restaurants failed to meet one criterion or the other. I asked a man about to enter a boulangerie for his daily bread if he could recommend a restaurant. He sent us to the Chalet Silvie near the former train station.

This particular restaurant has both a formal dining room and a brasserie. "Go to the brasserie," he counselled us. "The food is just as good and at a much better price." We followed his advice, to our considerable pleasure.

After we had been seated at the table for a few minutes, our counsellor appeared by my side. "Is this satisfactory?" he wanted to know. No, he wasn't the owner, only an extraordinarily kind and considerate gentleman who wanted to make sure he had not led us astray.

After our meal, we meandered through the same streets which had been filled by an open-air market that morning. Now the storefronts themselves were evident, each boasting splendid goods from near and far, necessities and luxuries as cheek and jowl as the stewing meat and the filet mignon in the butchers' shops.

Aboard the bus, my mother and I cast wistful glances upon the Romanesque and Gothic spires rising well above the third century city wall.

Grace's eyes were turned in the other direction, toward the park which now rings the city's outer perimeter. "Hey!" she cried, "There's the man who told us where to eat. He's walking his dog."

Thus ended our visit to royal Senlis, beauty and kindness intertwined.

Stalking Awareness Month

by Victoria Thomas
Crisis/Legal Advocate
The Dove Center

With stalking incidents becoming more prevalent and increasing headlines in newspapers across the country reporting them, January has been proclaimed National Stalking Awareness Month. Although the definition of stalking varies from one jurisdiction to another, stalking is a crime and all 50 states have some form of stalking legislature. The National Stalking Resource Center defines stalking as "a course of conduct directed at a specific person that would cause a reasonable person to feel fear."

Statistics show that annually in the United States 1.4 million people are the victims of stalking, with the average duration period of stalking being 1.8 years. One in 12 women and one in 45 men will be stalked during their lifetime. Many stalking victims know their stalkers. Often stalking takes place in the context of a relationship whether it is during the relationship or after it has ended. The impact that has on victims' lives can be enormous. Victims may become depressed, develop anxiety disorders and sleeping problems, and/or lose time from work. Often victims take extreme measures such as relocating to get away from the stalker.

If you or someone you know is being stalked, help is available. For more information about stalking or the stalking support group, please contact the Dove Center at (301) 334-6255 or (301) 334-9000.

To the Editor:

Opponents claim that wind turbines will not have a significant impact on the mining and burning of coal, and so we should ignore their environmental benefits. How can that be? The two proposed Backbone Mountain wind farms could generate 140 million watts. But what does that mean in everyday terms?

Watts measure electrical power. If you have an old-style power meter on your home, the more watts you use, the faster the wheel turns. The power that you use could come from a coal burning power station, or maybe from a wind turbine.

Since the wind doesn't blow all the time, a pessimist will claim that the turbines only average one third of their full capacity, which for us is 47 million watts. Okay, let's use that number.

A home's average power usage is about 3,500 watts. So by dividing the two numbers, we find that the two wind farms could provide all the power for over 13,000 homes. But wait, that's more than all the full-time residences in Garrett County. Wow! So, in reality, just two wind farms would keep the lights, TVs, refrigerators, heat, and water running for every man, woman, and child living in the county. Don't tell me that's not a significant impact.

No Garrett County resident would ever require coal miners to die of black-lung, or be trapped in collapsing tunnels. No one's home would ever require forests to be strip-mined, or fish to be killed by acid mine runoff. Most of all, no one's home would ever require that we ask our neighbors to breath the pollution, eat the contaminated fish, or die of cancer caused by burning coal. How cool is that?

In reality, the power doesn't just stay in Garrett County; it gets spread throughout the nation. But the impact is exactly the same, and we've made it happen.

Everyone says that Garrett County needs an industry that will help retain the next generation, something other than earning $10 an hour to build million-dollar homes. Well, what about wind turbines? Why not educate the kids in school about this local resource. Inspire kids on farms to build their own wind generators. Start wind clubs. Teach wind technology at Garrett College. Start a cottage industry that could one day rival the best in the world.

Could it happen here? Sure it could; if we let it!

Phil Malone
McHenry

Four Christians are facing up to 47 years in prison and $90,000 in fines for preaching the Gospel on a public sidewalk, a right fully protected by the First Amendment.

On October 10, 2004, the four Christians were arrested in Philadelphia. They are part of Repent America. Along with founder Michael Marcavage, members of Repent America–with police approval–were preaching near Outfest, a homosexual event, handing out Gospel literature and carrying banners with Biblical messages.

When they tried to speak, they were surrounded by a group of radical homosexual activists dubbed the Pink Angels. A videotape of the incident shows the Pink Angels in-

TOSSED LIKE TOYS about the Railay Beach waves were all manner of boats, vehicles, and buildings. A fishing boat that came to rest against a tree was not an uncommon sight, as shown above. Such craft are key to the meager (by our standards) livelihoods many Thai people make from the sea, and a group of Thais and western rock-climbers are pictured below helping a local fisherman place the motor back on his craft. He is one of the lucky ones, as many local natives lost their lives, along with a number of tourists. Garrett County resident Justin Day and his parents, Judy and Ray, are accepting donations that will go directly to the relief efforts specific to helping the Thais of Railay Beach. This year Justin is traveling with Tom Cecil, owner of Seneca Rocks Mountain Guides, who is also a rock-climbing instructor at Garrett College; John Bray, another adventure sports student; and Brian Cornwall, a climbing guide for Nelson Rocks, W.Va. They left for Thailand on October 26, and plan to return February 15.

We have spoken with Justin several times since the tsunami. He told us he was in his bungalow away from the beach area when a blast like a bomb went off that shook his bungalow, then a roar like a 747 coming at them hit the beaches.

All but one of his traveling companions were in their bungalows and safe. However, a college friend from WVU who was visiting during her winter break was kayaking off Railay Beach when the waves started breaking. She was able to kayak over the waves but was sucked out to sea. A long-boat was able to rescue her. I'm sure she was shaken but is safe. Her story will be an interesting one to hear when she returns.

In his past visits to Railay Beach, Justin has befriended a native named Wit Samon, who, along with his business partner Kong, operates the local Sawatdee Beach Bar and Restaurant. This is where the boys eat most of their meals. They see these people every day. Justin had his wallet stolen while in Bangkok on his way to Railay this year and Mr. Samon offered him assistance. He was kind enough to have Justin's papers mailed directly to his home address to be sure they arrived safely.

The Sawatdee Bar and Restaurant is completely gone – there is nothing left. – Justin's friend's business and home are gone.

As Justin's mother, I would like for him to come home. But he and his fellow "climbers" have rallied around their friends in Railay and Tonsai beaches to help them clean up and reconstruct buildings so they can rebuild their businesses and their lives.

I have an opportunity to send money directly to Railay Beach. My son and his climbing friends have the ability to help rebuild these businesses and homes if they can find enough money. For every $100 in American money sent, it is worth $3,903 in Thai money. I know this is just a very tiny part of a huge devastated area, but if you would like to know exactly who your donations are helping, these are needy people.

If you would like to donate to the "Railay Beach Climbers' Rebuilding Fund," please make checks payable to: Railay Beach Climbers' Rebuilding Fund, c/o Judy Day, 65 Driftwood Drive, Swanton, MD 21561. I may also be contacted via e-mail at Railaybeachclimbersfund@verizon.net.

Thank you.

Additional tsunami details and photographs from Railay Beach are posted on the web site www.Railay.com, which also links to chat rooms where other families have posted requests for information on loved ones missing from Railay Beach.

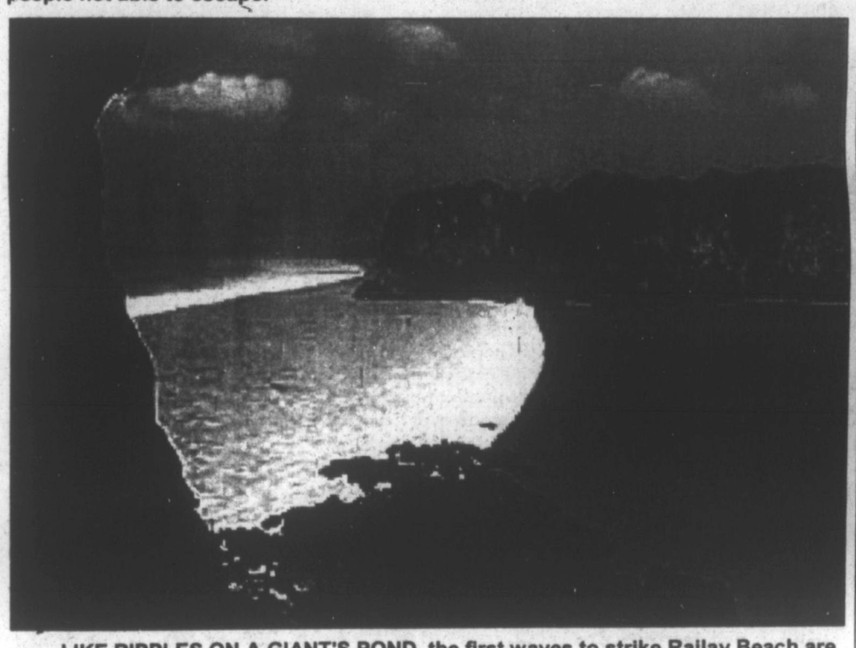
THE FIRST WAVE TAKES AIM on Thailand's Railay Beach in the above three-photo sequence originally published by the AFP International News Service. On the morning of Dec. 26 the bay mysteriously receded hundreds of feet from where it usually laps the sand (visible in the topmost photo where the sand's shading changes from light to dark), and curious tourists explored the exposed ocean floor before the first wave barreled in – and that same photo shows the very moment some of them realized something was terribly wrong. The second picture, snapped scant seconds later, shows some beachcombers apparently dumfounded by the frothy wall's approach, while one woman (at center of the photo) races toward it, perhaps to warn a family member playing farther out offshore. The third photo shows the wave's fury as it crashes down on fishing boats and pleasure craft – and people not able to escape.



LIKE RIPPLES ON A GIANT'S POND, the first waves to strike Railay Beach are seen from the vantage point of Scandavian rock climber Bjørnar Tomassen two or three pitches up the sheer Thaiwand Wall, a mecca for climbers the world over that juts 1,000 feet straight up from the water's edge. The tsunami struck different parts of southeast Asia in different ways depending on local undersea terrain and land geography. This particular section of the Thai coast was "fortunate" in that it was struck by a series of 8-10 waves a little more than 10 feet tall at their highest crest, rather than fewer waves that reached heights of 30-40 feet, as hit other regions.

Adorable Adoptables

No photos were available for this week's Adorable Adoptables at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. But a spokesperson for the Garrett County Humane Society said there were many kittens and cats and some dogs there needing homes.

She noted, however, that the shelter's population changes daily, so persons should call for information on the availability of pets.

"There are still a lot of stray dogs coming into the shelter without ID tags," she added. "If you lose a dog, please contact the shelter." She urges residents to have ID tags on their dogs.

For more information about adopting an animal or for financial assistance in getting pets spayed or neutered, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553.

Animal Shelter Report

The Garrett County Office of Emergency Management reported that the following animals were recently picked up as strays and are now housed at the Garrett County Animal Shelter:

An adult black and white spaniel, female, found along Cranesville Road; and an adult brown and black tabby cat, male, found in the Oakland area.

These animals must be claimed within 72 hours. For more information, persons may call the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553.

OFFICIALS SIGN TOBACCO CONTROL RESOLUTION – The Garrett County commissioners on Tuesday signed a resolution in support of a local public law to eliminate self-service tobacco displays in order to reduce youth access to tobacco products. The resolution noted that the existence of self-service displays increases youth access to tobacco products by making it easier for minors to shoplift the products and by increasing the likelihood that a minor will attempt to purchase tobacco and that a sales clerk will complete a sale to a minor. Pictured, left to right, in the front row are Commissioners Ernie Gregg, Fred Holliday, and Dave Beard. In the back row are Rev. Don Matthews; Bob Stephens, Health Department; Southern High School STEAM (Student Tobacco Elimination Among Minors) members Tabitha Ringer, Emma Ringer, Eugenia Lee, Sadie Liller (Health Department), Lacie Glotfelty, Chaz Lantz, James Naylor, Stephanie Lee, and Katie Mark; Linda Lewis, Health Department; JoAnn Fletcher, Western Maryland Area Health Education Center and the University of Maryland Statewide Health Network; and Health Department staff Kendra Todd, Rodney Glotfelty, and Mike Wilburn.

Chamber's First 2005 After Hours Event Slated

The Fireside Deli and Wine Shop will host the first Business After Hours of 2005 on Tuesday, Jan. 18, from 6 to 8 p.m. The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce promotes these events to encourage area business people to visit different businesses. It also offers a chance to take advantage of the opportunity to exchange ideas with fellow chamber members and guests in a social setting.

Fireside Deli & Wine Shop at 2205 Glendale Road, Swanton, is a unique store featuring meats, cheeses, and wines from all over the world, said a chamber spokesperson. The building was recently renovated to provide a "warm and cozy" atmosphere.

The Feb. 8 business After Hours will be held at Railey Mtn. Lake Vacations at 22491 Garrett Highway, McHenry.

To make reservations or ask questions, persons may call Lynne Crehan at 301-387-4386 or e-mail lynne@garrettchamber.com.

THE NEWEST MEMBER of the Oakland Rotary Club is Alicia Helbig, left, who was installed into the organization recently by her sponsor, Erica Mowbray, also pictured. Helbig is the assistant director for administration at the Garrett County Department of Social Services. She resides near Oakland with her husband Jeff and their three children. The Oakland Rotary Club meets on Thursdays at 12:15 p.m. For more information about the service organization, persons may contact Joan Johnson, secretary, at 301-533-1031.

GRANTSVILLE NEWS

GOODWILL RETIREMENT VILLAGE

The next auxiliary meeting for the Goodwill Retirement Village will be held on Jan. 11 at 2 p.m. in the conference room of the Goodwill Mennonite Home. The auxiliary is in need of new members to help with fundraising projects.

An exercise class is held each Tuesday and Thursday at 3 p.m. in the activity room.

A new leader is needed for the Family Council at the home. The Family Council is an organization in which residents' family members work together to provide support for each other, share experiences, and seek solutions to their common problems.

Because of regulatory changes, the nursing homes can no longer lead the Family Council for an extended period of time. Any family member wishing to become involved in the leadership of the council may contact Julia Tice of the Department of Social Services at 301-895-5194.

SENIOR CENTER

Alan Shaprio and Vicki Baker from the Grantsville office of First United Bank & Trust will be at the center on Tuesday, Jan. 11, at 11 a.m. to discuss checking accounts.

Dulcimer lessons and a "jammin'" session will be given Wednesday, Jan. 12, at 10:30 a.m.

Bingo will be held Tuesday and Thursday, Jan. 11 and 13, at 1 p.m. each day.

New Arrivals

A daughter, Madelynn Olivia Hanline, was born on Jan. 1 to Patrick and Heather Hanline, Oakland, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Military Family Support Group Meeting Slated

The local military family support group meeting will be held Wednesday, Jan. 12, from 6 until 8 p.m. at the Oak Park Church of the Brethren, located across from Southern High School. Persons attending are asked to go through the church's main entrance.

Dinner and babysitting will be provided.

This group has been formed to help give emotional support to families who have loved ones in the military serving away from home. Anyone who has a family member serving away from home is welcome.

"It is not limited to those families whose loved ones are serving out of the country," noted a group spokesperson.

The group is not affiliated with the U.S. military.

For more information, persons may call Tim Watson at 301-334-3452 or 301-334-6231 or Cathy Menker at 301-334-5906.

AURORA/EGLON

SCHOOL NEWS

A new principal, Mr. Strahin, came this year to Aurora School. There have been some new activities sponsored by Title I funds. After-school classes include Legos and robotics, Spanish, drama, and under the sponsorship of Union District Ministerial Association, Pioneer Club. Title I funds also enabled all students a trip to Garrett 8 Cinemas to see "The Polar Express" and earlier in the fall, a Pittsburgh trip to see Carnegie Science Center and experience a river ride on the Gateway Clipper.

The Aurora School again had a float for Buckwheat and Autumn Glory festivals, and with a theme, "Volunteers Rise to Make Aurora School Shine," it placed first at Kingwood and second in the Oakland parade.

Mrs. Carlson, the art teacher, is planning an art show for May 13.

The music students in chorus and band presented a concert, Dec. 16, under Mrs. Shannon's direction. She is also planning a spring musical.

The Pioneer Club participants recently received their awards. Forty-nine students are working with 12 teachers and helpers. Students with the most awards named in their age category are: K-Scooters–Sydnee Vandevender; 1-2 Voyagers–Ashleigh Cummings, Alexis Schoolcraft, Lena Mersing, and Meghan Frazee; 3-4 Pathfinders–Melanie Amos; and 5-6 Trailblazers–Daniel O'Connor. The group receiving the most awards, the Pathfinders, had cumulative 444 stickers. Instructing that group is Linda Snyder, with Rev. Michael Ludle assisting.

MOUNTAINEER 4-H

Members of the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club met Dec. 28 for a short business meeting, pizza lunch, and a trip to Cortland Acres Nursing Home.

Debbie Collins and Caitlin Norwish presented devotions on a Christmas theme using "A Recipe for a Happy Holiday" and "Legend of the Christmas Holly."

The club collected pop tabs for PHS Honor Society, an ongoing project which benefits Ronald McDonald House. The club also collects Campbell product labels, and General Mills Box Tops for Education to give to the local schools.

Preston County Poster and Photo Contest and the WVU 4-H Basketball Day for 4-H clubs were discussed. Members voted to give donations to the Preston County 4-H Foundation and to the I.F.Y.E. (International Foreign Youth Exchange) program. A game of scrambled project subjects was led by Nathan Cussins.

After a lunch of pizza and other goodies, members and parents went to Cortland Acres, where they presented patients with a Christmas program and birthday party. Christmas tree ornaments made by Caitlin Norwish were given to all patients. These favors were to have been made by club members at the regularly scheduled meeting on Dec. 11, which had been recalled because of the bad weather.

The next scheduled meeting will be Jan. 10, with an emphasis on completing project talks and demonstrations.

CALENDARS DELAYED

The Aurora Community Birthday Calendars will be late this year. They have not yet been received from the printers. The Youth League will deliver the calendars when they arrive.

BIRTHS NOTED

The Garrett County Memorial Hospital New Year's baby happens to be a great-granddaughter of local residents.

Patrick and Heather Hanline of Oakland announce the birth of their third child, Madelynn Olivia, on New Year's Day, Jan. 1, 2005. She weighed 6 pounds, 13 ounces, and has gone home to be with her brothers, Zachary and Brandon.

Paternal grandparents are Norman and Janice Hanline of Oakland. Sherri Hesson of Florida and Robert Hesson, Oakland, are maternal grandparents. Lorain and Mary Jane Hanline of Aurora and the late Gay and Elizabeth Loughrie are paternal great-grandparents.

A son, Hayden William, was born Dec. 27, 2004, to Brian and Suzanne Sapp of Mt. Vernon, Ind. Their second child and son, he weighed 8 pounds, 2 ounces, and joins brother Owen at home.

Maternal grandparents are Carl and Nancy Winters of Manassas, Va. Paternal grandparents are Jim and Patsy Sapp of Evergreen, Colo. Glenn and Ilene Pint of Old Fields, and Claude and Jean Winters of Eglon, are the maternal great-grandparents.

HARSH-YODER COUPLE WEDS

In a holiday ceremony on Dec. 26, 2004, Maria Harsh, daughter of David and Rita Sue Harsh of Amboy, and Derrick Yoder, son of Leon and Ellen Yoder of Mercersburg, Pa., were united in marriage at the Aurora United Methodist Church.

The couple will reside in Waynesboro, Va., where the bride will complete her studies in medical technology at Augusta Medical Center and graduate in May from Bridgewater College in Bridgewater, Va. The groom has a degree in biochemistry from Grove City College in Grove City, Pa., and is seeking admission to a school of pharmacy.

DEATH NOTED

Phyllis Arnett Stemple of Wise, Va., formerly of Red House and Oakland, died January 1, 2005, at the home of her daughter, Dr. Marie Stemple.

She was a daughter of the late Dwight and Marie (Strawser) Arnett, and a graduate of Aurora High School. She was also preceded in death by her husband, Ralph Stemple.

Visitation was held at St. John's Lutheran Church, Red House, on Jan. 3, and services were there on Jan. 4.

PERSONAL MENTION

The family of Paul Gnegy returned last week to their homes, Ralph and Thelma Farrar to Brownsville Junction, Maine; Everett and Peggy Gnegy to Arizona winter home; Kathryn Beckly to Plainville, Kan.; and Irma and Gene Whitcomb to Greenville, S. C. They wish to express their thanks to all of those who helped with Erma's care, especially Hospice of Preston County.

Christmas dinner guests of Louella Fike were her sons, Norman Fike and Gary Fike with Norman's son, Kevin, being an afternoon visitor. On Dec. 27, Norman and Louella were evening dinner guests with Gary and Cleda Fike at Terra Alta. The Fikes were surprised by the arrival of their son, Brian Fike, and his friend, Brandi Cole, of Warrensburg, Mo., who had also arrived for a visit.

Crystal Sypolt and her family hosted a Jan. 1 dinner for 32 family guests. On Dec. 29, Cleda and Gary Fike, Brian Fike and Brandi Cole, were guests of Louella and Norman Fike at their Aurora home.

Melvin R. and Melissa Frantz and their three daughters left for his base in Japan last Wednesday following a visit of about a month with area relatives. After a long delay and lost luggage, they arrived safely home.

Richard, Mary, and Caitlin Norwish of Eglon were Christmas Day visitors in Virginia with his mother and sister, Peggy and Louise Norwish.

Gallstones Prevention and Treatment

Gallstones form inside the gallbladder when the digestive juices become solid rather than liquid. These stones are typically made up of cholesterol and bile salts. Researchers indicate more than 20 million Americans have gallstones but that over half of those who have gallstones never know the stones are there. However, when one or more stones move from the gallbladder and get stuck in the bile duct passageway, they experience what we refer to as a gallbladder attack. For some reason, women are much more likely to develop gallstones than are men. Obesity is a risk factor and health experts claim that losing weight reduces the risk of stone formation. The symptoms include nausea and vomiting and pain in the back between the shoulder blades or under the shoulder. The pain is described as being steady and severe in the upper abdomen. In many instances, the attack follows a meal that is high in fat.

Surgical removal of the stones by way of laparoscopic technique after having one or more attacks is recommended as the treatment of choice by many physicians. An alternative to surgery is a stone dissolving drug called ursodiol. The drug may take months of treatment to completely dissolve stones in the gallbladder. Ultrasound evaluation may be used to see if stones do dissolve.

FRIENDSVILLE NEWS

ASHER GLADE CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN

There will be a board meeting on Friday, Jan. 14 beginning at 7 p.m. at the Asher Glade Church.

FRIENDSVILLE COMMUNITY WATCH

The Friendsville Community Watch and the Mayor and Town Council invite anyone who purchased a Christmas bow for the Memorial Tree and would like to keep theirs, to pick them up at the Friendsville Senior Center within the next two weeks.

RECYCLING NEWS

Recycling will be held this Friday, Jan. 7, beginning at 9 a.m. Newspapers, colored glass, and clear glass are accepted, as well as cardboard boxes. Residents are asked to separate the recyclable items. Cardboard boxes should be broken down flat. The Mayor and Town Council thank everyone who recycled last year and hope to continue this year with great success.

WING NIGHT

The Friendsville Volunteer Rescue and Fire Dept. Inc. is hosting Wing Night every Friday from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Friendsville fire hall. A variety of wings are served, as well as numerous other items.

FIRE DEPT. NEWS

The newly elected officers for the year 2005 are: president, Keith Fisher; vice president, Ed Kelley; secretary, Joy Fisher; treasurer, Randy Humberson; chief, Terry Spear; deputy chief, Mike Hoover; and chief engineer, Jeff Spear.

MUNICIPAL PRIMARY ELECTION

Because of the response of candidates for a seat on Town Council, a primary election will be held Monday, Jan. 24, at the Town Hall from noon to 7 p.m. Voters will vote for up to six of the following candidates: Herschel H. Allen III, Eugene Dixon, Jane G. Fox, Frances E. Friend, Agnes C. Lichtner, James Allen Naeseth, Joseph E. Sessa, Shawn M. Sessa, Alice Marie Spear, and James Spear. The six winners of the primary will go on to the general municipal election, to be held Tuesday, Feb. 8, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., by which three new council members will be chosen of the six. Council members who still have one year to serve are Thomas L. Fike, Harry Hobart Griffith, and Robert G. Sines, along with Mayor Spencer R. Schlosnagle.

Absentee ballots can be obtained by contacting the Election Board chairperson, Robin Sines, before Jan. 24 at 301-746-5603. For more information, persons may also telephone the Town Hall at 301-746-5919.

ON A PERSONAL NOTE
by Lucretia Sines

Well, another year has ended, and as I do every year, I like to take a moment to reflect on the past year of 2004. The year started unseasonably warm, with January 3 registering 60 degrees, but by the 7th old Mother Nature was back to her regular duty of 6 degrees. January also brought us 19 days of snow with a storm that closed Garrett County schools from the 26th through the 29th. February also started out with a snow storm on the 3rd, but only registered four snow days for the whole month. March 7 brought us an unseasonably strong thunderstorm, but only six days of snow. April 1 was the last snow storm of the winter.

February brought us more than just snowy weather. Chauncey Friend turned 100 years old and was treated to an open house at the Sand Spring Church Fellowship Hall to celebrate his birthday. The Cornerhouse Café opened its doors on Feb. 9, which was a much awaited asset to this town. The municipal election of 2004 brought a re-election for Mayor Spencer R. Schlosnagle and elected councilmen Tom Fike, Robert Sines, and Hobart Griffith. Winter turned into a very rainy summer for the first time in many years.

Mt. Mammas opened its doors to anxious exercise hounds on August 2, but closed on Dec. 30. We are hoping that they reopen at a different establishment.

It only took one week in November to bring down the Crawford Hotel, one of the oldest in Friendsville. The grounds will be used to build a new squad hall for the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad.

Grants were used to dress up parts of the town, including the Friendsville Discount Liquors and the Yough Motel. Friendsville is still struggling to get new businesses to come into town to get our economy going.

As is always done in my year-end survey, I like to take some space to remember those many residents, whether former or current, who have passed on in the year of 2004. It is a sad time to remember them, but I feel that they deserve one more remembrance by saying their names once again. They will always have a place in our heart: They are John E. Bishoff, Jackie T. Thomas, Martha Vandall, Bonnie Stanton, Robert Hicks, Marie A. Nelson, Robert S. Murphy, Flossie VanSickle, Lewis Gittere, Paul Friend, Marvin R. Sines Sr., Harold Griffith, Lawrence Stemple, Sherry Sisler, Wayne Casteel, Alta Schlosnagle, Walter Coddington, Bernice Pnut Friend, Margorie Sales, Karen Stover, Glen Frazee, Mark Johnston, Charles Bowman, Woodrow Lohr, Orville Michaels, Inez Slagle, Tom Michaels, Leah Huber, Pete Frazee, Patricia Meyers, Gerri Powell, John Uphold, Patty Frantz, Bill Dixon, Lydia Friend, Jack Leights, Mary Jane Friend, Mary Teats, Carrie Teats Sines, Beverly Kramer, John Carr, and Playford J. Friend. The lives of these loved ones will be remembered for the way that they have made an impact on our lives. They will not be forgotten.

If I have missed the name of a deceased loved one, please let me know at 301-746-5933. As we look forward to a new year, I wish everyone a healthy, safe, and happy 2005.

Deep Creek Lake Recreation Area Manager Retires

Paul Durham, manager of the Deep Creek Lake Recreation Area for the past 15 years, retired from the Department of Natural Resources at the beginning of this month. A replacement has yet to be named by DNR.

Durham joined DNR's State Forest and Park Service in 1978 after earning his bachelor of science degree at the University of Maryland College Park. He has held ranger and management posts at Gunpowder Falls, Elk Neck, Sandy Point, and most recently the Youghiogheny Scenic and Wild River and the Deep Creek Lake Recreation Management Area and DCL State Park.

Durham's achievements include managing the design and construction of the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center, and participation on the national board for the National Association for Interpretation, a nonprofit group that promotes leadership and excellence to advance heritage interpretation as a profession. He is credited with steering the lake's management program through the state's acquisition of the lake in 2000, and the subsequent design and implementation of the conservation easement, buy down, lake fees, and regulations.

"What surprised me the most over my tenure at Deep Creek Lake was how rapid the growth of the lake area has been over just the past five years," Durham commented this week. "The sheer number of new vacation homes, and how 'upscale' they are, is just incredible; however, I still feel very optimistic about the lake's future, because there are a lot of people who care about maintaining its character.

"When I came here in 1989 there was a great deal of concern about boating capacity on the lake, but that's remained at a fairly constant level over the years. In my opinion 95 percent of the time the lake is little-used and can provide a wonderful outdoor experience. I think folks are missing a lot of what the lake has to offer if they don't use it in the 'shoulder seasons' of fall and spring, and just concentrate on the downsides of summer weekends and holiday weekends, which are always going to be busy."

Durham pointed to the conception and construction of the DCL State Park Discovery Center as one of his proudest accomplishments. "The idea for the Discovery Center came up about 12 or 13 years ago when our director was visiting to check into the thought of putting up an outdoor amphitheater at the park. I suggested to him that we really needed an interpretive center in conjunction with the amphitheater, because that's what the parks are really all about.

"A year later he called and said, 'Are you serious about an interpretive center?' I said yes, and he put it into the agency budget request. We eventually got the center, but no amphitheater yet.

"Our vision for the Discovery Center was for people to see the total picture of Deep Creek Lake beyond vacation or real estate uses. We wanted to share the values of the lake that transcend development and economics, and show people that the lake needs to be preserved. I think we're succeeding," Durham said.

"Paul was a superb manager in a number of ways," said his former supervisor, DNR Western Region parks administrator Chris Anderson. "He was especially instrumental in working all parties through the process of getting the current lake regulations approved, and helping the state buy the lake. His strong suit was helping meet the needs of the public, his staff, and the state agencies," said Anderson.

"I have many fond memories of the many property owners and visitors I've had the privilege to meet over the years," stated Durham. "Those people became my friends, and in a sense, my co-workers. So many people in the lake community are dynamic, involved, caring, and are active participants in planning for the lake's future. It's an advantage that park and recreation managers often don't have. I was also blessed with very dedicated staff that went out of their way to serve the public."

Durham will continue to reside in Oakland with his wife, Mary Ellen Dore, and his two children, Clinton and Emily. He will soon be opening a consulting practice specializing in heritage resource and recreation planning, permitting, interpretation and management.

LANDING A LEAD In the debut of a new play titled Fe or Male at the Lowndes Shakespeare Center, Loch Haven Park, Orlando, Fla., was Sara Sincell, daughter of Suzie and Don Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park. The production, which is directed by the playwright Anna Demers, is part of PlayFest!, a 10-day program sponsored by the Orlando-UCF Shakespeare Festival. The musical centers on five women who are searching for their identity in a world defined by men. Sincell is a 1998 graduate of Southern High School and a 2002 graduate of Shenandoah University with a degree in theatre. She has performed a number of stage roles in the Orlando region since moving there early last year. "Garrett County Floridians" and others who may wish to attend one of the performances (scheduled for Jan. 15, 18, 21, and 23) may obtain tickets and/or more information by calling 407-447-1700, ext. 1. Outdoor Mural Ideas Sought For Oakland

The Oakland Main Street Program has proposed an outdoor mural project in downtown Oakland, and the organization's design committee has slated a public planning session from 4 to 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 11. The first in a series of outdoor murals to be painted on building walls in Oakland will feature a historical theme involving important people who lived in or visited the Oakland area during the late 19th century, which was the heyday of rail travel.

The upcoming planning session will focus on historical information and photographs as committee members work to better define the project theme and the artistic structure of the mural. Any persons who have historic photos of Oakland and its famous visitors are encouraged to attend and bring such materials, as are all artists who are interested in working on this project. Outdoor mural painting experience is not necessary.

Additional themes for other mural sites are also being considered and researched. For further information, persons may contact Oakland Main Street program manager Cherie Ross at 301-616-3026.

PICTURE PICKS

Spanglish

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:10

Review by Adam Sincell

What do you get when you mix a rich cast of talented actors, an above-average script, and director like James L. Brooks (1997's As Good As It Gets)? In a word, Spanglish. This film was a fine combination of wit and frustration that surrounds a somewhat bizarre, dysfunctional family living in modern-day America. As if this were not enough for a premise, the audience is introduced to the antics of such a family through the eyes of a young girl and her mother who have sneaked into the United States from Mexico in hopes of finding a better life for themselves. As these stories intertwine, we see that nationality and language may not always act as barriers between cultures. All in all, this was an enjoyable film with a very tongue-in-cheek way of personifying typical American insecurities.

Flor Moreno (Spanish actress Paz Vega) is a mother with great hope for the future when it comes to her daughter Christina (Shelbie Bruce), who is absolutely passionate about learning new things. At a young age, Christina is plucked from her life in Mexico and emigrates to America with her mother. Flor, desperately seeking a new job, is soon hired by Deborah Clasky, the mother of a rather quirky family, and before she knows it, Flor is working as the family's housekeeper day after day. Despite the insecurities and pestering annoyances exhibited by Deborah (played brilliantly by Tea Leoni) and the unfulfilled spirit of Deborah's chef husband John (Adam Sandler in a pleasantly surprising performance), Flor cannot help but feel a deep connection with the Clasky family, particularly with John and Deborah's daughter Bernice (Sarah Steele). As Flor slowly begins to learn English, she and her daughter cross over into the world of the Claskys, thereby causing a rift in every relationship of the family. Gradually, we understand the truly intricate and complicated natures of both families and how they resolve the predicaments they constantly put themselves into.

As I said, this movie is certainly a good one. If you find yourself becoming a little restless on a Saturday night, Spanglish will no doubt fill that void. I do not believe it is anything spectacular, but it is indeed worth seeing for the sake of interesting subject matter. The acting is very well done, and I promise that you will find yourself laughing at least once throughout the course of the film. So, I would recommend seeing Spanglish, but don't make it a high priority.

Southern Girls Swamp Huskies To Go Over .500

The Southern High School girls' varsity basketball team played host to the Northern Huskies Monday evening, and boosted their record to 4-3 (2-0 WMIL) with a convincing 40-23 victory. The key to the win was aggressive rebounding and defense, according to Ram coach Steve Cosner.

"Our defense won it for us," Cosner said. "We played a man-to-man defense all night, and all the girls played real tough against their assigned opponents. We also got some great rebounding from Caitlyn Brown and Kendra McLaughlin, especially in the second half when Kendra hit the defensive boards very hard."

Befitting a cross-county match-up, the contest was a pitched battle over the first half. Southern held a slim 5-4 lead after one quarter, and both teams continued playing fine defense through the second stanza, which ended with the Rams holding a still-slim 16-11 advantage. The Huskies began to falter in the third quarter, however, as the hosts began to stretch out their lead to 11 points, 29-18, by the end of that stanza. The fourth quarter featured an 11-5 SHS run.

No player from Southern scored over 10 points, but Sarah Stephens and Jasmine Scheffel both hit for nine, while Julia Bosley had eight. Brown ripped down eight rebounds, and Stephens dished out three assists. Brown and Bosley snagged two steals apiece.

The Huskies' Jeseca Gibson, dogged by tenacious defense of Scheffel and Cosner, was held to just seven points. "Jeseca is a superb player," Coach Cosner remarked. "We knew a big key to winning the game would be to stop her."

Southern's junior varsity walked off with a 41-14 win, paced by a 22-point performance by the Rams' Brittany Boyce. Kasie Fratz had four points for NHS.

The Rams host Keyser Saturday and Bishop Walsh Monday in 7:30 p.m. varsity contests slated to follow 6 p.m. jayvee match-ups. On Wednesday Southern visits Allegany in Cumberland.

The Huskies continue a seven-game road swing this week, with a visit tomorrow night to Meyersdale followed by a Tuesday sojourn to Salisbury. On Wednesday NHS visits Fort Hill.

THE BATTLE WAS ON Monday night in Oakland as the Southern High School girls' basketball team hosted the Northern High Huskies in a contest that the Rams claimed by a 40-23 tally. A clash under the basket is shown above to the left, as NHS center Lakin Weimer (#14) goes up for a shot with Ram defender Caitlyn Brown (#24) playing some aggressive defense. SHS forward Jasmine Scheffel (#33) is pictured above right as Husky defender Jayme Miller meets her at the perimeter. Southern's Sarah Cosner (#14) is shown below as she gets off an attempt from close range against the tough defense of Northern's Jessica Fratz (#12), with Weimer moving in for a possible rebound. The Rams improved to 4-3 with the win, while the Huskies fell to 2-5. Photos by John McEwen.

Ram Freshmen Crush Falcons, Ravage Vikings

The freshman boys' basketball team of Southern High School coasted to two more victories this week, crushing host Frankfort, 40-20, on Monday, and whipping visiting Petersburg last night, 50-26.

Matt White led the Ram charge against Frankfort with 14 points, while teammate Tommie Reams also reached double figures with 10.

Pacing the Falcons offensively was Dylan Norris, who scored seven points. It was the second loss in five starts for Frankfort.

Details of the win last night over Petersburg were not reported as of this morning.

The freshmen Rams, who are coached by Jon Hegeman, are slated to travel to Allegany on Monday and host Tucker County next Wednesday.

Rec. Hoops Lea. Results Noted

Three games were played in Oakland Recreation Basketball League action Sunday, with Markwood Citgo taking a one-point win, Quality Machine coming out on top by two points, and Mettiki finishing six points ahead of its opponent.

Markwood downed Fox's Pizza 60-59 behind a 19-point performance by Ricky Selders, while Ricky Reams had 23 points for Fox's.

Quality Machine hammered out a 58-56 victory over MeadWestvaco as Jason Brenneman paced his squad to victory with a day-high 28-point tally. Jason Shank recorded 19 points for MeadWestvaco.

Mettiki took a 54-48 win over M Acres Boys. Joey DiSimone netted 26 points for the victors, while Tobi Stoner led M Acres Boys with 10 points.

The league's slate for this Sunday features a 6 p.m. match-up between M Acres Boys and Quality Machine; a 7 p.m. showdown between Markwood and MeadWestvaco; and Mettiki squaring off against Fox's Pizza in an 8 p.m. nightcap.

Elks Hoop Shoot Slated Jan. 15 At Southern High

The annual Elks Hoop Shoot, sponsored by Oakland Elks Lodge #2481, will be held Saturday, Jan. 15, in the auxiliary gym of Southern High School. Check-in will begin at 2 p.m. in the gym lobby and the competition will get under way at 2:30.

The event is open to age groups 8-9, 10-11, and 12-13 for boys, and the same groups for girls. The age of the contestant as of April 1, 2005, will determine in which group he/she will compete.

In order to avoid the long registration lines of the past, this year pre-registration is available. Forms were sent to elementary school physical education teachers and principals, and also made available to coaches of the local youth leagues. The forms are due back to the teacher or coach by Monday, Jan. 10. Contestants will then just have to check in before the competition.

Any contestant who is not pre-registered must be at the school on the day of the competition by 1:30 p.m. and must be accompanied by a parent or guardian in order to register.

Winners will have the opportunity to travel to Hagerstown later in the month to compete in the regional event.

Persons with questions may direct them to Mike Smith, Hoop Shoot chairman, at 301-387-5861.

Husky Boys Hold Off 'Cat Rally To Take 57-54 Win

The Northern High School boys' varsity basketball team visited Westmar Tuesday night and, after running up some sizeable leads midway through the contest, the Huskies had to stave off a torrid Wildcat comeback in order to claim a 57-54 win. Senior NHS guard Matt Bass iced the victory by stepping to the free-throw line in the din of the hostile Westmar gym and sinking two free throws with eight seconds on the clock to give the visitors their final three-point advantage.

The showdown started out evenly, as the Huskies took a slim 13-12 lead after one quarter. The next two stanzas were all Northern, as the visitors ramped up their play to take a 35-20 halftime lead before cruising to a 48-35 advantage as the fourth quarter got under way. Westmar caught fire in the final eight minutes, and outscored the Huskies 19-9, but Bass's heroics staved off the impending disaster.

The physical contest was in large measure won at the charity stripe, where Northern hit 22 of 27 attempts, while Westmar connected on 12 of 16 tries. The Wildcats, who failed in their attempts to intimidate the Huskies on the court, hacked away for 19 fouls while NHS committed 15 infractions of its own.

Brent Beachy led all scorers with 19 points, and the Northern junior helped stoke his squad's free-throw flurry with a 7-for-8 tally. NHS teammates Bass, Aaron Rawe, Eric Johnson, and Blake Walker netted eight points apiece, with Walker hitting 6 of eight free-throw attempts.

Westmar was paced by Cody Smith's 14 points, and Russell Miller added a dozen.

Northern's junior varsity took a 39-24 victory as Ty Southerly tossed in 16 points. Ryan Combs had seven points for the Wildcats.

NHS (3-5 overall, 3-4 WMIL) kicks off a five-game homestand, its longest of the season, tomorrow night against Union. Salisbury will pay a Monday visit. The action for both evenings gets under way with a 6 p.m. JV tipoff, followed by the 7:30 p.m. varsity showdown.

NORTHERN TRI-COUNTY GIRLS TEAM READY FOR 2005 – The Northern girls' team of the Tri-County Youth Basketball League warmed up for the upcoming 2005 season by taking third place in a recent tournament at Washington Middle School in Cumberland. The seventh grade girls finished with three wins and one loss, and defeated Frankfort in the event's consolation contest as Kaitlynn Fratz was selected to the All Tournament Team. The girls start their 17-game regular season tonight at Westmar Middle School. All home games will be played at Northern High School beginning at 4 p.m. every Sunday beginning this Sunday, Jan. 9. The squad is pictured above, as in the front row from the left are Chelsi Kling, Euolinda Logan, Jenny Shaffer, Adria Graham, and Fratz. In the back row are Terra McKenzie, Brittany Mallow, Alyssa Rounds, Morgan Brosnihan, and Amber Miller. Not pictured is Melissa Meyers.

Lakers Return To Action With 77-59 Victory Over Howard CC

The holiday layoff did not seem to have a major negative effect on the Garrett College men's basketball team, as the Lakers picked up last night doing what they were doing in December — winning.

The Lakers recorded their 10th win in a row by disposing of host Howard CC, 77-59, in a Maryland JUCO contest. The victory upped Garrett's overall mark to 13-2.

Doyle Brown was the big scorer for Coach Dennis Gibson and the Laker squad, as he poured in 28 points. Tristan Largent and Tyrice Watkins each finished with 16 points, while Jeff Washington contributed 10.

Brown and Largent each hit three three-point buckets, and Watkins hit two.

The Lakers trailed at halftime, 36-29, but came on strong in the second half to out-score their hosts by a 48-23 margin.

No other details of the game were received.

The Lakers will be back in action on Monday at Chesapeake CC and will then host arch rival Allegany next Wednesday in a 7:30 p.m. contest.

GC's Big Second-Half Comeback Catches Allegany For 64-58 Win

The Garrett College women's basketball team seemed to shake off a little rust in the early going last night to eventually down the Allegany College of Maryland, 64-58. The Lakers' appearance on the Trojan Square Garden floor was their first outing after a three-week layoff for Christmas break.

The victory boosted Garrett's overall record to 6-2, and the Lakers remain unbeaten in five JUCO outings.

GC had to rally to get back into the contest after falling behind by 10 points, 35-25, at the half. The Lakers' second-half rampage featured a 39-23 scoring tally for a complete reversal of their first-half misfortunes.

Sophomore Denae Kennedy paced the Lakers at both ends of the court as she hit for 10 points, hauled down nine rebounds, snagged five steals, and blocked five shots. Top scoring honors for the squad went to freshman DeKresha Davis, who recorded a dozen points, while classmate Jami Anderson grabbed 10 rebounds and scored nine points. Yolanda Anthony and Karly Hall contributed eight points each.

Davis and Anthony sparked Garrett's big second-half comeback by netting eight points apiece in the final 20 minutes.

Allegany's top scorer was Ciarra Jones, who had 15 points, while Becky Jones recorded 14 and India Johnson contributed 13.

The Lakers host Hagerstown Saturday at 6 p.m. and Frederick Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Husky Matmen Top University, Then Fall To Fairmont Senior

The wrestling team of Northern High School went 1-1 in a tri-match at Fairmont Senior High School on Tuesday, whipping University High of Morgantown, 52-27, but falling to host Fairmont, 46-27.

In the team win over University, Huskies earning pinfall victories were Randy Wilhelm in the 103-pound class, Travis Glover at 125 pounds, Andy Ganoe in the 135-pound bout, Brandon Opel at 171 pounds, and Brock Glotfelty in the 215-pound clash.

Despite battling the flu, Casey Kamp won via a decision at 112 pounds, while forfeits were awarded to Nick Payne (189) and Jared Beachy (275).

Gaining pins for University were John Waldron (119), Chris Marshall (130), and Ben Waldron (145).

Getting pins for the Huskies against Fairmont Sr. were Wilhelm, Casey Kamp, and Glotfelty. Ganoe was declared a winner via a forfeit.

Fairmont pins were garnered by Mike Michalski (130), Spencer Ford (140), Eric Moore (145), Steve Mick (152), Drew Mauck (215), and Matt Bosley (275).

The Huskies will return to the mats this Saturday when they host the annual Garrett County Invitational, an event in which eight teams are expected to participate. The other seven teams are: Southern, Keyser, Liberty, Jefferson Morgan, Berlin, Landsdowne, and Francis Scott Key. The opening round will get under way at 10 a.m.

Coach Scott Stough of Northern has issued a special invitation to the members of the 1994-95 Huskies' squad to attend the tournament. In observance of the 10th anniversary of that team's undefeated regular-season record, team members present will be recognized.

The Huskies will host Westmar next Tuesday and travel to Southern next Thursday for a 7:30 p.m. match.

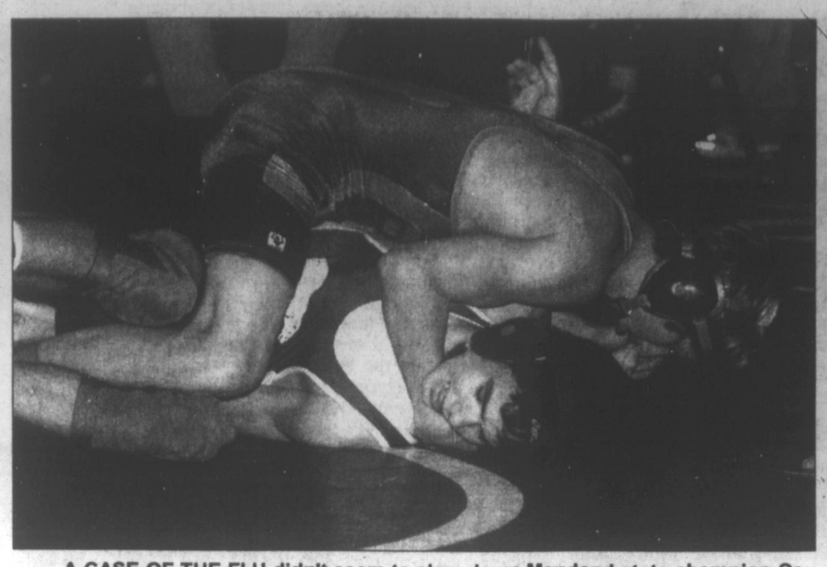
215 - Brock Glotfelty, N, pinned Kevin Miller, 1:45.
275 - Jared Beachy, N, won by forfeit.



A CASE OF THE FLU didn't seem to slow down Maryland state champion Casey Kamp Tuesday evening when his team, the Northern Huskies, battled both Fairmont Sr. and University on the Fairmont mats. Kamp is pictured above left in the process of pinning Alex Thompson of Fairmont in the 112-pound division bout. Above right, Northern's Andy Ganoe does the same thing to Mark Sappington of University High in the 135-pound bout. Husky Travis Glover is pictured below left pinning Todd Berryman of University High in the 125-pound class. Gaining two pins for Northern were Brock Glotfelty in the 189-pound division and Randy Wilhelm in the 103-pound class. Wilhelm is pictured below right in control of Cam Satterfield of Fairmont Sr. The Huskies will host eight teams this Saturday in the annual Garrett County Invitational. See story for details. Ram Grapplers Edge Hyndman For Fourth Win

In a match that featured only three pins, the Southern High School wrestling team edged visiting Hyndman last Thursday, 37-31, which upped the Rams' record to 4-1 in regular-season clashes.

Southern's Josh Tasker opened the match by recording a pin in the 103-pound division, Levi Holler followed with a pin for the Hornets in the 130-pound class, and Ram Jeremy Gregory was the only other grappler to record a pinfall win, his coming in the 160-pound bout.

Jeff Gregory and Scott Wildesen each won via technical fall for the Rams in the 152- and 171-pound divisions, respectively, while Josh Armstrong (119) won by decision. Awarded forefeits were Brandon Manko (189) and Sean Sisler (275).

The Rams will travel to Northern this Saturday to compete in the Garrett County Invitational, which will get under way at 10 a.m. They will compete in a tri-match next Tuesday at Fort Hill against the Sentinels and Keyser, then host Northern next Thursday evening in a 7:30 p.m. encounter.

istrative process for considering certificates of public convenience and need."

"That's the route for these folks to take," Beard said. "It's out of our hands as far as Synerics is concerned."

The commissioners add that they have directed the Garrett County Department of Planning and Land Development to look into options for limiting the development of additional wind power projects in the county.

"At this time it is the board's desire to limit wind power development to the two current projects (Clipper and Synergics)," the commissioners note in their statement.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg said future projects would be looked at "on a case by case basis."

Pagenhardt also said the wind energy companies have indicated to him that they are considering responding directly to some of the "conflicting" information that has been voiced about issues that fall under their jurisdiction.

Public Utilities director Mark Tonkovich noted that his department has scheduled a brief presentation on the project during the Mountain Maryland PACE Reception in Annapolis, slated for Jan. 27 and 28. He and his staff will try to persuade Rural Development and the MDE to help fund the expansion.

"The PACE Reception is the ideal time to work on these folks," said Commissioner Fred Holliday about seeking the funding.

Tonkovich noted that the funds would help save taxpayers millions of dollars. The expansion project is expected to be completed in late spring 2006.

Beitzel Corporation was the only bidder for the project at $11,998,362, which was within $10,000 of the engineering estimate made by Whitman Requardt & Associates. Gilbert noted that the firm recommended awarding the bid to Beitzel and has sent a revised cost breakdown to the USDA for review. He added that a pre-application has already been sent to the MDE for possible funding.

Gilbert's report also including the following:

•Bids were received and a contract awarded to Casselberry Associates to find groundwater sources and provide hydrological service for several systems, including those in McHenry, Mtn. Lake Park, Keyser's Ridge, and Crellin.

•The scope of work for providing public water and sewer service to the Garrett County Airport has been written. The pre-proposal meeting for engineering and design work is scheduled for Jan. 12 at 10 a.m. The bids are due back on Jan. 25 at 2 p.m.

•The Holy Cross developer is working on right-of-way negotiations for the force main line to the site.

•Phase II of the Keyser's Ridge water project is completed, except for an 8-inch water line from the storage buildings to the scenic overlook along Rt. 219. Work will continue on the line through the winter, as weather permits.

•The scope of work to perform interim upgrades to the BFS wastewater treatment plant has been revised and the cost estimate reduced by $50,000. This system will serve the area until the Keyser's Ridge Wastewater Treatment Plant is constructed.

•Bids are due in late winter and construction will begin this spring for the Western Collection and Conveyance System at Deep Creek Lake. The Garrett County General Services Department has been working to obtain rights of way for the system in three areas: Marsh Hill to Shingle Camp, Shingle Camp to Sandy Beach, and Stockslager to Mayhew Inn Road.

•Design will begin this winter and construction is expected to begin in the spring for the Trout Run and Friendsville I/I projects.

•A chain-link fence has been installed around the water treatment plant at Landon's Dam to keep animals from wandering onto the property.

terfering with the Christians' movement on the street, holding up large pink symbols of angels to cover up the Christians' messages, and blowing high-pitched whistles to drown out their preaching.

Rather than arrest the homosexual activists and allow the Christians to exercise their First Amendment rights, the Philadelphia police arrested and jailed the Christians! (It seems that some are more equal than others on this farm!)

Who is forcing whose morality down whose throat? And, whose Constitutional rights are being trashed?

To the Editor:

Anyone who thinks we are ever getting out of Iraq is just not paying attention. We are building 9 huge army bases and are building the largest fortified embassy in world history. The more we bomb civilians and destroy entire cities like Falluja (75-85% of buildings destroyed), and the longer it takes to restore clean water to pre-war levels, the more we stir the anger of Iraqis and the more intensified the insurgency will become. The minimum estimated 20,000 innocent civilians killed as a result of this war (some estimates like the recent Google-Lancet Survey suggests upwards of 100,000) is a high price to pay in moral values for a war that did not have to happen. There were no WMDs, no link to al-Qaeda and no imminent threat to our country, and as we all know much of the Bush and Blair administrations' war rationale has clearly been exposed as faulty intelligence.

Things are going according to plan for the Bush Administration neo-cons in charge. The more innocents we kill the more the insurgency grows and the less hope there is of us ever leaving. Saddam and his government are long gone yet we are still bombing urban centers of a country we supposedly freed. As far as the military industrial machine is concerned, the more terrorists we create the better. War is good for record profits if you're Poppy Bush's Carlye Group or VP Cheney's Halliburton.

Since 75-80% of Iraqis think we are doing more harm than good (Google-Iraqi Opinion Polls), won't they just kick us out of their newly found democracy? They have that right, right? Oh well, that's just a poll, not an actual vote. A trillion dollars and thousands of lives is a small price to pay for giving the Iraqis the freedom to boot us out and run their own country.

Members of the coalition are rapidly pulling out, less foreign troops are sent everyday, and already the US and Britain are the only meaningful participants. It's too bad our leaders couldn't or wouldn't consider the will of the world or believe the UN inspectors the Bush Administration kicked out of Iraq before the invasion. Is arrogance a virtue? Who was the Great Teacher of humility, and will we have the courage to walk that walk if needed? Am I unpatriotic for speaking my truth?

It's all about money and oil, and we are kidding ourselves if we think otherwise. Buckle up for the long haul, it's going to get very bloody and very expensive, and will probably expand to Saudi Arabia shortly as bin Laden calls for attacks on Saudi oil interests. Our 19-25-year old friends, sons and daughters will be drafted because our regular and reserve military simply cannot bear the burden and be stretched any further in a perpetual war on terrorism that our country's actions enflame daily.

Terra Alta Man Nets Jail Term For Possession

A Terra Alta man was handed seven days in jail after he pleaded guilty to marijuana possession before the bench of Garrett County District Court Judge Ralph Burnett.

Michael Kerry Metheny, 25, was handed an overall 30-day sentence, all but seven days of which was suspended, and was fined $500 and placed on one year of supervised probation. The drug charge stemmed from his arrest by sheriff's deputies in the wake of a March incident that unfolded after Garrett County sheriff's deputies were summoned by the owner of a Crellin home, who reported that an unoccupied vehicle unknown to her was parked in her driveway off Snowy Creek Road.

When a Motor Vehicle Administration computer inquiry revealed that the tags were registered to another vehicle owned by Metheney, deputies who noted a suspected marijuana smoking pipe in plain view on the console entered the vehicle through an unlocked door and conducted a search. They located a set of hand scales sometimes associated with the weighing of marijuana, a marijuana cigarette, and a quantity of marijuana seeds and rolling papers. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted by the state attorney's office.

In other District Court news, another Terra Alta man received a weeklong jail term after he pleaded guilty to marijuana possession.

Roger Ray DeWitt, 23, was handed a 60-day sentence, all but seven days of which were suspended, and was fined $500 for the drug conviction, while additional charges of possession of drug paraphernalia, driving an unregistered vehicle, and driving an uninsured vehicle were not prosecuted. DeWitt's May arrest by Garrett County sheriff's deputies stemmed from a traffic stop on Dilly Road. After he was taken into police custody for driving an uninsured vehicle bearing no tags, a search found marijuana and a smoking pipe in his pocket.

Three New Jersey residents were convicted of marijuana possession when each pleaded guilty to charges filed last winter during a traffic stop by Maryland State Police troopers.

Mount Holly residents Robert E. Betler, 21, Shawn M. Green, 24, and Andrew L. Wright Jr., 23, were each handed a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which were suspended, fined $200, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service. District Court judge Ralph Burnett handed down the penalties for the marijuana possession admissions, while additional charges of possession of drug paraphernalia faced by each defendant were not prosecuted.

Betler was the driver of a Honda Passport that a trooper pulled over for speeding in February on Interstate 68 near Friendsville. The trooper, who detected the odor of suspected burnt marijuana, conducted a search that uncovered a bag of marijuana and several marijuana cigarettes, along with suspected drug paraphernalia.

Jeremiah Daniel Martin, 20, Barton, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which were suspended, and was fined $100, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service. The charge stemmed from Martin's February arrest by sheriff's deputies during a traffic stop on Route 135 near Altamont, when a search uncovered a bag of marijuana in his vehicle.

Shawn Lee Snyder, 33, Keyser, W.Va., pleaded guilty to misdemeanor theft and was jailed for three days and fined $100. The charge stemmed from Snyder's June arrest by state troopers following the theft of gasoline from the McHenry BFS station.

Franklin Lee Sanner, 31, Springs, Pa., entered a "not guilty" plea to a second-degree assault charge, but was nonetheless deemed guilty and handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling, along with one day of unsupervised probation. The charge stemmed from Sanner's arrest by state troopers after he allegedly threatened another man with a baseball bat at the Grantsville Market. Sanner was acquitted of an additional charge of disorderly conduct.

Rory Trey Smith, 22, Arlington, Va., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ and a 60-day suspended sentence, a $200 fine, one year of unsupervised probation, and 40 hours of community service. Smith's August arrest by sheriff's deputies stemmed from an I-68 traffic stop near Grantsville, where a search of his vehicle revealed a quantity of marijuana and prescription medications, smoking pipes, rolling papers, and a grinding device normally associated with marijuana. Additional charges of possession of Adderall, Lortab, and drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted.

Jamie Joe Mason, 21, Grantsville, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and received a PBJ and a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which were suspended, a $455 fine, one year of unsupervised probation, and 30 hours of community service. State troopers charged Mason in August as they checked on a loud party complaint at the Meadow Lake campground, after he was observed attempting to hide a bag of marijuana.

Edward Albert Stack, 50, Bethel Park, Pa., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ and a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which were suspended, a $455 fine, six months' unsupervised probation, and 30 hours of community service. He was arrested by state troopers during a September traffic stop in McHenry, when a search initiated after a police canine alerted to the possible presence of drugs uncovered a bag of marijuana and two smoking pipes. Stack was handed a stet ruling on an associated driving while under the influence charge, while a charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

George Patrick O'Brien, 55, Oakland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ, a 30-day suspended sentence, all but two days of which were suspended, a $255 fine, and six months' unsupervised probation. Sheriff's deputies filed the charge in July as they were serving an arrest warrant on O'Brien at his Shady Hill Road residence. As police were at his door they noted O'Brien unconscious on his couch, and he was found to have a smok-

STEPHENS NAMED A PAUL HARRIS FELLOW – Bob Stephens of Mtn. Lake Park was named a Paul Harris Fellow of the Rotary Foundation of Rotary International at a recent holiday banquet. Stephens is a member of the Oakland Rotary Club and was recognized for his "substantial service" as its president in 2004. The award was presented by Kathy Zimmerman, the chairman of the club's Paul Harris committee. The award is named for Rotary International's founder and is given to individuals who contribute $1,000, or in whose behalf such a contribution is made to Rotary Foundation for its international humanitarian and educational programs. The contribution to the foundation was made by the Oakland Rotary Club in recognition of the "significant" contributions that Stephens made during his year as president. During that time, club membership increased and the group received a Presidential Citation and the Governor's Literacy Award. The local club also hosted the District Conference, where Stephens served as the master of ceremonies. He thanked the club for the honor at the banquet and congratulated Joan Johnson, who was also awarded a Paul Harris Fellowship the same evening. Pictured above, left to right, Linda Stephens looks on as her husband Bob receives the Paul Harris Fellow certificate from Kathy Zimmerman.

Mark Joseph McKenzie, 46, Frederick, were stetted. McKenzie faced charges of five counts of drug possession (two counts Oxycontin, and one count each Oxycodone, Duragesic, and marijuana), and four counts of misdemeanor theft. McKenzie's July arrest by sheriff's deputies came after he was accused of stealing pain medication from a terminally ill cancer patient in the Hutton area.

Danny R. Shiflett, 23, Terra Alta, W.Va., received a stet ruling on a trespassing charge, along with an order to complete 40 hours of community service. Shiflett's September arrest by Oakland police officers came after he reportedly refused to leave a High Street residence after being warned to do so.

Marsha Sue Garlitz, 43, Frostburg, was handed a stet ruling on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from her September arrest by sheriff's deputies after a domestic altercation.

Scot Bowman Sr., 24, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a felony theft charge filed by sheriff's deputies in October after he had allegedly refused to return items belonging to an acquaintance.

Charles French Stinson, 49, Oakland, was not prosecuted on charges of second-degree assault and disorderly conduct filed by Oakland police officers in July after a fight outside a Water Street residence.

DUI/DWI CASES

Several driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI) cases where heard by Judge Burnett in traffic court recently.

Lisa A. Turner, 39, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, fined $455, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Reece Calvin Horn Jr., 30, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, fined $455, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Brian Lee Coddington, 34, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, fined $200, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Joey Wesley Baker, 31, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a 30-day sentence, fined $455, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Scott Richard Popovich, 25, Pa., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 30-day sentence, fined $455, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Harry John Knopp, 61, Pa., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 30-day sentence, fined $455, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Kiyo Morita Dolan, 76, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and received a PBJ, a $200 fine, and one year of unsupervised probation.

ing pipe containing burnt marijuana residue in his pocket.

The arrest warrant being served on O'Brien at the time of the above incident stemmed from a domestic altercation with his wife at their residence. A second-degree assault charge was filed after he reportedly punched a woman in the face. That case resulted in a "not guilty" verdict last week when the alleged victim refused to take the stand to testify against O'Brien.

Jon Matthew Howell, 19, Swanton, pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace and was handed a PBJ, a 30-day suspended sentence, a $60 fine, and one day of unsupervised probation. Sheriff's deputies jailed Howell in August after an incident of loud and intoxicated behavior outside a Herrington Manor residence.

A stet ruling was handed to Jeremiah Jay Casteel, 33, Friendsville, on a felony theft charge filed by state troopers in June. Casteel was alleged to have, on several different occasions, stolen a $3,700 furnace and numerous construction tools from a Preston County contracting business. He was arrested reportedly attempting to sell the furnace during a collaborative sting operation between police and citizens.

TV PIPELINE

Silverstone & NBC: An unhappy 'Match'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Alicia Silverstone

Q: Do you remember the show "Miss Match"? I thought it was so great, then boom! It's off the air. Did it get bad ratings? –Catherine Logusz, Michigan.

A: Sure, we remember it; that's our job. "Lower than anticipated" ratings might be a more charitable way to put it. NBC had high hopes for the Alicia Silverstone comedy-drama about a lawyer who moonlighted as a matchmaker, but several months into the 2003-04 season, the show's lack of ratings growth prompted the network to terminate it. Silverstone may not be done with series work, though; she has signed to do a Fox sitcom pilot titled "Queen B."

Q: I have seen Timothy Busfield on "Without a Trace" a few times lately, and he is in a wheelchair. Prior to this, I had seen him on "The West Wing," and he was walking. Is this wheelchair for the part he's playing, or did he have an accident of some kind? –Lea Sopkin via e-mail.

A: At virtually the same time he was hired to be co-executive producer of the CBS crime drama, Busfield was cast in the recurring role of Jack Malone's (Anthony LaPaglia) divorce attorney. Here's what happened, in his own words:

"I tripped and broke my right leg in four places while carrying a beanbag chair down some stairs. I also tore all the ligaments in my right foot, so I was unable to move, really. Since I had to work the next day, we decided the guy would either be on crutches or in a wheelchair, so we went with the wheelchair."

Q: Could you please explain why the TV season seems to be getting shorter and shorter? I remember as a child watching new shows from September through May. Now it seems we're lucky if we see a new show each week. –Concerned & Disappointed, Milwaukee.

A: It has to do with the economics of producing new episodes. Back in the good ol' days, one season of a series was made up of 39 episodes. As it became increasingly expensive to make a show, the standard number of episodes was reduced to 26 per TV year, and then to the current 22.

Many shows premiere with a 13-episode order from their respective networks, then get an order for "the back nine" – the nine episodes it takes to complete a season – if the show fares well.

Network executives have tried various ways of handling the situation. That's why ABC started "Alias" late this season, so new chapters could air uninterrupted through May, and why The WB Network took "One Tree Hill" off for a while to extend its airing of new episodes this season. It returns Jan. 25, by the way.

IN FOCUS

No, it's not the "Cocktail" Award: Tom Cruise will be the inaugural recipient of the Distinguished Career Achievement in Performing Arts Award as The WB Network televises the 10th annual Critics' Choice Awards on Monday, Jan. 10.

The ceremony, staged by the Broadcast Film Critics Association at the Wiltern Theatre in Los Angeles, cites outstanding films and performances of the past year. "Will & Grace" star Eric McCormack is likely to use his musical ability as the event's host.

Students Of The Month Honored

The Students of the Month winners for December at Southern High School were recently honored. They are Harold Dillsworth, C.T.E. electronics; Courtney Shaffer, child care; Jonathan (Ricky) McCartney, math; Alyssa Dick, social studies; and Nick Gregg, for both English and science.

Dillsworth, a senior, is the son of Harold Dillsworth Jr. He plans to achieve a four-year degree in computer science.

Shaffer, a senior, is the daughter of Mary and Pat Shaffer. She hopes to attend college after high school.

McCartney, a senior, is the son of Bill and Linda Anderson. He has achieved the recognition of honor roll and distinguished honor roll throughout his high school career and wishes to attend a four-year college. He plans to major in computer science or engineering.

Dick, a freshman, is the daughter of Tina and Sam Dick. Among various activities, Alyssa is involved in soccer, basketball, and softball. She hopes to go to college to become an elementary school teacher.

Gregg, a junior, is the son of Fred and Carol Gregg. Nick is involved with many activities at Southern High School. He is a member of the varsity football, basketball, and baseball teams, as well as a member of the National Honor Society. Throughout high school, he has received the Minds In Motion Achievement award and distinguished honor roll every semester. Gregg is a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church. Although his major is undecided, he plans to attend a four-year college.

RAM STUDENT HONORED – Southern High School recently named Melissa Lambert as the January Perkins RAM Student of the Month. Lambert is a new student this fall to the Garrett County school system. "She has made a very good impression on the staff at SGHS, especially her guidance counselor Kelley Beavers-Davis, with her positive attitude and excellent work ethic," said Principal Tom Woods. Above, Woods presents Lambert with a gift certificate from Perkins restaurant.

LEADERSHIP ACADEMY

The Leadership Academy offers these suggestions to live by: Jan. 3 - Jan. 7, "Speak your thoughts peacefully" and Jan. 10 - Jan. 14, "Feel others pain."

ECONOMICS STUDENTS FINISH COMPETITION ON TOP

Students in Lisa Bender's economics class recently finished the 10-week academic stock market competition sponsored by the Maryland Council on Economic Education. The teams were sponsored locally by Rob Sharps of PrimeVest Financial Services and First United Corporation. Students were asked to manage a stock portfolio for the 10-week period competing against teams from across the state of Maryland. The investment team of seniors Kayla Nazelrod and Brittany Miller and juniors Emily Smith and Michelle Holler finished in 8th place out of 643 teams and will be recognized as the top high school team in the Western Region (Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Frederick counties). Mrs. Bender will also be recognized this spring for placing first among 48 teachers who competed statewide. Her portfolio investment strategy placed her 4th out of the 643 teams competing. Congratulations!

2005-06 ECAP APPLICATIONS DEADLINE APPROACHING

Juniors who are interested in the Early College Admission Program need to pick up application packets soon if they are interested in enrolling in the program for the 2005-06 school year. Deadline for applications to be turned in to the Guidance Office is April 15. Prospective ECAP students also have the opportunity to apply for the James Nordeck scholarship which has an application deadline of March 1, 2005. This scholarship would assist a student to attend Garrett College in 2005-06. Interested students need to contact Mrs. Sincell in the Guidance Office as soon as possible. Parents who have questions can also contact Mrs. Sincell by calling the Guidance Office at 301-334-1660.

2005 AFTER-PROM PARENT HELP SOUGHT

The annual after-prom event at Southern will take place for the 14th consecutive year if enough parents take an interest in planning this important alcohol and drug-free activity. A meeting will be held on Thursday, Jan. 13, at 7 p.m. (snow date for meeting is Thursday, Jan. 20 at 7 p.m.) in Lisa Bender's room to organize the fundraising efforts and select a theme. Prom weekend is April 30-May 1. Please plan to come to this organizational meeting so that we can continue to keep our kids safe.

ATTENDANCE APPEAL DEADLINE DRAWS NEAR

The deadline for attendance appeal letters is Jan. 19. Any student who has more than eight absences in any class, or more than four unexcused absences in a class, must appeal or lose credit in those classes. The guideline for attendance appeals follows:

Write a letter of appeal to the Attendance Committee prior to 01-19-2005, for first semester. This letter should include (but is not limited to) the following statements: full name and grade, schedule in order 1-4 and teacher name; number of days you have been absent; reason for the absences; if you have applied for an attendance appeal in the last three (3) years; why you feel an appeal should be granted. Have a doctor certified reason for any excessive absences from school. Have a written recommendation from the teacher (s) whose class (s) your are appealing, who will support your appeal. Have your agenda book available for the committee to use for documentation purposes.

Appeals will be screened using the above criteria prior to the attendance committee hearing. Letters should be signed by both parent/guardian and student. Students and parents will be notified of date and time of meeting.

"Look, Dad and Mom…a snowflake! Can we ride our sled?

"Just wait, Mark and Meghan, let's see how many snowflakes come down. Just a few may melt, but if it continues to snow, they will stick together and the snow will become deeper and form a stronger surface for your sled. Maybe we can make a snowman, too." It takes millions of snowflakes to make enough snow to play in.

We have often heard that "there is strength in numbers". As this applies to snowflakes, it also applies to us, God's children. "From Him the whole body, joined and held together by every supporting ligament, grows and builds itself up in love, as each part does its work." [Ephesians 4:16]

Yes, when we worship God as a group or a congregation, we grow in strength. This increases our ability to perform a variety of functions to help others as we glorify Him. In the words of Andrew Marvel!…

"Let us roll all our strength and all
Our sweetness up into one ball,
And tear our pleasures with rough strife
Through the iron gates of life."

Many together can accomplish more than one person alone. Won't you worship with your friends and neighbors at your local church or synagogue this Sabbath?

Making Difficult Decisions

Most everyone is involved with making numerous decisions each and every day, and although most of them are fairly simple ones, occasionally we are faced with more difficult situations. What we eat for breakfast or what outfit we will wear are fairly simple choices that we can usually make without too much thought. However, decisions involving our lifestyle, health problems, or financial matters, can affect us, or our loved ones, in a more significant way, and usually require more consideration and thought. Often, we may be reluctant to be decisive because we are overly concerned about failing to make the right choice. But, we must realize that everyone makes wrong decisions from time to time, and what is more important is how we react when we have made a bad choice. Do we fret and condemn others or ourselves, or do we go on with our lives and make the best of our situation? The Bible tells us that, "in everything God works for good with those who love Him, who are called according to His purpose (Romans 8:28)." God has given us the ability to use our free will to make good, prayerful decisions, and when we do, even apparently wrong decisions can often be turned around for something good.

Jesus looked at them and said, "With man this is impossible, but with God all things are possible."

Supplements May Help Rheumatoid Arthritis

Rheumatoid arthritis is a chronic inflammation of the joints which often leads to pain, decreased mobility, and other complications. Researchers are looking at alternative therapies to treat this disabling condition. Several clinical trials evaluating the use of antioxidant vitamins and minerals have been tested to support traditional drug therapy for this type of arthritis. Vitamin E has been shown to modulate several inflammation-producing enzymes and chemicals and produce a modest improvement in the condition after 3 weeks of treatment with 400 mg of this natural vitamin taken three times daily.

Different studies have shown that rheumatoid arthritis sufferers are deficient in vitamin C. Supplementing their diet with this vitamin makes sense. The mineral selenium also fights inflammation. In one trial, those who received 200 micrograms of selenium daily for 3 months showed fewer swollen joints and less morning stiffness than those without the supplement.

Strange BUT TRUE
By Samantha Weaver

• You might be surprised to learn the author of the following comment: "There are two things I'm sure are infinite: the universe and human stupidity. And I'm not sure about the universe." Or, then again, you might not. It was Albert Einstein.

• It's been reported that President John F. Kennedy, while he was in the White House, changed his shirt up to six times every day.

• The computer mouse is a ubiquitous item these days, but you might not realize how long it has been around. The mouse was actually invented back in 1968.

• Those who study such things have observed that penguins, when they're on land, sleep standing up, which isn't particularly unusual in the animal world. What does seem strange, though, is that when they're in the water, they actually sleep while they swim.

• It seems that razor blades were once a very marketable item. Among the companies that sold them were Good Humor (the ice-cream guys), Palmolive, Ritz, Esquire, Cheerio and Wrigley.

• Everyone is familiar with the sinking of the S.S. Titanic — especially after the film starring Leonardo DiCaprio and Kate Winslet. The loss of life was colossal, but it didn't have to be quite as bad as it was: The ship's lifeboats were filled only to 80 percent of their capacity.

• It's still not known who came up with this definition for a diplomat: "A man who can pull the wool over his wife's eyes with the right yarn."

• Talk-show host Kathie Lee Gifford named her dog, Regis, after her famous co-star, Regis Philbin.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 13, 1861, Stephen Foster, America's first professional songwriter, dies at the age of 37 in the charity ward of New York's Bellevue Hospital. Despite scores of hits such as "Oh! Susanna," "Swanee River," "Camptown Races" and "My Old Kentucky Home," copyright laws were rarely enforced in music at the time, and Foster reaped few financial rewards.

• On Jan. 10, 1901, in the town of Beaumont, Texas, the first major oil discovery in the United States is made as a 100-foot drilling derrick named Spindletop produces a roaring gusher of black crude oil.

• On Jan. 12, 1932, Ophelia Wyatt Caraway, a Democrat from Arkansas, becomes the first woman to be elected to the U.S. Senate. Caraway had been appointed to the Senate two months earlier to fill the vacancy left by her late husband, Thaddeus Horatio Caraway.

• On Jan. 11, 1944, Franz Kettner, a private in the German army and a prisoner of war at Camp Hearne in Texas, is killed by a Nazi kangaroo court. Internment camps for German POWs were dominated by Nazi enforcers, who killed as many as 150 of their fellow prisoners during World War II. American officials often looked the other way because the Nazis maintained order in the camps.

• On Jan. 15, 1974, the first episode of "Happy Days" airs. The show, which portrayed the comic antics of 1950s Milwaukee high school student Richie Cunningham, was immensely popular and launched several spin-offs, including "Laverne & Shirley" and "Mork & Mindy."

• On Jan. 14, 1980, after being released from government control, gold soars to a new record price, exceeding $800 an ounce.

• On Jan. 16, 1991, the U.N. deadline for Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait expires and the Persian Gulf War begins as aircraft from the U.S.-led military coalition begin bombing targets in and around Baghdad.

Commands for Cats

Q. Do cats understand verbal commands? I've noticed that when I call my cat and say "dinnertime," he runs straight to his bowl. — Charlie S., Concord, N.H.

A. That depends on your definition of "understanding." Certainly, cats (and dogs) can learn to associate certain sounds with certain actions, or rewards, on your part. Do they recognize these as words? No, but most pets respond to repetitive stimuli, both positive and negative, whether it's certain words or a snap of the fingers.

My own cat responds to a small number of words — "play" sends him over to the shelf where I keep his favorite dangly toys; "treat" has him scurrying to the kitchen and turning circles underneath the basket that holds his kitty treats (a daily vitamin, unbeknownst to him); "food" results in his sitting by his bowl, waiting for dinner. He also knows that when I'm clucking my tongue, he needs to stop whatever action he's about to take (usually attempting to steal people-food).

I think he has an inkling about other terms as well, because when I say words like "bath," "brush" or "flea treatment," he suddenly disappears. Hmm.

Seriously though, pets respond to the sound of your voice, the inflection (happy or angry), and even to your unspoken mood. If you pay attention to your cat, over a few days or weeks you will notice that he responds to you in different ways. And knowing that, the interaction between the two of you will improve remarkably.

Confederate Money

Q. I have a $100 Confederate bill. Where can I find out if it is worth anything? — Dolores, Leavenworth, Kan.

A. Reproduction Confederate currency is quite common. To find out if your bill is authentic and, if so, what it is worth, contact John Sexton, owner of Stone Mountain Relics, a store that deals in Civil War memorabilia.

According to Sexton, Confederate items are his specialty. His address is 1551 Annapolis Way, Stone Mountain, GA 30017. For a second opinion, William Skelton is an expert of pre-1929 U.S. currency. His address is P.O. Box 55448, Birmingham, AL 35225.

Q. I have a 78 rpm recording of Edward VIII and his farewell message of Dec. 11, 1936. How much might it be worth? — Lola, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

A. I contacted three dealers who are knowledgeable about 78 rpm records.

According to them, your disc is fairly common and was issued on various labels throughout the world. It would probably retail for about $20.

Q. Several years ago, I purchased a set of spice containers manufactured by Lennox. During a recent move, several got broken, and I am now searching for replacements. Any suggestions? — Claudine, Colfax, Ill.

A. Replacements might be difficult to find, but I suggest you begin by contacting dealers specializing in Lennox patterns and products. Three of the better ones are Michael Negrotti, Tabletop Designs, P.O. Box 448, Cheshire, CT 06410; Carol Ulrey, P.O. Box 15815, San Diego, CA 92175; and Jo Hancock, Jo's Antiques and Collectibles, 621 South Main St., Nashville, AR 71852.

TSUNAMIS

Q. How do tsunamis happen ? And is there any way to predict them ?

A tsunami (often called a tidal wave) is a secondary effect of an earthquake that happens underwater. You can generally expect that the more powerful the earthquake, the more powerful will be the associated tsunami. The disaster of Dec. 26 began with an extremely powerful earthquake.

The magnitude of earthquakes is measured on the Richter Scale, where the numbers increase by powers of ten. An earthquake of magnitude 6 is ten times as powerful as a magnitude 5 earthquake. Magnitude 9 is 1000 times as powerful as magnitude 6. And so on.

At a depth of a hundred miles, the Earth seems to be a very viscous liquid – magma or lava – that moves much slower than molasses in January. Above this global ocean of magma floats the rocky surface that we perceive. The surface is not uniform; it is broken into pieces like ice floes in the springtime. These pieces can be thousands of miles across and are called tectonic plates.

When the tectonic plates around the earth move relative to one another, that's an earthquake. The epicenter is the point where the actual connection of the tectonic plates breaks. Slight motions (magnitude 2 earthquakes) happen all the time, and nobody notices. At magnitude 4 you definitely notice it, at magnitude 5 flimsy buildings fall down, and at magnitude 6 highway bridges might fall down. As the numbers go up, the likelihood of such an earthquake gets smaller. There hadn't been a magnitude 9 earthquake since 1964.

On land, almost nobody falls into the crack opened up by an earthquake. People get killed by buildings falling on their heads. A really major earthquake (magnitude 7 or 8) that happens right under a city might kill 5000 people this way. We've all become used to hearing reports of such disasters about once per decade.

What happens when the epicenter is under the floor of the ocean? If one tectonic plate slides underneath the other (known as subduction) then instantaneously there is a step several feet high that wasn't there before. Sometimes a strong earthquake triggers massive landslides on the steep slopes of the nearby continental shelf. Either way, the water in the ocean directly above starts to rush in to fill the void. That sudden motion of water is a pulse, a form of wave that is different from the usual waves on the ocean surface. The tsunami is under way.

The pulse of water is only as high as the displacement of the ocean floor, maybe 10 feet for a combination earthquake and landslide. But the pulse is also extremely wide: 100 kilometers (60 miles) is common. That wave starts to move outward from the epicenter. It's classified as a "shallow water wave" even when the ocean is two miles deep. Unlike ordinary waves (even high waves, as in hurricanes) the tsunami wave moves very swiftly, typically about 500 miles per hour. Moreover, it tends to stay together and doesn't lose much energy as it travels.

If you're out in a boat somewhere on the ocean as the tsunami passes by, your boat lifts up with the ocean surface. At 500 mph, a 60-mile wide pulse passes beneath you in about 10 minutes, and so you barely notice. If you're underwater scuba-diving, it's definitely surprising because of the sideways drag, but that's over quickly too. As long as there's nothing in the way, the pulse of water just gently spreads out over a very wide ocean.

All the trouble happens when the pulse of water collides with some land in its way. The ocean floor, which had been thousands of feet down out at sea, rises up gradually. The word "shoreline" means the place where the ocean depth is zero.

We are all familiar with ocean waves "breaking" on the shore. The forward speed of a moving wave drops to zero, and all that water bunches up as it approaches the shore, so the crest becomes a lot higher. The tip of the wave falls over itself and crashes below. At the beach, it's fun to splash in such waves, which roll in about ten or 15 seconds apart. If you're standing in shallow water, it passes over you in one or two seconds. Surfers enjoy the really big breakers where they can find them; a surfer who takes a wipe-out is underwater for 5 or 10 seconds. There's not much danger when waves have such a rapid repetition-rate.

When a tsunami shows up at the shoreline, that same bunching up of water takes place while the forward speed drops. Although the pulse might be just a few feet high out at sea, the enormous width of the pulse means that a gigantic amount of water is going to keep moving toward shore. When it reaches the shoreline, the height of the pulse might be 15 or 20 feet, but the volume of water is huge – it just keeps on coming. If the water pours in for ten or 15 minutes, it can easily flood all the low-lying land near the shore. It knocks down buildings and drowns unsuspecting people.

One fatal mistake many people made was to venture toward the receding first wave, not realizing than a larger second wave-crest was on its way.

Many people would have avoided danger if they had been warned of the approaching tsunami. A seismic device that detected the earthquake and automatically set off an alarm would be needed. For most of the people living on the Indonesian island of Sumatra, the warning time would have been too short; also, the damage from a magnitude 9 earthquake is extremely severe anyway. But a warning system might have saved people on a beach several hundred miles away, in Sri Lanka or Thailand.

The question arises: At what level of intensity should a warning be issued? Unless it sets off a landslide, a magnitude 4 earthquake will produce a tiny tsunami of no danger. How about magnitude 6? Nearly all earthquakes have subsequent aftershocks, and this one was no exception. The announcement of a magnitude 6 aftershock three days later sent people into panic, but the associated tsunami was not troublesome. Perhaps there was no further undersea landslide; we simply don't know.

When will the next one come? The science of predicting earthquakes is very uncertain. The Dec. 24 issue of Science magazine contained an article about earthquake warning systems. Talking about Japan, it said that a magnitude 7 or 8 offshore earthquake has a 40% chance of occurring in the next 10 years. That's about as accurate as predictions get.

Magnitude 9 earthquakes are very rare (a few per century), and may happen either on land or under the ocean. The tsunami that resulted from the earthquake of Dec. 26 was the most devastating tsunami in recorded history.

GC Health Dept. Slates First Ever "Rub-Out" Day

Smokeless tobacco users can "commit to quit" the habit for 24 hours in the first ever Garrett County Rub-Out, slated for Friday, Jan. 14. The Garrett County Health Department, Health Education Division staff is recruiting smokeless tobacco users to quit for that day. In return for their successful attempts, they will receive a ball cap.

"When you think about quitting for the day, instead of quitting for good, it doesn't seem quite so impossible," said Linda Lewis, Community Outreach worker who is heading up the outreach efforts for the Garrett County Rub-Out.

"We have learned, though, that when tobacco users are successful at quitting for a short period of time, they are more likely to stay quit or to try again to quit," she added.

Garrett County youth and adults lead the state in rates of smokeless tobacco use, according to the Health Department.

"Being first isn't always something to be proud of," said Mike Wilburn, health educator at the Health Department. "We've put several new strategies into our tobacco control plan this year to address the problem that we have with chewing tobacco and snuff in our county. The Garrett County Rub-Out is one of those strategies designed to encourage smokeless tobacco users to consider giving up the habit."

In addition to the Rub-Out, Wilburn will also be piloting a new class designed solely for smokeless tobacco users to help them quit. This class will begin on Wednesday, Jan. 19, at 5:30 p.m. It is a free class, and the nicotine patch will be available for participants. The location of the class will be determined based on the interest of participants.

Smokeless tobacco users who are willing to quit for the day of the Garrett County Rub-Out or who would like to sign up for the cessation class may call Wilburn or Lewis at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111 for more information.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Final Procedures And Date Set For Lamb Referendum

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service has announced the final procedures for a continuance referendum under the Lamb Promotion, Research, and Information order, more commonly known as the Lamb Checkoff Program, and also announced that the referendum will be conducted Jan. 31, 2005, through Feb. 28, 2005.

The referendum will be conducted at USDA's County Farm Service Agency (FSA) offices. To be eligible to participate, persons must certify and provide documentation, such as a sales receipt or remittance form, that shows they have been engaged in the production, feeding or slaughtering of lambs during the period of Jan. 1, 2004, through Dec. 31, 2004.

Beginning Jan. 31, 2005, and continuing through Feb. 28, 2005, persons may obtain form LS-86 to vote in the referendum from county FSA offices either in person, by mail or facsimile. Forms may also be obtained via the Internet at http://www.ams.usda.gov/lsg/mpb/rp-lamb.htm.

Persons will vote in the referendum at the county FSA office where their administrative farm records are maintained. For the person not participating in FSA programs, the opportunity to vote will be provided at the county FSA office where the person owns or rents land. Form LS-86 and supporting documentation may be returned in person, by mail or facsimile to the appropriate county FSA office. Form LS-86, and accompanying documentation returned in person or by facsimile, must be received in the appropriate county office prior to the close of business of Feb. 28, 2005. Form LS-86 and accompanying documentation returned by mail must be postmarked no later than midnight of Feb. 28, 2005, and received in the county FSA office by March 7, 2005.

For the program to continue, it must be approved by a majority of voters who also represent a majority of the volume represented in the referendum.

The Lamb Checkoff Program is authorized by the Commodity Promotion, Research, and Information Act of 1996. This program provides for assessments on the sale of lamb and lamb products and for an industry board to carry out promotion, research and information programs designed to increase the demand for lamb and lamb products.

The referendum is mandated by the act and requires that the secretary of agriculture conduct a referendum either prior to its going into effect or within three years after assessments first begin under an order. The order provides that the referendum be held within three years after assessments first begin. Assessments began July 1, 2002. AMS oversees the activities of the program.

The procedures and notice for the referendum will be published in the Dec. 27, 2004, Federal Register. For more information, persons may contact Kenneth R. Payne, Chief, Marketing Programs Branch, AMS Livestock and Seed Program, USDA Stop 0251, 1400 Independence Ave., SW, Washington, DC 20250-0251, or telephone (202) 720-1115.

AGRICULTURAL FOREIGN INVESTMENT DISCLOSURE ACT REQUIREMENTS

Foreign investors who have bought or sold agricultural land in Preston County are reminded to report the transaction to the county's Farm Service Agency office within 90 days.

The Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act (AFIDA) requires that all foreign owners of U.S. agricultural land report their holdings, acquisitions, dispositions, leases of 10 years or more, and land uses to the county Farm Service Agency office. This law remains in effect, and those who fail to report or are late in reporting face possible fines.

For reporting purposes, agricultural land is defined as any tract of more than 10 acres now in farming, ranching, forestry, or timber production. This includes land in agricultural use when purchased, as well as land later converted to agricultural use. Foreigners who own or have interest in 10 acres or less do not need to report unless annual proceeds from the sale of agricultural products grown on these acres exceed $1,000.

Individuals or companies that specialize in land holdings, land transfers, or management services should visit the Preston County Farm Service Agency located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, or call 304-329-1923.

Girl Scout Troop Concludes Year With Review

Garrett County Girl Scouts of the Trillium Council's Troop 5004 gathered for their winter awards ceremony recently, where they reviewed the year's activities for family members on hand for the event. Many girls earned individual awards as well troop-wide honors.

Troop 5004 serves three scouting levels – brownies, juniors, and cadettes – and is made up of 27 girls from seven Garrett County schools, plus one local home-schooled student.

The past year's slate included a tour of the National Aquarium, where the Scouts especially enjoyed studying the shark tank. They also traveled to Pittsburgh to see the musical Cats, marched in the Autumn Glory Festival Fireman's Parade, and tried their hand at "Cosmic Bowling."

As a unit, Troop 5004 also completed the Election Connection Patch program, and are currently busy with "Read 365," an initiative to learn more about literacy for young children. They also performed a flag and candle-lighting ceremony to rededicate themselves to the Girl Scout Promise and Law.

"The troop stays as flexible as possible to serve as many as possible," stated Elizabeth Huxford, one of Troop 5004's four leaders and Community Manager for the Girl Scouts' Trillium Council. "We've seen tremendous growth in the number of Girl Scouts just this year in Garrett County, so there is either a troop available or the opportunity to start [a new] one."

To learn more about Girl Scouting persons may call Huxford at 301-387-2280. Information is also available on the Trillium Council's web site at www.girlscouts-wpa.org/gsswpa/01gsswpa.

Girl Scouts Seek Adult Volunteers

The Girl Scouts of Garrett County are actively seeking adult volunteers to serve as co-leaders for several local troops. Volunteers are especially needed for the junior level (ages 8-11) at Accident and Broad Ford elementary schools, but any woman willing to help can be placed with a troop.

All interested girls have been placed in troops with leaders, but Girl Scout Council requires the every troop have a co-leader.

"We are not just looking for people with children in Girl Scouts," said community team manager Elizabeth Huxford. "Adults from all walks of life have something to share with these girls and the last thing we want to do as a community is turn girls away because we can't find an adult volunteer."

To volunteer or learn more about the needs of the Garrett County Girl Scouts, persons may call Huxford at 301-387-2280.

The Trillium Council serves 23,000 Girl Scouts in nine counties throughout Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia with the assistance of 6,000 adult volunteers.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

My least favorite holiday of the year is New Year's, especially this year since the New Year does not hold much hope for a better life for me – just filled with more of the same that I experienced the last 10 years. Nothing to do, with no one to do anything with, not enough money, and too many worries, even though my mind never takes a break trying to figure how I can change my life, and too little sleep. Sometimes I wish I could run away from Garrett County, but I could not do that as everything and everyone I love are here. Not that I would have any other place to go. I still cling to the fact that my daughters still need me even half as much as I need them. It was pure bliss when they returned last evening from their trip to their Sussman grandparents in Silver Spring.

I passed on a chance to watch my nephews and their friends' band, "White Noise," at a New Year's Eve event at Smiley's Pizza, which was a nice things for our kids and was something where they can socialize – something we did not have when I was a teenager. But I had already shed some tears when I watched Darryl, Elliot, and Robbie play "What Child Is This?" at our Christmas Eve service at Emmanuel. It is not because I was sad, but just moved to tears.

This winter I believe is the mildest and with the least snow in my memory. The woolly worms predicted a normal winter. Still, the fact that we don't already have two feet of snow on the ground with the howling winds is more than we can expect.

A friend in McHenry reported to me that while he was enjoying a very unseasonably warm morning by drinking his morning coffee outside, he was kept company by, of all things, a honey bee.

So far no one has recently seen our white stag since hunting season. Hopefully, he is still around and will resurface again soon.

They say, "It is going around," a tenacious cold that was with me for about two weeks. Several other fellow sufferers commented how long-lasting it is. Unfortunately, my nephew Matthew Bass also had it and it made it hard for him to play his best in the recent basketball games. When he is sick he is unwilling to take shots. If you do not take a shot, consequently you don't score any points.

Those die-hard Pittsburgh Steeler fans on my stretch of Rock Lodge Road seem as if they are getting a reward at last for their loyalty after about 20 years of sub-par performance. They cruised into the playoff with a truly unbelievable regular season, beating the record of Steeler teams in their "glory days." During the 1970s it seemed to me they couldn't lose. In their last regular-season game Sunday, they mainly used third-string players. I know Lenny and Torrey Poholsky were even more happy than Rodney, Barry, and the rest of my family. Even Gary Buckel had something to cheer about, as his team, the Washington Redskins, also won.

The Southerly family and my Claire were a little disappointed by the West Virginia University football loss at the Gator Bowl. But they had a piece of good news on Sunday when the Mountaineers' hoop team defeated North Carolina State. We Terp fans also logged another win.

Even if Bittinger was soggy last week, I guess Lesa and Maddy Whittemore found a drenched Las Vegas after several weeks of rain there. I saw a news clip of a parking garage at a major casino, which was totally flooded. They came home before conditions got that bad. But they were not greeted by bright sunshine. Today is gray and foggy enough that I can barely see my line of pine trees only about 20 yards from my window.

I prefer enjoying the sign and presence of my darling Claire today, as she only has a few more days before she has to go back to college. When she was a tiny baby I could watch her all day long. Even now it is good to watch her morning beauty routine, and watch her while she is sleeping. I can't believe that wonderful, long semester break is almost over. It seemed about a month or so ago that three weeks would be a long time, but it is not when it is close to the time to have to let go again of one of the most precious things in your life.

Although quite a few women are still very concerned about the fate of our beautiful white deer, maybe it is too soon to worry too much. Very few deer of any color were harvested in the last few weeks. That is very unusual around here where deer are "thick as flies in a barnyard."

It was good news to hear that Donald Sealing is back home again after a recent stint in the Cumberland hospital. However, it was sad to hear on Sunday morning that JoEllen Buckel Graham's daughter lost her newborn infant son last week. JoEllen lives in St. Albans, W.Va., but is a summer resident at the lake.

Ethel Buckel also spent the holidays with Dr. Ralph Buckel and family in Chestertown.

PREPARE FOR OWNERSHIP!

Have you done your home-buying homework? Save yourself time, money, and heartache by doing research before you begin your hunt, and when you're ready to make an offer. Consider all the consequences of your dream home's affordability, location, value, and ownership.

Begin by gathering and analyzing your financial information assets, debts, income, and the almighty credit report. You'll need a firm and realistic understanding of what you can afford, and you'll benefit from securing "pre-approval" of your loan. Spend your valuable time looking at houses within your budget.

You've heard it before – the three most important factors in real estate are location, location, and location. Know the community, because you're not just buying the house you're buying the neighborhood! Look ahead to the day you'll eventually resell. How marketable will the home be when that time comes?

Found a home you love? Compare its value with similar homes that have recently listed, sold or expired. Ask the agent for a Comparative Market Analysis and make a solid and reasonable offer based on those facts, not necessarily the seller's asking price.

One final consideration – the responsibilities of home ownership. Remember that it doesn't end once the checks are in escrow. Now you're ready for insurance, property taxes, improvements, maintenance, and more. When you're ready, talk with a professional you can trust for advice on these all-important issues.

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

PUBLIC STATEMENT BY THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND

Industrial Wind Energy and Request for Additional Public Informational Hearings

The Board of County Commissioners for Garrett County, Maryland (the "Board"), has received a variety of opinions concerning the location of wind turbines in Garrett County. The Board has supported the application for Clipper Windpower, who has received a certificate of public convenience and need from the State of Maryland Public Service Commission. The Board has also sent a letter of endorsement to the Public Service Commission for the application of Synergics, LLC, and followed that initial letter with a request that the Public Service Commission conduct the review process for this application in a manner that will allow sufficient opportunity for public input. Additionally, the Board has met with those opposed to the construction of wind turbines a number of times, both in public session and also in informal administrative sessions with County management. Most recently, the Board met in public session and received a presentation by those opposed to wind energy addressing what they perceive to be the negative aspects of that development and its potential impact on the County.

The Board has met with their senior staff and their legal counsel in order to understand and appreciate the role that County Government has in respect to the development of wind energy in Garrett County, Maryland. While there have been new and additional requests for public involvement by the County, the opinions that the Board has received reflect the belief that the public forum for these issues is most appropriately with the Maryland Public Service Commission and the administrative process for considering certificates of public convenience and need. The Board has directed the Department of Planning & Land Development to explore potential options for limiting the development of additional wind power projects in Garrett County. At this time it is the Board's desire to limit wind power development to the two current projects (Clipper and Synergics).

The Board, based upon its review, has determined that requests for public support for wind turbine development in Garrett County will be referred by the County Commissioners to the Department of Planning and Land Development for consideration of any local land use issues, will be referred to the State of Maryland Public Service Commission for their appropriate review and intervention concerning the issuance of certificates of public convenience and need, but the Board will not, as a matter of its operating policy, endorse future development at this time. As a result of the Board's policy, the expression of concern or requests for public informational meetings should be addressed to those proposing wind turbine development in Garrett County or to the Maryland Public Service Commission.

SCOUTS ADVANCE TO STAR RANK – Troop 22, sponsored by the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, advanced two Scouts to the rank of Star during a recent Court of Honor. Committee chairman Bob Stephens, assisted by Eagle Scouts Curt Taylor and Wesley Thomas, presented the rank to Derek Taylor and Aaron Mullenax. The Scouts attend Southern Middle School and were previously members of Pack 70, where they received the Arrow of Light before advancing to Boy Scouts. Troop 22 meets at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church in Oakland on Monday nights. Anyone interested in Scouting may call Stephens at 301-334-8647 for more information. Pictured above, left to right, in the front row are Mullenax and Taylor. In the back row are their parents, Zanea and Larry Mullenax and Allan and Robin Taylor.

IRS Opens '05 Filing Season; Many To E-File

The Internal Revenue Service opened the 2005 tax filing season Tuesday, highlighted by expanded electronic services, reportedly easier tax filing rules, and new tax law changes. The IRS also expects to surpass a milestone in the e-file program by the April 15 filing deadline.

The IRS will mail almost 29.5 million tax packages to Americans this week, but, increasingly, taxpayers are swapping their pencils for their mouse, according to a report from the agency.

In Maryland, the IRS projects to receive nearly 2.6 million tax returns this year, with over 1.3 million taxpayers opting for the easier and faster IRS e-file.

The IRS projects the number of individual taxpayers filing their taxes electronically will surpass 50 percent for the first time. More than half of the expected 133 million individual tax returns will be filed through IRS e-file in 2005. Last year, almost 62 million Americans used e-file.

"In 2005, we expect more than half of all individual tax returns will be filed electronically. E-filing is fast, secure and reliable. Taxpayers who e-file will get their refunds in half the time," said Mark W. Everson, IRS commissioner.

Taxpayers who use IRS e-file have a higher satisfaction rating than those who still use paper returns, according to the American Customer Survey Index, which rates private and public sector service industries.

The IRS is taking steps in several areas to help taxpayers. Many of these features can be found on IRS.gov, including:

• Added EITC help: The EITC Assistant, available in English and Spanish, will allow taxpayers to type in some information and follow directions to determine if they are eligible for the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC). Tax professionals, who prepare the majority of EITC tax returns, also can use the EITC Assistant to help determine their clients' eligibility.

• Expanded 1040 Central: Taxpayers again will find a one-stop shop for their tax return needs by visiting 1040 Central on IRS.gov. The newly expanded page will connect taxpayers to basic income tax preparation needs such as key forms, answers to frequently asked questions, and critical links to key tax issues.

• "Where's My Refund." The popular "Where's My Refund?" function on IRS.gov allows taxpayers to answer the most frequent question they pose during the tax year. All taxpayers need are their Social Security number, filing status, and exact amount of their anticipated refund. Last year, it was used 20 million times, according to the report.

• Simpler forms for more taxpayers: The income limits for using the Form 1040EZ and Form 1040A will increase from less than $50,000 to less than $100,000. Last year, approximately 18 million taxpayers filed a Form 1040EZ and another 24 million filed a Form 1040A. The change in the threshold will mean 1.6 million more taxpayers are eligible to file the 1040EZ or 1040A.

The one-page Form 1040EZ is for taxpayers who have no dependents, no credits other than the Earned Income Tax Credit, and no adjustments to their income. The Form 1040A is for taxpayers who do not itemize their deductions, claim limited tax credits and have few adjustments to their income.

• Simpler forms for the self-employed: The limit on business expenses for self-employed individuals using Schedule C-EZ also will increase to $5,000 from $2,500. This change will mean 500,000 more small business owners and self-employed taxpayers can use the simpler version of the expense form, according to the report. The change will mean a savings of 5 million hours of paperwork burden for small business taxpayers.

In addition, there are recent tax law changes that affect tax returns filed in 2005 for the 2004 tax year. One of the biggest involves the new sales tax deduction. Taxpayers who itemize deductions will have a choice of claiming a state and local tax deduction for either sales or income taxes on their 2004 and 2005 returns. Optional tables are available for determining the deduction amount in Publication 600, which can be found on IRS.gov.

Other tax law changes affect such areas as charitable donations, child tax credit, and combat pay issues. More information is available by visiting IRS.gov.

The IRS also reminds taxpayers to claim all the credits, deductions, and other tax benefits that they are legally entitled to. But the IRS urges taxpayers to be on the lookout for tax schemes and scams that can cause costly problems for unsuspecting taxpayers, the report states. When in doubt, ask the IRS or a reputable tax professional for help.

"Our working equation is service plus enforcement equals compliance," Everson said. "We will continue to improve customer service as we work to strengthen our enforcement efforts."

Under a power of sale contained in a Deed of Trust from C. Diane Martin, dated February 25, 1999 and recorded in Liber 765, folio 812 among the Land Records of Garrett Co., MD, default having occurred thereunder, the Sub. Trustees will sell at public auction at the Circuit Court for Garrett Co., at the Court House Door, Oakland, on

January 11, 2005 AT 1:00 PM

ALL THAT FEE-SIMPLE LOT OF GROUND and the improvements thereon situated in Garrett Co., MD and more fully described in the aforesaid Deed of Trust.

The property, which is improved by a dwelling, will be sold in an "as is" condition and subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $22,000 by cash or certified check. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett Co. Time is of the essence as to the purchaser. If the purchaser defaults, the deposit shall be forfeited and the property shall be resold at the purchaser's risk and expense. In the event of a resale, the defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to receive any benefit from the resale, including, but not limited to, additional proceeds or surplus which may arise therefrom. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received by the Substitute Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. In the event that the Secured Party executes a forbearance agreement with the borrower(s) described in the above-mentioned Deed of Trust, or allows the borrower(s) to execute their right to reinstate or payoff the subject loan, prior to the sale, with or without the Substitute Trustee's prior knowledge, this Contract shall be null and void and of no effect, and the Purchaser's sole remedy shall be the return of the deposit without interest. Purchaser shall pay for documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees and/or homeowner association dues, all public charges/assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, shall be adjusted to the date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The Purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $500 of outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to the date of sale. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey insurable title, the purchaser's sole remedy shall be limited to a refund of the deposit without interest. In the event the sale is not ratified for any reason, the Purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit without interest. Purchaser agrees to pay $275.00 at settlement, to the Seller's attorney, for review of the settlement documents. (Matter #97105) (Case #C-04-8472)

Terms of Sale: A deposit in the form of cashier's or certified check for $5,000 shall be required at the time of sale. If the noteholder and/or servicer is the successful bidder, the deposit requirement is waived. Balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash within twenty (20) days of the final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett Co., Maryland. If payment of the balance does not take place within twenty days of ratification, the deposit will be forfeited and the property will be resold at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds or profits resulting from any resale of the property. Interest to be paid on unpaid purchase money at the rate of 9.875% per annum from date of sale to date of settlement, in the event the property is purchased by someone other than the noteholder. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, Condominium fees and/or Homeowners Association dues, if applicable, shall be adjusted to the date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser shall be responsible for payment of the ground rent escrow, if required. The purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $250.00 of outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to date of sale. All other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. Cost of all documentary stamps and transfer taxes shall be borne by the purchaser. If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law or equity shall be limited to the refund of the deposit to the purchaser. Upon refund of the deposit, this sale shall be void and of no effect, and the purchaser shall have no further claim against the Substitute Trustees. The purchaser at the foreclosure sale shall assume the risk of loss for the property immediately after the sale. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Substitute Trustees reserve the right to charge the purchaser an additional fee for preparation and/or review of settlement documents.

HELP WANTED-DRIVERS

Drivers - You probably entered the driving profession so you could make an honest wage doing what you love, but IS 25 CPM REALLY AN HONEST WAGE? To quote an article from the December 6 issue of Transport Topics, smaller fleets pay "about 25 cents per mile compared with an average of 40 cents by larger carriers like J. B. Hunt Transport Services." Wouldn't you rather be averaging 40 cpm for the exact same job? At J. B. Hunt you can. J. B. Hunt drivers start at 34 to 36 cpm and with guaranteed pay raises earn 37 cpm in just two to six months. That's 12 cpm more than you may be earning with a smaller carrier. And J. B. Hunt pays up to 43 cpm with a full benefits package plus many other extras; time off every 14 days, new Freightliner conventionals you can take home, 98% no-touch freight, monthly bonuses, and a career path featuring thousands of dedicated jobs and a Zero-Down lease opportunity. It's time to fulfill the goal you set out with -- make an honest wage doing what you love. 800-2JB-HUNT Class A or 3 mos exp required. EOE. Subj to d/s.

Drivers - BIG MONEY! Up to $50,000 + a year! Dedicated, Regional, Students Welcome & Will Train. Call Dan Hornstra 800-347-4698.

Garrett College To Offer Courses At Grantsville Center

Garrett College will offer a variety of courses at the Grantsville Outreach Center beginning in January, including Making Mail Merge Work for You, Nutritional Meal Planning for Diabetes and Weight Management, Medical Terminology, and Introduction to Pharmacology.

Making Mail Merge Work for You, a one day session, is set for noon – 3:15 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 14. The topics include how to create a data file, merge it with a form letter, and then execute additional merges to produce envelopes and labels. Excel and Access users will learn how to perform a mail merge using the data from spreadsheets and databases. Participants should possess a basic knowledge of Microsoft Word.

Medical Terminology is slated for 6 – 9:15 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from Jan. 18 to Feb. 17, and 9 a.m. – 3 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 19. The course includes an analysis of medical terminology designed to give a clear understanding of medical terms on the basis of roots, prefixes, suffixes, and derivatives.

Nutritional Meal Planning for Diabetes and Weight Management, a three-part series of free nutritional classes, is set for 1 – 3 p.m. on the Fridays of Jan. 21, Feb. 18, and March 18. Course topics will include counting carbohydrates, portion sizes, monitoring fat and cholesterol, using artificial sweeteners, healthy food choices, reading food labels, and dining out healthfully. Dr. Jennifer Bentlejewski, registered dietitian with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension, will facilitate the course.

Introduction to Pharmacology is scheduled for 6 – 9:15 p.m. on Monday evenings from Jan. 24 to Feb. 28. The course will provide an overview of pharmacology by studying commonly prescribed medications, their classifications, schedules, and common adverse reactions. Students will examine the prescription process (dosage, calculation, administrations, and different drug forms) and review basic federal and state regulations.

For additional information or to register for these courses, persons may contact Grantsville Outreach Center coordinator Terry Beachy at 301-895-3368 or via e-mail at tbeachy@garrettcollege.edu.

The Family of James Shafer would like to extend our sincere thanks to the ICU and 3rd floor nurses, Dr. Schwalm, & Dr. Zakaluzny for their care and kindness. A special thanks to the staff at Dennett Road Manor. The love and kindness you gave the Candy-man went above and beyond. You became Pappy's family for the last four years, and the loving support you gave him and us was much appreciated. You are a unique caring, loving staff and the support you gave us will never be forgotten.

God bless you,

Following our Christmas break, Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center for the Mature Adult re-opened this week. New and long-term members flocked in to get back to work on staying fit and healthy! We are here to help you Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. – 6 p.m.

A CPR (cardio pulmonary resuscitation) certification class will be offered at the Fitness Center on Wednesday, Jan. 12. This four-hour session will begin at 9 a.m. We will take a short break for lunch. The public is invited to participate but reservations are required. Please call to sign up for this class 301-746-8050.

If you have arthritis, Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center has the prescription for you – exercise! The Arthritis Association and physicians recommend range-of-motion exercise as the first line of defense for pain management of osteoarthritis. As some medications are being withdrawn from the market, this may be the right time for you to begin or renew your exercise program. Stop in to see how we can help you feel better and get more out of life.

Yoga sessions are now offered on Tuesday and Thursday mornings, 9 – 10 a.m. The gentle stretching of yoga is excellent for our flexibility and range of motion. If you've never done yoga before, this is your chance to give it a try. This class is open to the community.

The Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center for the Mature Adult is operated by Garrett County Community Action's Area Agency on Aging. The center is open to county residents age 55 and over with member fees payable daily, monthly, and annually. To learn more about the Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center, persons may call 301-746-8050.

The Dove Center Given $288,595 To Help Victims

The Maryland Board of Public Works has approved a $288,595 contract to the Dove (Domestic Violence/ Sexual Assault Resource) Center Inc. to help victims in Garrett County. The award was part of a $5.3 million package the board approved last week to fund 12 rape crisis programs in Maryland.

The Dove Center will use its funding to help an estimated 607 new clients. The state's Rape Crisis Program is a Department of Human Resources program that provides counseling and supportive services to meet the special needs of victims of rape and sexual offenses.

In addition to awards approved by the Board of Public Works, the state is providing $566,461 to fund seven more centers in Maryland, according to the Department of Human Resources.

"This administration is committed to helping sexual assault victims in the aftermath of these horrible, traumatic experiences," said Governor Robert Ehrlich. "While we work tirelessly with local jurisdictions to "PLAY HARD. LIVE CLEAN." – For the second consecutive year, Wisp Deep Creek Mountain Resort is sponsoring a night of free tubing for Garrett County youth from middle school through 20 years of age. The event is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 31, from 6 to 8:30 p.m. A free drink and a slice of pizza will be offered to each youth in attendance. Registration forms must be signed by a parent or guardian and will be distributed at the county middle and high schools, or can be picked up at the health department beginning Jan. 19. "Play Hard. Live Clean." is a campaign to discourage underage drinking and to promote positive lifestyles, a spokesperson said. It is sponsored by the Garrett County Combating Underage Drinking Committee through a grant from the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention, via the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc./Local Management Board and the Garrett County Health Department. For more information, persons contact Venessa Stacy, Kendra Todd, or Nancy Brady at the health department at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111. Persons may also visit the health department web site at www.garretthealth.org for up-to-date information. The photo above was taken at last January's tubing event. More than 300 local youth participated, the spokesperson said.

Towns Garner Funds For Park Improvements

The state of Maryland has awarded nearly $1 million to the four counties of western Maryland to support local park and recreation projects. Several towns in Garrett County alone netted nearly half of the Community Parks and Playgrounds Program disbursement, which was approved last week by the state's Board of Public Works.

"The projects funded include playgrounds, basketball and tennis courts, athletic fields, and park pavilions," said Governor Robert L. Ehrlich. "Throughout the year, Maryland residents will make great use of these outdoor facilities."

The total allocation of $990,056 funds 13 projects in Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties. The Garrett County awards are as follows:

•$120,000 to construct a walkway and tennis court and to install lighting and sound equipment, fencing, and gates at Friendsville Community Park;

Woman Robbed At I-68's Yough Rest Area Facility

A woman was robbed at the Youghiogheny rest area along eastbound Interstate 68 Monday morning, according to Maryland State Police troopers at the McHenry barrack, who are seeking the public's assistance in solving the crime.

The victim, a 60-year-old woman from Weston, W.Va., told police that she was in the restroom of the facility, which is located two miles east of Friendsville, at approximately 9:54 a.m. when she was grabbed by an unidentified male and pushed face down on a counter top. He demanded her purse and money, and she gave him $250. He left with an unidentified female, police said.

The two suspects reportedly were driving a gold, older model Chevrolet Celebrity with out-of-state registration.

Persons with information concerning this incident are asked to call the Garrett Bureau of Investigation at 301-334-1909.

High Schools Slated To Implement Army/JROTC Program This Fall

The Garrett County Board of Education recently announced that an Army JROTC/Leadership Program will be implemented at both Northern and Southern high schools beginning in the fall of 2005. The mission of the Army JROTC curriculum is to "motivate young people to be better Americans."

Students currently in the eighth through eleventh grades are eligible to enroll in this program during the scheduling process beginning in January at the following schools: Bloomington School, Northern Middle School, Southern Middle School, Northern Garrett High School, and Southern Garrett High School.

The program objectives are designed to develop in each cadet (student):

•leadership and patriotism;

•a sense of moral responsibility to live as decent and law abiding citizens;

•strength of character, self-reliance, self-discipline, responsibility, and a mature attitude toward constituted authority;

•the ability to think logically and make sound decisions;

•an appreciation of the value of physical and mental fitness and the debilitating effects of delinquent behavior and illegal drug use;

•the basic skills necessary to work effectively as a team member;

•the ability to communicate effectively both orally and in writing;

•the motivation and skills necessary to graduate from high school and be successful in life;

•a knowledge of educational and vocational career opportunities and technical requirements of the modern age; and

•an understanding of the role of the citizen soldier in a democratic society through the development of a knowledge of the history, purpose, and structure of the military service.

The program provides secondary students (grades 9-12) an opportunity to earn three to four elective credits toward high school graduation while participating in color guard and drill teams, summer camps, curricular-based field trips, community service, and leadership academies. The Program of Instruction is based on a systematic progression of

Oakland Man To Serve Time For "Cooking Meth"

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced an Oakland man in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to seven years in the Division of Corrections for manufacturing a controlled danger substance – methamphetamine.

Darwin Dean Hunter, 36, was arrested in May 2004 after officers with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force executed a search warrant at a residence along Newton Savage Road, Friendsville, where Hunter had been staying.

Officers found items adapted to manufacture the drug, along with some of the ingredients. During the search, Hunter made statements to officers that he had "cooked meth" at the residence within the prior two weeks, according to the Garrett County state's attorney.

Recycling Div.'s "Swap Shop" Has Successful Year

The Solid Waste and Recycling Division's "Swap Shop" had another successful year of operation, director Gary Mullich, Garrett County General Services, reported this week to the commissioners.

Nearly 33 tons of unwanted items were kept out of the county's landfill because of the efforts of residents and Solid Waste and Recycling Division employees participating in the Swap Shop in 2004, according to statistics from the division.

The recycling endeavor operates under the principle of "one person's trash is another person's treasure. Garrett County residents can place unwanted but still usable items such as televisions, furniture, and appliances in a specific area at the county's landfill and its six refuse collection sites. Other residents may then take those items from that area, known as the Swap Shop.

Mullich noted that some residents may be reselling those items at yard sales, but he was not concerned about it. The main thing was the items were being kept out of the county's landfill.

He added, however, that the state does not include the tonnage diverted from the landfill in the Swap Shop in the county's recycling numbers.

The Solid Waste and Recycling Division began the Swap Shop in May 2003.

Commissioner Fred Holliday has been a strong advocate for the program. Commissioner Dave Beard said he has placed items such as televisions in the shop.

"The first year for the Swap Shop was quite a success," wrote recycling coordinator Kimberly Madigan in a report to the commissioners. That year, approximately 14.88 tons were kept out of the landfill.

"In 2004, the site attendants more than doubled their efforts," she wrote. Approximately 32.92 tons were diverted from the landfill last year, according to Madigan.

The Grantsville refuse collection site has the most successful Swap Shop. In 2003, more than 7.5 tons of items were collected from residents at the site. Last year, nearly 11.5 tons were diverted from the landfill, according to the coordinator.

But the Swap Shop at the Kings Run Road refuse collection site is also becoming successful. In its first year of operation only about 2.5 tons were diverted, but last

Sen. Hafer, Del. Edwards To Introduce Eight Local Bills

Senator John Hafer and Delegate George Edwards will introduce eight bills with local implications in this year's regular General Assembly session, which began yesterday (Jan. 12). The legislation was requested by the Garrett County commissioners and other officials.

The local lawmakers met with the officials and several residents last week to review those requests before the legislative session began.

Fred Polce, general superintendent of the Garrett County Roads Department, asked for legislation that would give the county legal authority to increase the maximum weight limit on "specific county roads" from 73,000 to 80,000 pounds, the weight allowed for state highways.

Mettiki Coal had asked for the increase on Wilson Run and Table Rock roads, and these were the only roads that were targeted for the increase, noted Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator.

Bobby Andersen and Troy Ellington of Sand Flat Road, however, were concerned that weight limits on other county roads would be increased as well if the legislation were approved as originally drafted by the county.

They and other Sand Flat Road residents were instrumental in defeating a similar bill introduced by the local lawmakers two years ago. When they testified before a General Assembly committee in 2003, the residents cited safety as the main reason for not increasing the weight limit on their county road. They were afraid the increase would mean more truck traffic on winding, narrow Sand Flat.

Following this week's meeting with the residents and lawmakers, the commissioners decided that the new legislation would only pertain to vehicles using Table Rock and Wilson Run roads.

If the bill is approved by

Five Persons Jailed After Drug Search

Five individuals were arrested on drug charges Saturday following a search of an Ashby Ellis Road residence by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, according to sheriff Dick Sanders.

At approximately 8:30 p.m., Task Force investigators executed a search an seizure warrant at the home, were they recovered a quantity of suspected marijuana and prescription medication.

Arrested on charges of possession of marijuana and illegal possession of a prescription medication were Oakland residents Belinda DeWitt, 30; Terry DeWitt, 29; and Charles McRobie, 21; and Mtn. Lake Park resident Josh Beckman, 20. Arrested on a charge of illegal prescription drug possession was Randi Beckman, 18, Oakland.

All five suspects were subsequently released from police custody on their own recognizance by a District Court commissioner.

Task Force detectives were assisted at the scene by uniformed Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Grantsville Man Receives Two Years In DOC

A Grantsville man was convicted last week by a jury in Garrett County Circuit Court for causing or contributing to a child being in need of assistance.

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Harry Levi Wilt, 41, to two years in the Division of Corrections, with 18 months of that suspended. After serving the six-month sentence, Wilt will be on supervised probation.

He was found not guilty of a second charge of child abuse.

Wilt was charged by officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation last June after it was determined that he had directed inappropriate remarks and actions toward a juvenile over several months in early 2004, according to the state's attorney.

Garrett County Department of Social Services workers also participated in the investigation.

In other Circuit Court news, Lucky Roy Calhoun, 48, Friendsville, pleaded guity to driving while impaired and driving an uninsured motor vehicle. Related charges against Calhoun were dismissed upon his plea.

Sherbin sentenced him to six months for each charge, with all of the sentences suspended except for six days. A fine of $500 was imposed for each charge. Calhoun also received one year of supervised probation.

Last June, Garrett County sheriff's deputies stopped Calhoun after observing him driving a vehicle at a high rate of speed and crossing the center line on Dennett Road. He was arrested after failing field sobriety tests. Further investigation revealed that Calhoun had no insurance on the vehicle, noted the state's attorney.

CHANGING OF THE GAVEL – Jim Raley completed his term of president of the Garrett County Board of Education this month, and the gavel was then passed to Rodney Durst for the year 2005. Serving as vice president will be Madeleine Collins. Pictured above, from the left, are Durst, Raley, and Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent. Raley was presented with a gavel signed by all board members as a departing gift. The board meets the second Tuesday of every month, and the public is invited to speak on any topic at 4 and 7 p.m.

SUICIDAL DAFFODILS? Yes, the warm temperatures of these past weeks have apparently fooled the flowers, as daffodils are breaking ground despite the date showing on the calendar. Too warm, too wet are these January days, coaxing the plants to venture up and out, only to surely be stricken with the inevitable cold. Winter is supposed to return from whatever vacation it's been on, scheduled to land on the mountaintop with a vengeance perhaps as early as this evening. The wind is to kick up significantly by nightfall, bringing thunderstorms. The temperature, which at this writing was an unbelievable 61 degrees, is to plummet tonight to about 35, and continue downward, with a predicted high on Saturday of just 25. Poor daffodils. GC Residence Hall Available For Group Rentals

Garrett College is making its residence hall available for group rentals beginning June 1. The concept is for the dormitory to be rented for education-themed events, such as camps, elder hostels, church groups, conferences and workshops, according to college president Dr. Steve Herman.

Garrett Hall opened in 1998 to provide housing for out-of-area students. However, students do not live in the dorm during the summer months. The dormitory has 15 suites, each with two rooms and a shared bathroom. The regular capacity is 60 people, with each suite sleeping four. However, Garrett Hall has roll-in cots that increase the bed capacity to 90.

Garrett Hall can be leased on a space rental basis, or as a package including access to food service, college facilities, and educational programming.

"We do not anticipate operating Garrett Hall as a motel in the summer," Herman said. "Rather we see Garrett Hall operating as an accommodations center for programs and events which outsiders would operate. They would lease space in Garrett Hall to carry out their purposes."

Groups might choose to rent Garrett Hall if they will be involved in activities related to events occurring in Garrett County, like the summer Chautauqua. In addition, Garrett College may hold special events for organizations interested in events such as nature tours, adventure recreation, storytelling, and Garrett County history.

"Events housed in Garrett Hall should be educational in tone," Herman stressed. "For example, a church group might rent the residence hall for seminars it wants to hold on religious themes, and may also want to want to integrate nature walks into the schedule.

"We could arrange for any group to contract one of our Natural Resources program staffers to act as a guide and natural historian," Herman said.

Rentals may start as early as June 1 and go through the end of August. The earnings will go to support the operations of Garrett Hall to meet general expenditures.

Interested groups should contact the Office of the President at 301-387-3056.

GARRETT HALL RENTAL AVAILABLE – The residence hall at Garrett College will be available for group rentals throughout the summer months. The dormitory can be rented for education-themed events, such as camps, elder hostels, church groups, conferences and workshops. The facility can sleep a total of up to 90 people in its 15 suites, each of which has a shared bathroom, and can be leased on a space rental basis, or as a package including access to food service, college facilities, and educational programming. For information call 301-387-3056.

MLP Man Given Sentence For Assault, Theft

A Mtn. Lake Park man was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court last week for theft and assault charges. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Chad Allen Callis to 18 months in the Garrett County Jail for each charge. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Callis, 22, was arrested in July 2004 by Maryland State Police officers who responded to the parking lot of a McHenry area business after a woman reported a purse-snatching. While speaking to the woman, the officers spotted Callis behind a building and, after the victim identified him, chased him into a field and arrested him.

Last month, Callis entered an Alford plea of guilty to second-degree assault and a guilty plea to theft of under $500 in value. Related charged were not prosecuted based upon his pleas. Sentencing had been postponed for the completion of a presentence investigation report.

During hearings, Callis said his addiction to heroin caused him to commit the crimes to obtain money for drugs, noted the Garrett County state's attorney.

MSP Files Drug Charges After Tuesday Stop

A Kentucky man was arrested on drug charges during a Tuesday morning traffic stop by Maryland State Police on Interstate 68.

Joshua Arnold Willoughby, 22, Georgetown, was traveling east when his 2001 Chevrolet Cavalier was stopped for speeding west of Finzel. When the trooper noted the odor of suspected burnt marijuana emanating from the car, he initiated a search that uncovered a bag of suspected marijuana and a cigarette box that appeared to contain the same substance.

Willoughby and his passenger, Patrick Wayne McClanahan, 24, also of Georgetown, both reportedly admitted to smoking three marijuana cigarettes and consuming a six-pack of beer as they were traveling prior to the traffic stop.

Both men were charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, and were later released from the Garrett County Detention Center when each posted a $1,000 bond set by a District Court commissioner.

Local Woman Arrested For Alleged Assault

A Deer Park woman was arrested and charged with second-degree assault after police responded to a residence on Boiling Springs Road for a reported domestic disturbance last Thursday at approximately 5:30 p.m., according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Upon arrival, police found Dean and Kathleen Norton involved in an altercation, and through the investigation it was revealed that Kathleen was the primary aggressor, police said. She was later released from the Garrett County Detention Center on her personal recognizance.

In other police news, Robin Leonard Moyer, 32, Oakland, was charged with drunk driving after deputies stopped his 1999 Kia on Garrett Highway near Kings Run Road early Friday morning.

Moyer was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and driving on a suspended license.

Driver Injured In Single-Vehicle Crash Tuesday

One person was transported for injuries following a single-vehicle accident on Oakland Sang Run Road Tuesday afternoon, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Floyd Massey, 46, Horse Shoe Run, W.Va., was operating a Westmar Builders truck when he swerved to miss an oncoming vehicle in his lane. His vehicle traveled into the ditch, turned 180 degrees, traveled back into the ditch, and overturned, police said.

Massey was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Oakland and Deep Creek firefighters also responded to the scene. No charges were filed in the 3 p.m. accident.

In other police news, Linda Herdering, 47, Accident, was injured while riding as a passenger on an ATV Monday. According to police, Herdering was struck in the face by an unforeseen limb which caused her to be knocked off the vehicle.

No citations were issued.

Two Injured As Collision Knocks SUV From Bridge

Two West Virginia residents sustained injuries Sunday when their vehicle fell 40 feet into a creek after a pickup truck struck their SUV on a bridge over Puzzley Run. The mishap occurred on Route 40 east of Keyser's Ridge, according to the Maryland State Police troopers, who are still investigating the accident.

Morgantown residents Glennis and Linda Blosser, ages 56 and 55, respectively, were westbound when Glennis Blosser attempted to pull off into a turnaround. At that point their vehicle was struck by a 2003 Ford Ranger that had been following their 2000 GMC Jimmy.

The Blossers' SUV was pushed over the rack wall of the bridge, and fell over the side and into Puzzley Run. The Blossers sustained minor injuries, and were transported to the hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

The driver of the pickup truck, Margaret A. Minch, 35, Markleysburg, Pa., was not injured.

No charges have been filed at this point.

State police troopers also investigated a single-vehicle mishap that occurred Saturday afternoon along westbound I-68 west of Keyser's Ridge that injured two passengers. The driver was charged in the 3:32 p.m. crash.

Roderick Brown, 39, Bowie, was operating a 2001 Toyota Camry westbound west of Pigs Ear Road when he reportedly fell asleep at the wheel. He woke up as the vehicle began to drift out of its lane, and allegedly overcorrected his steering to cause the car to spin around and slide backwards into a culvert, guardrail, and sign support pole.

Brown's passengers, Linda Kane, 54, and Nathan Kane, 19, both of Washington, D.C., were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

Brown was charged with negligent driving.

Compromise Is Essential...

The 2005 Maryland General Assembly is now under way, and if the result of last month's special session, plus the behavior and words of rancor that accompanied the opening of the regular session, are any indication, it's going to be a long, rough 90 days, wracked with partisanship.

The special session yielded a bill addressing the current medical malpractice situation in Maryland. The bill was passed, then vetoed by Governor Ehrlich, then approved via an override of the veto.

Then rankling the Republicans in the House of Delegates was the re-election of Michael Busch as speaker, a balloting in which all Republicans abstained. According to Minority Leader George Edwards, Busch has "repeatedly contradicted the oath he once again swore today 'to act without partiality or prejudice.' Speaker Busch has acted in a manner inconsistent with the traditions and rules of this body. He has cut off debate on important pieces of legislation and silenced the voices of dissent in Annapolis. His use of power and privilege does not serve the best interests of the people of Maryland." Wow.

None of this bodes well for finding solutions to Maryland's many problems, particularly in the area of desperately needed tort reform and reducing the deficit that Gov. Ehrlich inherited.

One bright spot in the malpractice crisis, though, is that the attention of our elected officials was won by voters and those in the health care business, a special session was called, and some action was taken. At least it's a start, a step in the right direction, albeit not the one wanted by the governor, who will introduce further legislation to address the crisis within the next few weeks.

We can only hope that those in office will be able to set aside their major differences and agree to compromise on many crucial issues, because without that, the session will be a supreme exercise in futility and a total waste of taxpayers' money.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The proposal to construct wind turbines on backbone mountain to help solve our energy needs is insane, to say the least.

According to a study by the National Academy of Scientists, it would take at least 3,000 of these wind towers to equal the power produced by your average sized power plant; and the plant at Mt. Storm is not your typical sized plant (larger than most). Also, to produce that much energy in a single day, the wind would have to be a sustained wind.

I think we can find better ways to solve our energy needs other than dot the landscape with hundreds of towers. One of these ways is something called the atom.

Joseph Petrone
Berryville, Va.

To the Editor:

Many interesting thoughts and views were shared in the editorial pages of Jan. 6, 2005. These prompted some thoughts and ideas of my own. I actually consider the idea and sight of wind farms as a plus to the community. They are more attractive to me than the opulent homes that poke up along the now barren ridge tops expressing the insensitive power of a few. The almost graceful wind turbines could say something much more positive about our community – that we care about the health of our surroundings – the air, the streams, the fish, and all wildlife. Retraining for new jobs would show that we care about the health of those folks who live and work here. Let the wealthy tourist decide to come here, or not, after they see that we are determined to do what we can to improve our environment through progress and change.

And, once again, Mr. Calhoun has set the record straight on Iraq – that tragic manmade disaster. Where are the TV pictures of the Iraqi dead and maimed – innocent civilians, men, women and children? Where is the truthful coverage of their destroyed bodies, bombed homes, shattered lives? The editorial notes the need for caring, giving compassion for those lives shattered by the natural disaster. But, when are we going to be asked to ever address the reality of the thousands upon thousands of innocents destroyed by this needless, chosen act of war? We have no reason to be proud of our generosity as Americans as long as we stay in denial and turn our backs on the dead and destroyed in Iraq and Darfur.

I hope that Pastor Hagedorn will encourage his "Repent America" friends to stop preaching to peaceful homosexuals and carry their banners and biblical messages to an administration that is leading us on a sorrowful path to guilt and shame. Another "Trail of Tears."

Sincerely,
Cynthia Knight
Grantsville

To the Editor:

Those like Phil Malone who extol the virtues of wind power should consult the history of "renewable" energy. Timber? An idea come and now mostly gone, as are the trees. Hydroelectric? This, of course, was the twentieth century poster child for "green" energy. But nobody's building this anymore, and many facilities are now being dismantled at taxpayer expense. These dams do generate a lot of electricity, but they are environmentally destructive. Into the breech comes wind power, and its supporters are making claims reminiscent of those for hydro-electric a hundred years ago–clean, safe for wildlife, helpful to property values–and renewable. Here we go again...But wind generates so little electricity that we won't notice a difference in our lives, except in more costly utility bills and dirtier air.

If in fact the two proposed wind "farms" in Garrett County were to provide all of us with substantial power, perhaps I might reconsider my opposition. However, when the wind stops blowing and the power goes out-what then? Why, it will be coal-fired back-up! Keep in mind, wind power can't be stored. Even augmenting peak demand in the summer months is something these big wind machines can't do, for summer is a time when the wind blows least. Why not redirect the tax credits for wind to incentive credits for coal to use cleaner burning, more efficient equipment? At least coal produces a product.

We all want business in Garrett County that will remain for generations. But this is not a likely circumstance for the wind industry. As they have out west, windplants will exhaust their tax sheltering schemes in five or six years, and then be abandoned by their corporate overseers from their post office boxes in Bermuda.

Why should we let remote wind investors and downstate politicians exploit our beautiful mountains? How many times have the leaders down east made us a target for their benefit-- with no benefit to us? Or made rules for us, only to break them for their own self-interest? To accommodate the wind industry, we basically will be selling out our rural residents, who, according to statistics, constitute 76.1% of the county. So more than ¾ of the county will suffer if a few wind developers get their way.

We are clearly the rural minority in this state–and the path of least political resistance, with empty promises our political leaders have accepted as gospel. For shame.

To the Editor:

Most folks around here don't write letters to the newspaper. They still, however, deserve to be represented fairly by our elected officials.

Our commissioners need to have the fortitude to resist the pressure that is being put on them to take away at least some of our private property rights forever.

Many of the recent letters try to touch on what is actually only the writer's concept of how much power government has over citizens who own property in this country. I have yet to read one that can dispute these facts.

There are 50 states plus thousands of counties and municipalities across this nation. Almost all of these areas exercise different amounts of control over their residents' behavior and rights, based on their local laws and ordinances. These have been written and enacted over the years by the people who are supposed to represent the will and approval of a majority of the citizens that these statutes shall affect and govern.

After they read this and understand it, the next thing they need to know is that this area is probably very different in this regard than where they may have lived before. In other, more urban areas, laws have been in effect for many decades that require property owners to submit to many controls and restrictions, while here in much of Garrett County and most of the surrounding areas in West Virginia, these kinds of laws have never existed since the United States was formed!

Judging by their letters, however, some people take for granted that these laws exist everywhere and should be embraced by all of us. To them I say, please do not make that mistake here, because nothing could be further from the truth!

In closing, let me say that a few have tried, but no one has ever been elected to public office here by telling the voters that what they need is more government regulation in their lives. I'm convinced that it is still the "third rail" of politics in our country, and I'd like to think that our present board of commissioners understands that also.

To the Editor:

The inaugural Wisp concert, John Hammond, was a classic performance from a second generation, true to form blues man who might alone be responsible for keeping the genre alive!

It is wonderful to see that Wisp is attempting to bring contemporary music to the Deep Creek area. I hope more people plan to attend these free Saturday evening concerts over the next few months. Thanks, Wisp, and good luck. There is no reason that Wisp should not be able to rival Seven Springs as a great music venue.

We need better quality music entertainment in the area. Bring on Dave Mason, the Fabulous Thunderbirds, Charlie Daniels, or a number of other affordable national music acts. I'll be the first in line to buy tickets.

Larry Gerson
Oakland/Pittsburgh

Dear Mr. Gerson,

Yes, Wisp's new concert series is a fine addition to the entertainment on the mountaintop. In your search for "better quality music entertainment in the area," however, we invite you to check out the many and varied musical offerings that do exist in Garrett County, and have for years.

The Little Yough Music Series in Oakland is one such event, held every summer, free to the public, and featuring several of the artists who will also appear at Wisp this winter. There is the annual Music on the Mountain in August for fans of classical, symphonic music, and Music at Penn Alps in Grantsville, which offers a summer-long series of recitals and concerts. The Garrett Choral Society is quite active year around.

We have several instrumental bands, such as the Accident Town Band and Garrett Community Band, as well as groups like Smith & Roberts and The Remedy, to name a few. And, finally, several area eating establishments, like as Cornish Manor, The Inn at Point View, and the Purple Fiddle in nearby W.Va., among others, also host weekly musical guests of great talent. So you see, music is a tradition here on the mountaintop, and we hope you may experience more of it.

View from My Window

PARIS THE BEAUTIFUL – I

Beauty is a first principle of French life. To be French is to prefer one beautiful thing to many not beautiful things.

At one of my favorite restaurants the generous serving of pot roast is arranged in a bowl like a painter's model. A bed of beef underlies the whole cosmos. Carrots, potatoes, and turnips are half-submerged in a sea of broth. The marrow bone juts upward from that sea like a volcanic island.

Sometimes the visual presentation on the plate becomes so important in French restaurants that the exigencies of the stomach are forgotten. "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God (St. Matthew 4:4)." Even if some of the French have forgotten the second half of that word, they have not yet forgotten the first half. They seek to satiate the hunger of their souls with beauty.

The French even sacrifice truth on the altar of beauty. One of my fellow students, a lovely young Frenchwoman, confessed to me that even when the French know English fairly well they are afraid to speak it for fear that their French accents will make it ugly.

I asked her if, for the same reason, I should be hesitant to speak French with my American accent. She then told a splendid fib without hesitation and with complete assurance: "No, because when Americans speak French, the accent is beautiful." The beauty of politeness is situated in the French soul just where an Anglo-Celtic American, like myself, looks for honesty.

I replied, that English spoken by the French was just as beautiful as French spoken by Americans. I have not yet penetrated far enough into French psychology to know if she took this as a joke or as some more serious locution. In any case, we spoke English until we descended from the commuter train to go our separate ways.

There are exceptions to the rule of beauty. The campus of my university at Nanterre, a western suburb of Paris, is one. The architect made a bold attempt at cheerful ugliness, and he was half successful. The buildings and the campus plan synthesize the styles of Soviet architecture and Epcot at Disney World. I am glad that such a thing was done once as an example of what should not be repeated.

Anyone who has surveyed the urban outskirts from atop a Parisian pinnacle-the towers of Eiffel and Montparnasse, and the Church of the Sacred Heart come to mind-has observed a perimeter of apartment buildings which if not ugly are, at least, not beautiful.

Peter Mayle, who has written several books on French life and culture, replies to those who say that French cooking is not as good as it was thirty years ago (a sad fact to which I can add my own evidence).

He asserts that the question is not if French food is as good as it used to be, rather is it still consistently better than what you can find anywhere else. To his reformulated question he answers emphatically in the affirmative, an opinion also consistent with my own experience. The same can be said for the French love of beauty: perhaps it is not as potent as it once was; it is just more potent than in any other country.

Certain Parisian innovations are ugly or, at least, are not beautiful, but Paris and the French insistence on beauty remain monumental in the global landscape.

At the same time, not all that is modern in Paris succeeds at ugliness. The Montparnasse Tower, for example, was built for the last quarter of the twentieth century. Black, sleek and an oblong indented on either end, the tower thrusts upward like the obelisk in Place de la Concorde, the gothic arches of Notre Dame Cathedral, and the swiftly mounting ascendancy of the Eiffel Tower.

In fact, seen from the Eiffel Tower one understands better both the contrast and the complementarity of the Montparnasse Tower. The two were built nearly a century apart, but also serve as bookends to an age. It was an age in which humans thought they could do literally anything.

Each tower, in its way, points beyond itself and beyond the human confidence which created it. One of the inevitabilities of Paris is that all its beauty points toward God.

That fact is all the more poignant because it is a reality often unwitted and unwilled.

To be continued next week.

Stalking Awareness Month

Editor's note: The Dove Center, Garrett County's domestic abuse shelter, has provided the following information for release during January, National Stalking Awareness Month.

by Victoria Thomas
The Dove Center

In continuance with providing information on stalking awareness and intervention, this week's article is geared toward explaining some of the characteristics of stalkers and methods they can use to prey on their victims.

There are three types of stalkers. The most common type is the simple obsessional stalker. This stalker has had some prior relationship with the victim, whether intimate or cordial. Most simple obsession stalking cases take place in the context of domestic violence. Research shows that 38% of female stalking victims were stalked by current or former husbands, 10% by current or former cohabiting partners, and 14% percent by current or former dates or boyfriends (National Office for Crime Victims).

The second type of stalker is known as a love obsessional stalker. This stalker has had no prior relationship with the victim, but believes to be in love with the victim. This stalker mounts a campaign of harassment to make the victim aware of his/her existence. Stalkers of this nature target celebrities or high-profile victims. Research shows only 23% of female victims and 36% of male stalking victims were stalked by strangers (National Office for Crime Victims).

The third type is the rarest category of stalkers. They are known as erotomanic stalkers. This stalker delusionally believes that he/she is loved by the victim, but some external influences are keeping them from being together (National Stalking Resource Center).

All three types of stalkers may exhibit similar behaviors, including, but not limited to:

* sending you unwanted gifts, letters, e-mails
* following you or showing up wherever you go
* driving by or hanging out around your home, work place, and other relatives' homes
* damaging your home, car, or other property
* making threatening phone calls, repeated calls, and hang-up calls.

Other similarities that stalkers share are jealousy, manipulation, and deceptiveness. They have a need to control others. Usually a stalker views his/her problems as someone else's fault.

Stalking is never the victim's fault. The person doing the stalking is responsible for her/his own behavior. For more information, please contact the Dove Center at 301-334-9000 or 301-334-6255.

Assembly To Continue To Work On Medical Malpractice Reforms

By Ryan Basen
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Saying the medical malpractice bill reinstated Tuesday by the Maryland General Assembly won't permanently fix the state's health care system, Gov. Robert Ehrlich will introduce a new health reform bill during the annual legislative session that began Wednesday.

Shareese DeLeaver, Ehrlich's spokeswoman, called Tuesday's reinstatement of the bill "a lost opportunity for the Legislature to enact both short- and long-term legislation."

Ehrlich vetoed the bill, crafted in a special session last month, saying it didn't provide enough tort reform and created a new tax he opposed.

Legislators agreed that they still have a lot of work to do during the 90-day session to counter the state's health care problems. Even those who voted for the new malpractice bill, which eked a supermajority out of both chambers, admitted it is not ideal.

The bill will cap increases on malpractice insurance costs for doctors at 5 percent, using a fund from a new 2 percent HMO tax. In addition, the bill lowers caps on pain-and-suffering damages, requires new certification for expert witnesses at trials and provides an alternate dispute resolution method.

Ehrlich's fellow Republicans agree the new bill needs significant changes.

House Deputy Minority Whip Michael D. Smigiel, R-Cecil, suggested an audit of the amount in the reserve fund created by the bill to handle insurance claims.

Besides creating a new tax, Smigiel said, the bill only "gives the appearance of having done something . . . It's really doing nothing."

Delegate Nathaniel T. Oaks, D-Baltimore, who voted to reinstate the bill, said he was "not necessarily" happy with it. He voted for it, he said, because it was the best plan the General Assembly could devise during the one-week special session Ehrlich called in December.

"There are a lot of flaws in the legislation," Oaks said. But "we had to salvage something . . . I think what we did was a temporary solution. I don't think it was a long-term solution."

Delegate Darryl A. Kelley, D-Prince George's, understood charges by Republicans that the bill is not comprehensive enough to fix the health care system. Because the bill should keep many more doctors practicing in the state, though, he believes it is an acceptable solution to Maryland's health care crisis.

"I think it will help the citizens of the state receive more health care," Kelley said. "I think we did the best we could in the short time we had. It's unfortunate that the governor didn't come along on this issue."

With three months to work on malpractice issues instead of just one week, though, Kelley expects to see numerous reform attempts.

"I don't know if they'll be successful," he said. But "throughout the session we'll have more time to study some of the other issues."

Md. General Assembly Convenes With Hopes For Eased Dissension

by Sarah Abruzzese
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The Maryland General Assembly opened for business Wednesday, with a call for an end to the dissension that tainted last year's session, but the convening came just a day after the 2004 session closed with a rebuff of the governor's malpractice veto.

Dignitaries, family members, the press, and other interested Marylanders thronged the two houses for the first day of the 419th assembly session. But even the small points of tradition were met with controversy.

House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel, was sworn in after a roll call vote notable for some GOP delegates voting "nay" to his appointment. He won 93 of the 129 delegates, and Busch joked just for the record, if he had to vote, he would have voted green (for himself).

Delegate Tony McConkey, R-Anne Arundel, held his 10-month-old son, George, through the opening session. McConkey said the baby talked through the meeting and was still laughing afterwards. George's father shared the same upbeat attitude.

"(Over the) next two weeks, things will calm down and we'll all get to work," McConkey said. "Time heals all wounds."

The outlook for the session from Delegate Kevin Kelly, D-Allegany, wasn't as positive.

"I am very apprehensive about it. I think we are going to have a very partisan and divisive session," he said. "I think we need to work together in a spirit of bipartisanship and I don't think you'll see any of that this session. I think it is detrimental to the citizenry."

Gov. Robert Ehrlich addressed the Senate, asking members to embrace "power-sharing" between the parties, but hinted that he would not run away from a fight.

"It's a good thing to have a good, public, transparent debate," he said. "It's not always a good thing always to go along to get along and pretend you agree when you do not."

Ehrlich didn't stop by the House. Delegate William A. Bronrott, D-Montgomery, said it was the first time in his recollection that Ehrlich had not appeared to wish the House well.

When speaking with reporters about their absence from the House, Lt. Gov. Michael S. Steele said, "Go ask the Speaker. He is the one who is supposed to extend the invitation. I can't speak to an invitation I didn't get. . . . We received one from the Senate. The governor was there, he spoke. . . . I think it was a ceremonial snafu."

Busch Chief of Staff Tom Lewis said it is normal for a governor and lieutenant governor to attend, but they have skipped the opening in the past. Protocol, he said, has always had it that if the governor wants to come he calls and does so.

Lewis said seats were reserved for both dignitaries. He added that he didn't think their absence was a big deal, but that (members) were surprised they weren't there.

Shareese DeLeaver, the governor's press secretary, said protocol calls for the governor to be invited.

"He was not invited," she said. "It didn't ruin his day or anything."

Republicans See Veto Votes As Dems' Disrespect Of Gov.

by Sarah Lesher
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The Maryland General Assembly voted Tuesday to override a record number of bills vetoed during the regular session by Gov. Robert Ehrlich Jr., causing Republican members to complain that the Democratic majority was deliberately disrespecting him.

Although both the governor and Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr. made conciliatory statements about working together this session, Sen. Richard P. Colburn, R-Dorchester, said it was going to be difficult for the body to recover from this partisan beginning.

"Yesterday was set aside as a day to embarrass the governor. We want to start off the new year, the new session, in a congenial setting. Then they set up to embarrass the governor by overriding three major vetoes. They set the mood," Colburn said. "Are we going to recover from that? Yes."

But, Colburn said, it's going to be difficult, and he's not the only member of the GOP with that thought.

"Veto overrides have become a spectator sport in Annapolis," said Sen. E. J. Pipkin, R-Queen Anne's. According to the Department of Legislative Services, the eight veto overrides was a record for the period since 1969.

"It sets the tone for the next 90 days," Pipkin said. "It's not insurmountable, but it casts a shadow. Ideas triumph over politics. Hope springs eternal."

"We're a two-party state now. We're going to have friendly disagreements," said House Majority Leader Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery.

Barve said that if he sponsors a bill that one of his closest friends, Delegate Michael R. Gordon, D-Montgomery, hates, Gordon will try to defeat it.

"But at the end of the day he and I will be drinking together at the Maryland Inn," Barve said.

But the tone of the session was set long before opening day, said Sen. Larry Haines, R-Carroll. While the governor was testifying before the special Senate committee on medical malpractice, on which he served, Haines said, one of the Democrats on the committee asked the governor several pointedly snide questions.

Haines said he thinks some of the Senate Democrats voted against their conscience to override the veto of the medical malpractice bill.

"I was pleading, 'We can't give up on this issue. We have to continue to work on a legal resolution.'" But the president held his party together on the vote, Haines said.

"You go to school, you fail, you go back another year, you get a passing grade," Haines said. "We've got to go back and get real reform."

Delegate Anthony J. O'Donnell, R-Calvert, said that the House was supposed to convene at 2:30 p.m. but the session was delayed for over an hour so that a delegate could be shuttled in from an airport in New Jersey to be the 85th vote to override the medical malpractice legislation veto.

He pointed out that not a single veto by former Democratic Gov. Parris N. Glendening was overridden in eight years.

"I think they're picking partisan points. They've been doing petty things, like moving people's seats around."

O'Donnell, minority whip, was moved from a front row seat next to Minority Leader George C. Edwards, R-Garrett, to a back row after he challenged House Speaker Michael E. Busch's (D-Anne Arundel) speakership.

"They're stifling the voice of the minority. They don't respect differences of opinion — they cut off debate," and he went on to explain that the debate had taken considerably less time than the wait for the 85th vote.

"We represent the vote of many of the people," O'Donnell said.

Sen. Jennie M. Forehand, D-Montgomery, said that there was absolutely no disrespect to the governor in the overrides of his vetoes. "My veto and everyone else's were based on policy. He degraded himself by vetoing good things for political purposes," she said.

General Assembly Votes To Override Ehrlich's Malpractice Reforms Veto

Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Doctors could get quick relief from medical malpractice insurance costs with the Maryland General Assembly's vote late Tuesday to override the governor's veto of a special liability reform bill.

The Senate voted 31-15 to overturn the one-day-old veto of the bill by Gov. Robert Ehrlich, who opposed its creation of a 2 percent HMO tax to provide funds to buy down doctors' premiums, which rose 33 percent at the beginning of the month.

The House of Delegates narrowly voted earlier Tuesday to reinstate the bill. The House needed — and got — exactly 85 votes. Another 50 delegates supported the governor's veto. Two delegates did not vote and four were absent.

"We're getting there, but more needs to be done," said Hagerstown physician Karl P. Riggle, who attended Tuesday evening's session as part of the lobbying group Save Our Doctors. "Our group definitely backs the need for stronger tort reform."

Ehrlich also rejected the legislation, which was created in an unusual special session in late December, because it failed to put sufficient curbs on lawsuits and lawyers.

The bill calls for alternative dispute resolution, reducing limits on non-financial damages sought, increasing scrutiny for certification on qualified experts in cases, and establishing a People's Insurance Counsel Division in the Office of the Attorney General, among other things.

Ehrlich's spokesmen could not be reached for comment; however, his fellow legislative Republicans were upset at the override.

Delegate Addie Eckhardt, R-Dorchester, charged that passing the bill "is not being fiscally responsible."

Other delegates claimed the bill would pass malpractice costs onto consumers and provide only a short-term fix of the health care system.

"This bill simply rearranges deck chairs on the Titanic," said Delegate Herbert McMillan, R-Anne Arundel. "We have to do better than this . . . . Government must solve problems, not subsidize them."

The bill isn't short term and opponents are being short-sighted, said many Democratic delegates. Delegate Luiz Simmons, D-Montgomery, called the GOP attitude a "chicken little" mentality.

It's possible lawmakers and the governor will continue working on malpractice reforms during the General Assembly, which convened for its 2005 90-day session this week.

"This is a flawed bill," Simmons said, "but it's a good bill. It's the best bill that can be arranged under these circumstances."

Delegate John Adams Hurson, D-Montgomery, disagreed consumers would bear the costs of the HMO tax, citing a study showing employees with medical plans would only have to pay an increase of 39 cents each month under the Assembly's new malpractice plan.

"Since we had to get something done quickly," Hurson said, "we did the best job we could."

The House voted to override several other Ehrlich vetoes of bills passed in the regular 2004 session. The Senate was still deliberating its votes on the same bills late Tuesday.

Treatment for Oral Thrush in Adults

One of the organisms found in the mouth is a fungus yeast called candida albicans. An overgrowth of this yeast causes a condition called oral thrush. Symptoms include painful, creamy white ulcers that have a cottage cheese appearance on the tongue and/or inside the mouth. Uncontrolled overgrowth of oral yeast may result from hormonal changes that accompany pregnancy, uncontrolled diabetes, long term steroid use and changes in the makeup of organisms in the mouth due to antibiotic use. Sometimes oral thrush lesions cause enough discomfort to interfere with eating. If the infection is not treated in adults, it can spread to the esophagus, joints, brain, the eyes, or the heart.

The best approach to oral thrush is prevention through the proper management of diabetes and other situations that have a tendency to bring on yeast overgrowth. Topical and systemic antifungal drugs such as nystatin, miconazole, or amphotericin are sometimes prescribed. The normal course of treatment is usually 10-14 days unless resistance to these drugs becomes a problem. Some physicians also recommend restoring the normal organism makeup of the mouth and easing the condition by having the person eat unsweetened yogurt or take a product called acidophilus in the form of a liquid or capsules.

Officials Offering Reward In Sign Vandalism Cases

The Garrett County commissioners are offering a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons vandalizing or stealing county road signs.

General superintendent Fred Polce, Garrett County Roads Department, told the officials this week that more than $5,000 worth of damage to and thefts of signs had taken place between June 2004 and the end of November 2004. In November alone, $1,127 worth of thefts and damaged occurred.

"It runs it spurts," Polce said about the vandalism. Currently, most of it is occurring in the Grantsville area. "It's not just one road," he added. "It's all the roads."

Between June and September a total of 101 road name signs, four end-of-county maintenance signs, and seven stop signs were stolen or destroyed, according to a report that the Roads Department filed with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. The average cost of a sign is $35.

Several speed limit, bridge, curve, and yield signs, as well as numerous road name signs were also stolen in November.

The Sheriff's Office is actively pursuing the crimes, Polce said.

The general superintendent noted that his department had raised the height of signs from 6 to 10 feet, but this did not seem to deter any thefts. In fact, some thieves are also stealing the posts holding the signs, increasing the loss to the county even more. Road crews are also spending valuable time repairing and replacing the signs.

Following Polce's report, Commissioner Ernie Gregg suggested establishing a reward for information on the persons stealing or vandalizing signs. Commissioners Fred Holliday and Dave Beard supported the idea.

The officials said paying the reward would be well worth it, given the thousands of dollars that the county is losing in fixing and replacing signs.

Polce also noted that District Court judge Ralph Burnett recently sentenced two youths for sign vandalism. The youths had to spend last summer working at a Garrett County Roads Department garage, performing tasks such as painting snow plows.

To report vandalism or theft of signs, persons may call the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911 or the Roads Department at 301-334-3988.

Three Charged For Passing Counterfeit Bills

Three men were charged in connection with passing counterfeit money at three different locations in Garrett County, according to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation.

An investigation initiated on Dec. 3 revealed that the three suspects, who were all students at Garrett College, allegedly passed counterfeit $10 bills.

Bernardo Rafawl Diaz Jr., 19, McHenry, was charged with three counts of uttering forged currency and two counts of misdemeanor theft, and Danyel Armando Arenas, 21, McHenry, was charged with three counts of uttering forged currently and three counts of misdemeanor theft. Both were arrested on warrants on Dec. 7 and released after posting bond.

Adam James Morgan, 20, Cumberland, was charged with one count of uttering forged currency and one count of misdemeanor theft. He was not arrested, but charged on a criminal summons on Dec. 13. He was called at home by police and came in on his own, police said.

Nature Connection

by Liz McDowell & Ron Boyer

As you sort through papers at your desk, you occasionally stare out the window wondering just where is winter. The sky is dark and a cold rain has been falling for what seems like forever. The matted leaves on the ground look like old, wet cardboard. There doesn't seem to be a bright spot anywhere in the landscape. You reluctantly return to your paperwork, and moments later hear a "thunk" against the window. You jump up and dash outside. There on the deck lays a tiny bundle of feathers. You pick it up, gently cupping it in your hands. The impact has stunned it, but in less than a minute you can feel it start to revive. Its delicate toes tightly grasp your fingers. It looks at you, wide-eyed, seeming to ask if it's your next meal. Not wanting to find out, it suddenly flies off. Perched on a nearby branch, it stares back at you calling, chick-a-dee-dee-dee-dee. You've just experienced the magic of holding a black-capped chickadee in your hands. This snowless winter doesn't seem so bleak after all.

The black-capped chickadee, Poecile atricapilla, is a member of the Paridae family. Its deep, black crown and throat contrast strikingly with its white face. The adult weighs less than half an ounce, and is just over 5 inches in length. Black-capped chickadees are year-round residents of Garrett County. They're typically found in mixed deciduous and coniferous forests and thickets. In the winter they commonly visit backyard feeders to feast on black-oil sunflower seeds and suet. In the summer they primarily feed on insects, coniferous seeds and fruit. Black-capped chickadees are a very inquisitive species. When encountered in the wild, it's not unusual to have them perch nearby for a closer look. In fact, very patient humans are even able to entice chickadees to feed out of their hands.

Like the tufted titmouse, a related local species, black-capped chickadees are cavity-nesting birds. When natural tree cavities aren't available they will use bird boxes to raise their young. Cavities are also crucial to chickadee survival on cold winter nights. They are reported to use any tight cranny, including den holes, nest boxes, and dense coniferous vegetation for shelter. By significantly lowering their body temperature and using such shelter each night, these densely feathered birds are able to conserve energy and survive the cold until they can feed again.

An easy way to learn more about black-capped chickadees and other birds is to invite them to your backyard for dinner during the winter, so that you can observe them up-close. An inexpensive pair of binoculars and Peterson Field Guide will aid you in identifying the species that visit. Just be sure to keep your feathered friends safe from disease by cleaning feeders and birdbaths regularly with hot water, and safe from predators by positioning them properly. For more information on creating safe bird habitat in your backyard visit the National Wildlife Federation website at www.nwf.org/backyardwildlifehabitat/tipsandprojects. To share your feeder observations in a national database consider volunteering for Cornell's Project Feeder Watch at www.birds.cornell.edu/pfw. Or help with the local mid-winter Garrett County bird count by contacting Caroline Blizzard at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center at CBLIZZARD@dnr.state.md.us.

Reports from the Field:

Fran Pope of Mountain Lake Park has reported the first ever Cackling Goose in Garrett County on Broadford Lake. Any other sightings of this somewhat smaller version of a Canada Goose should be sent to Caroline Blizzard at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center.

If you'd like to share your Garrett County nature sightings or if you have questions about the plants and animals that you've observed, e-mail Liz & Ron at info@elkridgenatureworks.com

Casino Benefit Set For Tsunami Victims' Relief

The Deep Creek Lake Lions Club will host a "Las Vegas Night" benefit for victims of last month's tsunami starting at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 15, at the Red Run Lodge. The local club will donate half the proceeds from the casino-themed event to the tsunami relief effort through the Lions Clubs International Foundation.

"Lions Clubs International has been providing much needed help," a DCL Lions Club spokesperson said, "not only monetary, but also with cleanup efforts and medical and personal needs."

For further information, persons may call the Red Run Lodge at 301-387-2626.

Textbooks For Approval Now On Display

Copies of foreign language textbooks being considered for approval by the Garrett County Board of Education have been placed on display at the board office. The textbooks being considered are Spanish (levels I through III) and French (levels I through III).

Members of the community are welcome to review and comment on these texts. Texts will be available weekdays between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. now through Monday, Feb. 7.

Named To Dean's List At Fairmont

Garrett County resident Andrew J. Feather has been named to the fall semester dean's list at Fairmont State University in West Virginia, where the freshman is majoring in architectural engineering. A student must earn a 3.4 grade point average or better to be named to the dean's list.

A 2003 graduate of Southern High School, Andrew is the son of Teresa and Kenneth Feather, Oakland.

Board Of Ed. Approves Two New Employees

Two new employees were approved by the Garrett County Board of Education at this week's monthly meeting.

James E. Thomas will serve as the director of facilities, maintenance, and operations. He holds a master of business administration degree from Frostburg State University and a bachelor of science degree in industrial technology from Roger Williams University.

Most recently, he was the project engineer for the Garrett County Department of Public Utilities, and has served in several facilities-related capacities at Frostburg State and the University of Maryland. He and his wife reside in McHenry.

Also approved for hire was Michele Hanek, part-time cafeteria worker at Northern High School.

WMAHEC Seeks Candidates For Worker of Year

The Allegany/Garrett Social Work Caucus of the Western Maryland Area Health Education Center (WMAHEC) is seeking nominations for an outstanding social worker to be presented the Social Worker of the Year Award.

JoAnn Fletcher, community program coordinator, noted, "March is Social Work Month, a time when social workers formally observe the profession's unique role in society."

Nominees must be licensed social workers in the state of Maryland, have made specific, outstanding contributions to the profession, display leadership in the profession, have earned the respect of fellow social workers, represent the professional ethics of social work, practice in Allegany or Garrett county, and, preferably, be a current caucus member.

The award will be presented at the caucus's annual social work luncheon on March 28, which will feature guest speaker Dr. Jack Zealand.

To request a nomination form or obtain details about the luncheon, persons may contact Jackie Booth at WMAHEC, telephone 301-777-9150, ext. 117, or via e-mail at jbooth@allconet.org, or Anita Rozas at 301-729-7246, ahartmanrozas@dpscs.state.md.us.

All nominations should be received by WMAHEC no later than Feb. 25.

AURORA/EGLON

BREAKFAST BRUNCH AT AURORA VFD

A monthly breakfast is being served at the Aurora fire hall this Sunday, Jan. 16, with serving beginning at 8 a.m. and continuing through 1 p.m. Buckwheat cakes and pancakes, biscuits, sausage and sausage gravy, and home fries are included on the menu. Donations of $6 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under are asked.

COOKIE DRIVE

The Aurora Girl Scout Troop 4139 will be taking orders for cookies until Jan. 27. Varieties include thin mints, Samoas, lemon coolers, double Dutch, do-si-dos, truffles, and all-abouts. Persons may call Carla Watring at 735-3354 or Barbara Snyder at 735-5769 to place an order. Order forms are available at local businesses throughout the district and at post offices.

BIRTHDAY CALENDARS

The Aurora Youth League has announced that the community birthday calendars have not yet been received from the printer, but reportedly will arrive soon.

VFD DONATIONS

Mountain Grove VFD acknowledges the following for recent donations: Richard Riggins, Pauline Weaver, Judy Shaffer, Norma Crawford, Gerald Lipscomb, Weir Roth, FOE of Davis, Miners and Merchants Bank, and Sam and Helen Roth in memory of Joe and Ruth Luizzi.

The following recent donations to the Aurora VFD include: George Alan and Helen Lipsoomb, Pauline Weaver, Miners and Merchants Bank, Marjorie Donham, and Sheila Meiman.

TEETS RECOGNIZED

Lorrayne Teets, formerly of Aurora, has been named Resident of the Month for January at Heartland of Preston County in Kingwood. Mrs. Teets was born in Tunnelton, but has lived her 91-plus years in Preston County. Married to Dayton Teets, she came to Aurora, where she cared for his two children as her own, then had three herself – Joyce, Wendell, and Mike. She was Aurora postmaster for nine years, and also taught school. Activities included teaching Sunday School for 2S years, being active in United Methodist Women, and she was also a member of the Extension Homemakers.

At Heartland, Mrs. Teets keeps busy making her rounds up and down the hallways to say "hello" to friends there. She likes making phone calls to family and friends outside Heartland and looks forward to using son Mike's cell phone when he visits. She recently (in November) suffered a fractured hip but has reportedly recuperated well.

Her hobbies outside of Heartland were reading and crocheting. She also attends most of the activities there: music, cooking, parties, crafts, and church.

Locally, daughter Lois Adams and husband Tom live at Aurora. During her time in this community, she was active in the school activities.

PIANO SOUGHT

The Aurora School is looking for a piano in need of a home. Since the opening of the new school there has been a need for a piano to use in music classes and for special events held in the all-purpose room. So, persons who have a spinet-type piano (must be easy to move) that they might like to donate may contact the Aurora School at 735-3781.

PERSONAL MENTION

Sheridan and Nina Layman of Aurora received word of the Jan. 3 death of his sister, Neva B. Kincaid, of Flatwoods, Ky. She had been recovering from a hip fracture and repair, and death was reportedly unexpected. Mrs. Kincaid was a patient in King's Daughters Medical Center at Ashland, Ky., at the time of her death. She was born Aug. 30, 1902, at Bayard. In addition to Sheridan, she is survived by two brothers. Her husband, Russell B. "Mose" Kincaid, preceded her in death, as did four brothers and three sisters. Graveside services were held at the Bellefonte Memorial Gardens in Flatwoods on Jan. 8.

Stephanie Ludle of Aurora, wife of Pastor Michael Ludle, was taken Sunday morning to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Donnie Frantz has gone with his Alaska-based Air Force unit to Thailand, where they are assisting with tsunami relief efforts. He is the son of Don and Neva Frantz, Eglon.

Camp Dawson Hosting Business After Hours Event

The Preston County Chamber of Commerce will hold its first Business After Hours event for the new year at Camp Dawson on Wednesday, Jan. 19, from 5:30 until 7 p.m. This event is cosponsored by BB&T.

"The Business After Hours offers the business community an informal atmosphere to get together with their fellow chamber members and talk about what's new in business around the county," said Kathy Casseday, the chamber's executive director.

Because of security at Camp Dawson, persons planning to attend the event are asked to call the chamber at 304-329-0576 on or before Wednesday, Jan. 19.

For more information, persons may call the number listed above or e-mail the chamber at prestoncoc-@labyrinth.net. They may also stop by the office, located along Main Street in Kingwood.

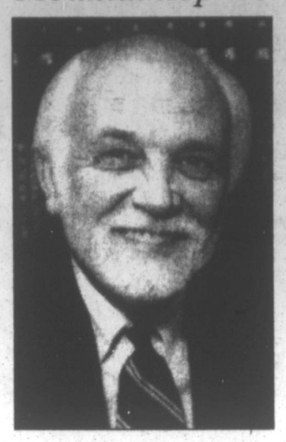
PC Caregiver Support Group Slates Meeting

The Preston County Caregiver Support Group will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 17, at Heartland of Preston County, 300 Miller Road, Kingwood. The one-hour regular monthly meeting will be facilitated by Dr. John Keefe, Melissa Groves, and Janie Lou White.

The discussion will address the stresses faced by a caregiver, including time management, sleep difficulties, dealing with impatience and/or irritability with a family member, and the feeling that no one can understand the experience of a caregiver.

Free supervision is available for loved ones during Preston County Caregiver Support Group meetings, which take place the third Monday of each month. For further information, persons may call 304-329-3195.

Steve Brown To Be Speaker At Mountaintop '05



Living for Christ Conferences has announced that highly sought-after speaker, Steve Brown, will be featured at its 19th annual getaway conference, Mountaintop 2005. This nonprofit, non-denominational weekend event for men and women will be held at Wilson Lodge, Oglebay, in Wheeling, W.Va., March 4-6.

According to Anne Robinson, co-founder of the conference and a native of Oakland, Steve Brown is a radio broadcaster, seminary professor, and author from Orlando. He served as a pastor for over 25 years and now devotes much of his time to the radio broadcast Key Life.

"With such varied experience and unique perspective on life, Mr. Brown is known for his refreshing and practical Biblical applications," Robinson said.

"He is committed to the teaching of biblical life principles—the whole counsel of God—to those who want to live an authentic, relevant, and balanced Christian life."

Brown says his teaching isn't for everyone. "If you want the Bible to be a 'book of rules,' if you think there is something unspiritual about laughter and dangerous about freedom, and if you define faithfulness as conformity to Christian stereotypes, then this getaway weekend is not for you," he said. "However, if you are interested in an honest, nonmanipulative, and thoughtful presentation of biblical truth presented in the context of Christ's unconditional love, this upcoming weekend may be for you. If you need to hear the hopeful truth that God isn't mad at you, Mountaintop is for you."

The conference, titled Born Free, will also include the teaching of Dr. Pete Alwinson, senior pastor of Willow Creek Church in Winter Springs, Fla.; the poignant drama of Peculiar People, Charlie and Ruth Jones from Franklin, Tenn.; and the music of singer/songwriter, humorist, and recording artist Buddy Greene from Brentwood, Tenn.

"Mountaintop is for folks who want to retreat from worldly pressures and demands, to regain much-needed strength and perspective with fellow believers," said Robinson, a resident of Wheeling. "Over the past 19 years, it has always been a life-changing weekend for attendees. That would explain the longevity of this ministry. Half of our people each year have been to Mountaintop at least once and many have attended five or 10 years, or more. The blessings of the weekend seem to draw folks back."

She added that Brown has been "at the top of our wish list" since 1992, when she first began contacting him. "Since he usually speaks at much larger venues, this is an amazing opportunity for the folks in our area to learn from a world-class speaker," she said.

Registration fees, including all programs, two nights' lodging, and four meals, begin at $215 per person (four to a room). "Early-bird" discount rates are in effect until January 15. Registration brochures and information are available through Living for Christ Conferences, 169 East Thistle Place, New Martinsville, WV 26155; by telephone at 304-455-5322; and on the web site: mountaintopconference.ora.

TERRA ALTA

LIBRARY NEWS

Terra Alta Public Library received a monetary donation from Terra Alta VFW Auxiliary. New juvenile books were purchased with this donation, and the books will be used for the READ-O program that will begin in February. The teachers and classes from Terra Alta/East Preston have been invited to participate in this.

Memorial books for Virginia "Ruth" Sines were given by Lucille Sines and family: "Birds of a Feather" by Jacqueline Winspear, "Buster Midnight's Café" by Sandra Dallas, "Hide Yourself Away" by Mary Jane Clark, "Polished Off" by Barbara Colley and "The Serpent's Trail" by Sue Henry. Also donated in memory of Ruth Sines were "The Body on the Beach" by Simon Brett and "A Fine and Bitter Snow" by Dana Stabenow, given by Ima Thomas. These were all large-print books.

The library has received a monetary donation as per the will of the estate of Helen R. McCarty. This will be used to purchase new books, periodicals, and reference materials.

Ray and Diane Zeller have given the library a Walt Disney character painting to be hung. This will be located near the easy reader and juvenile section.

Patrons recently donating books, periodicals, pamphlets, tapes, etc., have been: Hildegard May, Albert Ossman, Mary McLaughlin, Patricia Cramer, Liz Farris, Dottie Schwer, Lorrie MacArgle, Linda Testerman, Marion Clutter, Melanie Sterling, and John Wilhelm.

CLASSIC MUSICAL COMING TO FSU – Seven Brides for Seven Brothers is set for Sunday through Tuesday, Jan. 23-25, at Frostburg State University. A favorite of stage and screen for decades, the high-energy musical will be presented in a 3 p.m. Sunday matinee and 7:30 p.m. performances Monday and Tuesday in the FSU Performing Arts Center Drama Theatre. For further information, or to purchase tickets, persons may call the FSU Cultural Events Box Office at 301-687-3137 or toll free at 1-866-TIXX-CES.

an auditorium type seating facility like that of a performing arts center," he said.

Architectural firms with experience in constructing performing arts centers were requested to submit proposals for developing a floor plan, a case statement, and interior and exterior perspectives. After an architectural firm is selected and schematic design is completed, the board will begin raising funds for construction.

According to Hinebaugh, who is also director of Garrett County Department of Economic Development, it is important for the county to have such a facility in order to provide cultural activities that are important in both attracting and retaining businesses.

In a recent survey, 46 percent of business executives surveyed cited cultural opportunities as being very important in making site selection decisions.

A performing arts center in Garrett County has been a dream for as long as 20 years, for some members of GARRETT ARTWORK DISPLAYED IN ANNAPOLIS – The Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) recently installed a display of local artwork in the halls of the State House in Annapolis to call legislators' attention to the arts community in Garrett County and to the value of public funding support for local arts. The exhibit was transported to Annapolis and hung by Sue Arnson, GCAC president; Odette Lueck, vice president; and Tiddle Wheeler, board member. The exhibit will be on display outside the office of Delegate George Edwards throughout the 2005 spring legislative session. The display features original paintings and photography by Dolores Andrew, Sue Arnson, James Bowser, Guy Hinebaugh, Roger Lueck, Judy McCaughey, Jim McNeil, and Connie Stark. In the photo above Lueck gets ready to display another piece of artwork, while Wheeler assists. Pictured below, left to right, are Wheeler, Lueck, and Arnson.

by Jo Donaldson, GC Chamber of Commerce

A board of directors was elected late last month for the non-profit Garrett Performing Arts Center Inc. The group will help establish a proposed arts center that could be constructed beside the Exhibit Hall. That facility will be located off Rt. 219 near Deep Creek Lake.

Members of the new board include chairperson Bob Huebner, vice chairperson Charlie Ross, secretary Ernie Gregg, treasurer Lisa Thayer Welch, and executive committee member Wendell Teets. Other members of the board are Meg Ellis, Steve Herman, Jim Hinebaugh, Carol Perez, Ben Sincell, Paul Sprenger, Moe Turrentine, Fred Warther, Lucinda Williams, and Steve Willmann.

The board is in the process of seeking a 501c3 tax status and updating a 1999 feasibility study and market survey. Plans also are to establish a proposed operating budget and programming outline through five years.

The board contracted with Lucinda Williams – who served as Baltimore Symphony Orchestra vice president of artistic, education, and community programming and a veteran staff member of the orchestra for eight years – to serve as executive director of the center and as an adjunct staff member of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

She will be responsible for doing feasibility studies, construction and operational cost estimates and budgets, working with architects, and developing a strategy for raising capital funds. She will work with and report to the arts center board of directors and the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

The center could be located close to the Exhibit Hall, which has been approved for construction at the site in Thayerville. In the architectural prerequisites for the exhibit hall, the commissioners in-cluded plans to make the site suitable for a complementary facility. The two buildings can share parking, restrooms, lighting, infrastructure, and more. The center will be a bonus for those using the exhibit hall.

The county agreed to help the group with the actual bid project, including approval and awarding of a bid, and will support funding up to $42,000, said Garrett County commissioner Ernie Gregg.

"It can complement activities at the exhibit hall. Certain kinds of events need the board. Warther worked with an original plan years ago, and Sprenger financed a study for Garrett Lakes Arts Festival several years ago.

Members of a steering committee attended a training session with Linda Sullivan, an arts management consultant, to identify priorities. Key reasons for a performing arts center were to serve local residents, especially for educational activities, and to attract traveling shows.

Anticipated uses include middle and high school musical programs and theatrical performances; Garrett College Pipes and Drums and Garrett Choral Society concerts; Garrett Lakes Arts Festival events; civic and educational events; local businesses, homeowners' associations, and other groups that require adequate meeting space and audio-visual or communication facilities; and attracting quality performers from outside the area.

Seating capacity for the center will be for approximately 800 seats. Smaller rooms, specialty areas, and offices may be part of the plan, including dressing rooms, rehearsal rooms, a box office, and scenery construction shop.

Besides the cost of operation and construction, decisions must be made about who will manage the center and what procedures will be used for renting it. A lot of questions should be answered in this next year according to a timeline developed by Williams.

"Now that we have a board established, we are laying the groundwork to move forward toward making the dream of a performing arts center eventually become a reality" said Gregg.

Committee chair Bob Huebner is pleased that basic architectural plans are being prepared and that efforts will be made to find state and federal funding, along with private contributions, for the estimated $6 million project.

HOT TARGET

Next time you talk over the phone with someone you've never met in person, notice that you have an image in your mind of how he or she appears. You think you know that person's hair color, weight, and height, but I almost guarantee that if you were to meet this stranger, you'd be quite astonished at what the "real" person really looks like.

Some things are not as they seem.

If you think that Suzanne Brockmann is just a romance writer, go back and read that last sentence. Then pick up a copy of her new novel Hot Target (c. 2005, Ballantine Books) and be prepared to be surprised.

Twenty-something J. Mercedes Chadwick is a sexy, flamboyant Hollywood movie producer working on her newest project, American Hero, a true tale of World War II bravery that happens to include a homosexual love story. There are people who are angry that Mercedes would dare besmirch the name of a hero, and she's getting a lot of hate e-mails. Unfortunately, one of the e-mails is a death threat, and HeartBeat Studios calls in the FBI and Troubleshooters Incorporated.

Navy SEAL Chief Cosmo Richter knows many of the people on the Troubleshooters Inc. team, so he offers to help the team provide security for Mercedes. Cosmo thinks Mercedes is beautiful, but shallow. "Party Girl Producer" is what the tabloids call her, and Cosmo doesn't like her much – that is, until Cos begins to see the real woman behind the façade. "J. Mercedes" is really Jane Chadwick, a woman who's nothing like her public persona. Janey Chadwick could be someone with whom Cos could spend the rest of his life.

FBI Agent Jules Cassidy is called in from Washington to help Troubleshooters Inc. and to find the man who's threatening Mercedes. Jules is good at his job – one of the best – but he's a little distracted now. His former lover, Adam, has surfaced and wants Jules to give Mercedes his resume. Jules still loves Adam, but Adam knows exactly how to use people, and he's got his sights set on Robin, Mercedes' brother and the lead in the movie. Robin says he's straight and points to his womanizing past as evidence, but oh, my, he's noticed that Jules has the most incredible eyes.

When the danger escalates and someone dies, Cosmo and Jules must protect Jane while trying to find the killer. Could it be someone close to Jane?

Suzanne Brockmann fans will be happy to see their old Troubleshooters Inc. friends and a bonus chapter featuring Sam and Alyssa, but readers who think that "Suzanne Brockmann" equals "romance" are going to be quite surprised when they pick up this book. While yes, there is a love story – a couple of them, in fact – you'll also find mystery, adventure, and a few plot twists you won't expect.

Chances are you're going to find Hot Target in the romance section at your local bookstore. It definitely doesn't belong there.

Because some things are not as they seem.

Thank You! Thank You!

The SHS Theatre II Class would like to give a rousing round of applause to their teacher, Mrs. White, and to all of the sponsors who made their recent New York City "Bound for Broadway" trip possible. Highlights of this exciting adventure included lunch at Ellen's Diner (with its singing wait staff!), a visit to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, great seats for the Broadway hit The Lion King, and a tour of the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island. Thanks to all who made this happen!

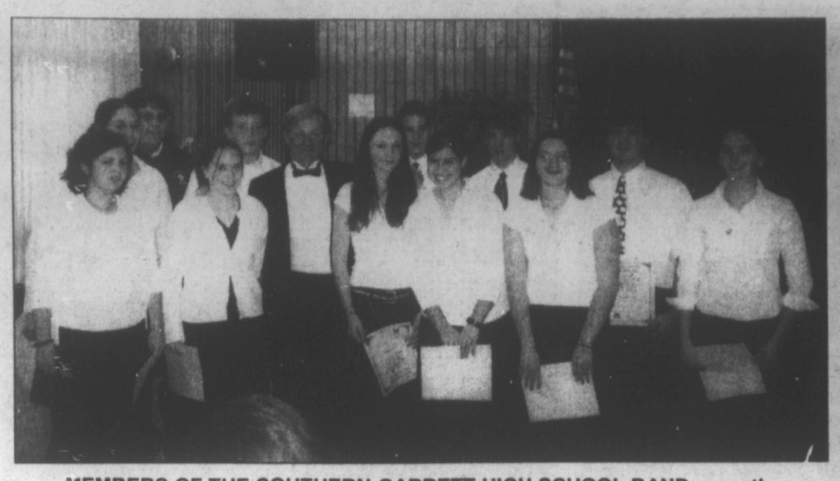
White Performing With Shadowbox's Sister Theatre

Evelyn White, formerly of Oakland, will be performing on stage with the sister company of the Shadowbox Cabaret in Columbus, Ohio, called 2Co's Cabaret.

The stage performer, daughter of John and Lois White, Oakland, will perform in 2Co's Got the Blues, a show in which she will sing lead vocals and backup. She will also be in a one-act play at 2Co's. The shows will run Jan. 12 through March 13. Persons interested in seeing the shows may call for reservations at 614-416-7625.

White was recently promoted to the corporate level of the Shadowbox Company. She is a graduate of Southern High School, and graduated in May 2004 from West Virginia University, where she earned a bachelor of fine arts degree in theatre.



MEMBERS OF THE SOUTHERN GARRETT HIGH SCHOOL BAND recently participated in the Frostburg State University Honor Band Festival Concert. The students were chosen to perform during honor band weekend, which was held last month at the university. Auditions for seat placement were held on a Saturday morning, and practice was held the rest of the day and Sunday morning. The concert was presented Sunday afternoon. George N. Parks of the University of Massachusetts was the guest conductor, and Noel T. Kunkle of FSU was the host director. The honor band performed several different styles of music, including "Fanfare And Flourishes" by James Cumow, "On A Hymsong of Robert Lowry" by David R. Hoising, "Let There Be Peace" by Sy Miller and Jill Jackson, and "Of Sailors And Whales" by W. Francis McBeth. The SHS students who participated in the event are pictured above in no particular order: Phillip Adams, Tiffany Bernard, Andrew Dale, Andria Dale, Billy Georg, Tammy Hall, Grace Lauver, Sam Lauver, Allison Richter, Rikkilee Rose, Angie Sheffield, and Daniel Skipper.

HOPING FOR FULL ENROLLMENT IN STAGE DESIGN COURSE – Ben Sincell and Jane Avery, two accomplished local theatre professionals, are collaborating once again, this time with the hope of recruiting some new talent in set design. Sincell, a professor at the Garrett College theatre department, and Avery, artistic director of Our Town Theatre, are launching a theatre course at Garrett that will incorporate actual hands-on stage design work. Students in the class, which will be held on Mondays beginning Jan. 24, will be given the opportunity to design a set for a show at either Garrett College or Our Town Theatre. Both Sincell and Avery hope to recruit new designers for the local theatre in their ongoing effort to expand arts opportunities to all residents. See story for details.

GLAF To Receive Arts Award To Support Music On The Mountain

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) is one of only three institutions in Maryland selected by the National Endowment for the Arts for a Challenge America Fast-Track grant. GLAF is the largest presenter of performing arts and arts education in Garrett County.

GLAF will be given $10,000 to support "Music on the Mountain," the classical music festival to be held Aug. 20-27, said executive director Beth Johnson. In addition to the week of concerts by the Deep Creek Symphony Orchestra and guest artists, the funding will allow GLAF to provide master classes, a recording for radio broadcast, and outreach into the community.

"We could not be more excited about this," said Johnson. "Getting funding from the NEA is a tremendous vote of confidence in what we're doing, and we're elated to be able to provide residents of western Maryland with access to professional artists in a new way that is meaningful and accessible."

The other two grants in Maryland, both of which were for $10,000, have been awarded to the Museum for Contemporary Arts and to Kids on the Hill, both located in Baltimore.

In its fifth year, "Music on the Mountain" consists of concerts over the course of a week with the Deep Creek Symphony Orchestra, comprising of professional musicians from the New York/New Jersey metropolitan area. The concerts, under the direction of internationally renowned conductor Maestro David Wroe, continue to grow and expand annually to include world-class guest artists.

The Sprenger-Lang Foundation of Washington, D.C., originally initiated the classical festival and continues to be a major patron. This festival now sees the highest ticketed attendance in GLAF's 18 years of existence, said Johnson.

The NEA announced in late December that it would award $1.7 million through 171 grants in its Challenge America Fast-Track Review Grants category. The awards support projects that provide opportunities for people to experience and participate in in a wide range of art forms and activities, enable arts organizations to expand and diversify their audiences, and emphasize the potential of the arts to help strengthen communities. Many of the projects extend the arts to underserved populations whose access to the arts is limited by geography, ethnicity, economics or disability.

Further information about "Music on the Mountain" or Garrett Lakes Arts Festival is available at www.artsandentertainment.org. or by contacting the GLAF office at 301-387-3082.

OTT Announces Cast For Play

The cast for Our Town Theatre's production of 84 Charing Cross Road, to be presented later this month, has been announced. Cast members are Judy Bertsch, Richard Hill, Erin Peacock, Betty Pritt, and Maureen Mielenz.

Jane Avery, director, said it is a "delightful" play.

"It begins in 1949 when a struggling American writer, hoping to indulge her love of beautiful books, started a correspondence with a firm of British antiquarian booksellers," Avery said. "This correspondence lasted 20 years. The warm, compassionate, and very human exchange, consisting totally of letters, was first published as a book, and then skillfully adapted for stage and screen."

Reservations to see the play will be available beginning Jan. 19, and may be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640.

Entries Sought For Bear Stamp Design Contest

The Wildlife and Heritage Service of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources is currently accepting original artwork for its ninth annual Black Bear Conservation Stamp Design Contest. Maryland residents and non-residents can submit their entries through Wednesday, March 23.

All entries must be original, previously unreleased artwork. Each contestant may submit one entry for a non-refundable $10 entry fee. All paintings, drawings, prints, photographs or prints of electronic images in either black and white or color will be accepted. The designs must be horizontal in orientation, be 7 inches in height and 10 inches in width, and must arrive in a white mat not to exceed 9 inches in height and 12 inches in width.

Proceeds from the sale of DNR's Black Bear Stamps are used to compensate farmers in Maryland suffering from agricultural damage caused by black bears. All proceeds from the sale of the stamp and related products go directly to the Black Bear Conservation Fund.

The contest judging is slated for Saturday, April 2, at the Patuxent National Visitors Center in Laurel, and will take place in conjunction with the Migratory Game Bird Stamp Contest competition. For contest rules and more information, persons may visit the DNR web site at www.dnr.maryland.gov/wildlife/bearstamp, call Doug Wigfield at 410-543-6595, or e-mail dwigfield2@dnr.state.md.us.

Course In Stage Design Offered At GC; Our Town Theatre Playing Role

A collaboration between Oakland's Our Town Theatre and the theatre department at Garrett College is not a new concept, but the relationship is being expanded this semester at the college via the Introduction to Stage Design class. The course will involve actual set design work for productions at the college or at Our Town Theatre (OTT).

"This course will introduce the student to the fundamentals of theatrical design," said Ben Sincell, instructor of the class. "Topics will include exploration and application of two- and three-dimensional design principles to scenery, lighting, and costuming; script analysis; design development; and color theory. An introduction to theatrical sound design is also incorporated in the course."

While the class is likely to attract theatre students, Sincell stressed that it is also beneficial to visual artists, teachers, directors, church and community theatre people, musicians, and puppeteers, among others.

"This course stresses that theatre is a collaborative art form involving many artists, skills, and crafts," Sincell said. "Ultimately, this collaboration includes the performance itself before a live audience."

Sincell and Jane Avery, artistic director of Our Town Theatre, have worked together on stage productions for nearly 20 years, and over the past seven years have collaborated on a great many theatre productions at the Oakland playhouse.

The two hope that at least some of the students taking the course will then become involved with set design at OTT. In fact, part of the class requirements call for that involvement, at least during the course of study.

"It can be a wonderful thrill to work as a designer with a skilled director such as Jane Avery," Sincell said. "We work closely together from the beginning script analysis and research all the way through rehearsals, and on to the opening night of the play.

"Watching how Jane has the actors use my scenery and lighting to help communicate the plot and meanings of the play is especially enjoyable," he said.

Avery said she is looking forward to working with new designers, as each will have his or her own artistic eye. She noted, too, that the set designer does not have to build the scenery, hang the lights, or record the sound.

"He or she creates the visual and auditory 'pictures' which enhance the production," Avery said. "Others help to actually construct the set."

The intro to stage design class will begin on Monday, Jan. 24, 6:35 to 9:35 p.m. in the Garrett College auditorium. It will run through May 16. Students may earn three credits for the course, or they may audit. The three credits will generally transfer, Sincell said, as either major credits for theatre programs or as elective hours. Garrett County students will be charged the in-county fees. High school students will pay half, and the class will be free for senior citizens (age 60 and older).

In class, students will be responsible for participation in discussions of class lectures and projects, reading assignments, quizzes, individual and group design projects, and the design and/or technical responsibilities for actual theatre productions/events at Garrett College or Our Town Theatre.

"Ben is a gifted teacher," Avery said, "and I know that because I've taken some of his classes. He doesn't expect a lot of prior knowledge about his subjects — only a willingness to learn and create. He is that rare combination of a wonderful artist and a true teacher who knows how to get his subject across to students and audiences with all sorts of interests."

Sincell said he hopes to foster the same kind of success in recruiting designers to OTT as there has been with actors.

"The number of theatrical events and opportunities at OTT has been growing ever since we began seven years ago," Sincell said. "We pride ourselves in presenting excellent work and are proud to have had so many people on stage. Now we want to offer more people a chance to help create the visual and auditory environments for a production. In order for that to happen and to maintain our desired level of quality, people must understand the theatrical design process. This course will lead to that understanding."

The two theatre professionals have the blessing of the college on their collaboration, as Dr. Virginia Broaddus, dean of academic affairs, expressed.

"For years, Ben Sincell has worked to promote theatre in our community. Introduction to Stage Design offers local community members a chance to learn skills that will benefit many in years to come," Dr. Broaddus said. "Whether students are in high school or in their retirement, they'll have an opportunity to gain new talents and to see those talents come to light in future theatre productions.

"Garrett's fine arts program is built on strong collaboration and partnership, and the college's relationship with Our Town Theatre is one of the program's hallmarks," Broaddus continued. "I'm delighted that two professionals like Jane Avery and Ben Sincell can work together and that our students can have the extraordinary chance to study with Ben and to subsequently employ their talents at Our Town, if they so choose."

Persons interested in registering for the class should contact Garrett College at 301-387-3000.

Lakers Upset, Then Just Miss Upsetting Trojans

A 77-71 upset loss to host Chesapeake on Monday was a bitter pill for the Garrett College men's basketball team and Coach Dennis Gibson, but worse yet was the result of last night's home game against rival Allegany College of Maryland, a 63-61 defeat when AC's Josh Thomas scored on a put-back at the buzzer.

The 0-2 week left the Lakers with an overall record of 13-4 and a 7-2 mark in the Maryland JUCO conference.

The Lakers got off to their worst start of the season against Chesapeake on Monday, falling behind by a score of 41-25 by intermission.

Within the first three minutes of the second half, they were down by 20 points, but then went on an incredible 20-0 run to tie the contest with 8:49 to play.

With less than a minute to play, the Lakers were down by just three, 74-71, but could not convert on a few final opportunities.

Marco Van Pelt led the Lakers in scoring for the first time this season, hitting six three-point shots and finishing with 25 points.

Tristan Largent hit four long-range buckets and finished with 16 points, while Jeff Washington also reached double figures with 10 points. Tyrice Watkins chipped in with nine points.

Leading Chesapeake in scoring was B.J. Miller, who shared game-high honors with Van Pelt by netting 25 points, and Daniel Bell and Josh Hickson, who each recorded 20 points.

Both teams finished with 26 goals, with the Lakers getting a total of 12 three-pointers and Chesapeake hitting six. However, the home team made good on 19 of 27 opportunities at the free-throw line, while the Lakers connected on seven of 11.

The Lakers led throughout most of last night's game with the Trojans of Allegany College, only to fall behind in the final minutes and just miss recovering for a win.

Doyle Brown, who finished with a game-high 20 points, hit a pair of back-to-back long-range buckets with about eight minutes remaining in the first half, which gave the Lakers a 21-15 lead.

A dunk by Brown put Garrett up 27-20 at the 4:45 mark, and a three-pointer by Ivan Funcic just before halftime put the Lakers on top by eight, 34-26, which would be their biggest lead of the game. Garrett led 34-28 at intermission.

The Trojans came back immediately after halftime to record the first six points of the second half and tie the score at 34-34, but the Lakers pulled away again and held a 53-46 advantage with about nine minutes remaining.

AC rallied again, and a three-pointer by Kenny Smith knotted the score at 55-55. The Trojans then scored the next six points to take their biggest lead of the contest at 61-55.

Jeff Washington hit a pair of foul shots to pull Garrett within four, 61-57, with 1:19 left. The Trojans were unable to score on their next possession, and with 17.6 seconds left on the clock, Marco Van Pelt went to the foul line and hit two attempts to make it 61-59.

Washington then tipped Allegany's inbounds pass to Van Pelt, who scored a quick lay-up to tie the score at 61-61.

Donald Johnson attempted a winning shot from the side with just a few ticks left on the clock. The shot missed, but Thomas was positioned perfectly underneath to put the ball back up and in for the Trojan victory.

Also reaching double-figures for the Lakers were Tyrice Watkins with 12 rebounds and Lavonti Jeter with 10 boards.

Tyronne Beale finished with a double-double for the Trojans, recording 16 points and 12 rebounds. Johnson scored 11 points and Jeremy Eck pulled down 10 rebounds.

The win improved Allegany's record to 11-4 overall and 5-3 in the conference.

The Lakers will try to get back into the win column this Friday when they play a 4 p.m. game at CCBC-Catonsville. They will host Anne Arundel next Wednesday in a game that will tip off at 7 p.m.

GARRETT WOMEN UP MARK TO 8-2 – The defending Region XX champion Garrett College women's basketball team is on a roll, having taken six of its last seven outings in climbing to 8-2 overall (7-0 JUCO). The Lakers downed visiting Hagerstown 89-62 last Thursday, Jan. 8, behind a 14-point, eight-rebound performance by Jami Anderson and 15 assists by Denae Kennedy. Last night's 75-63 home court win over Frederick was paced by DeKresha Davis's 17 points, and Anderson's double-double of 13 points and 10 rebounds. Davis (#32) is shown above to the left finding the back door to a bucket, with Anderson in the background. Jhonna Newby (#42), above right, looks for an open teammate across the lane. The Lakers are seen below charging down the floor with Kennedy (#11) in the lead, pacing fellow fast-breakers Anderson, Shante Brickhouse (#34), and Danyell Thompson (#31). GETTING SOME AIR on his way to the hoop last night against Allegany College of Maryland was Garrett College Laker Doyle Brown, above. Brown led the Lakers in scoring by finishing with 20 points. A dozen of those points were recorded from outside the circle, as he made good on four three-pointers. Below, Laker Tyrice Watkins puts another shot in the air over the hand of a defender. Watkins led the team in rebounding with 12. At left is Garrett's Jeff Washington (#40). The Lakers led throughout most of the contest, only to lose at the buzzer, 63-62. Photos by John McEwen.

A pair of strong offensive efforts by Southern High School senior point guard Cory Bosley paved the way for two more victories for the boys' varsity, A 62-48 triumph over host Tucker County last Friday and a big 59-52 Western Maryland Interscholastic League win over visiting Fort Hill in Oakland Tuesday.

The two wins gave the Rams an overall record of 8-2, and the defeat of Fort Hill upped their WMIL mark to a perfect 4-0.

Bosley poured in 25 points against the Mountain Lions of Tucker County, 17 in the second half, and he finished with 21 against the Fort Hill Sentinels, 11 of which he recorded in the fourth quarter.

The first half of action against Tucker County was close, with the Rams holding an 11-8 lead at the end of the first quarter and a 26-22 advantage at halftime. They started to pull away in the third period, which ended with Southern on top, 40-30.

Senior Corey Tressler led an offensive surge for the Rams in the fourth stanza, as he scored 12 of his game total of 18 points in that quarter.

Center Evan Lantz also reached double figures with 14 points, 11 of which he netted in the first half. Bosley was also credited with eight assists.

Leading the Lions were Jeremy Maxwell and Corey Gsell with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

The Southern junior varsity kept its unbeaten streak intact by winning the preliminary game, 63-47.

Tuesday's win over Fort Hill moved the Rams into first place in the WMIL standings.

Southern scored the first points of the game and held a slim lead throughout the entire first half. The Rams were up 14-11 at the end of the first quarter and were on top by one, 25-24, at intermission.

The Sentinels scored the first six points of the third period, giving them their first lead of the game, but five points (30-25) would be their largest advantage, as the Rams came back to score 10 of the next 12 points, hold a 35-32 edge going into the final stanza, and never relinquish the lead again.

Some key buckets by Bosley and Tressler, plus Bosley's 5-for-6 effort at the foul line down the stretch, assured the victory for the Rams.

Tressler finished with 14 points and grabbed seven rebounds, while Lantz recorded 10 points and seven rebounds.

Pacing Fort Hill, which fell to 6-3 overall and 3-1 in the league, was Ritchie Brandenberg, who scored 19 points, while point guard Kevin Page finished with

The Southern junior varsity upped its record to 8-0 with a 41-32 win in the first game behind a 14-point effort by Ryan DeWitt and a 12-point performance by Erik Cussins. Leading the Fort Hill jayvees was Steven Iser with a game-high 16 points.

The Rams will host Allegany this Friday in another major WMIL clash and entertain Keyser next Tuesday. The junior varsity games will tip off at 6 p.m., and the varsity contests will get under way at 7:30 p.m.

Ram Freshmen Win Three More; Record Now 8-0

The freshman boys' basketball team of Southern High School won three more games this past week to extend their undefeated run to eight games for the 2004-05 season.

Tommie Reams scored a game-high 18 points last Wednesday to lead the Rams over visiting Petersburg, 50-26. Jordan Pacella and Matt White also reached double figures for Southern with 13 and 11, respectively.

Leading the Vikings was Neil Garton with eight points.

The final score was nearly the same Monday evening in a game against the Allegany freshmen played in Cumberland, as the Rams came home with a 51-25 victory.

Drew Proudfoot was the top scorer for Southern, finishing with 18 points.

The third win of the week was recorded at home last night against the freshmen of Tucker County, with the Rams topping the Mountain Lions, 50-39.

Proudfoot and Pacella paced the Rams in scoring with 15 and 13 points, respectively, while Shawn Poling netted 22 for the Mountain Lions, and Eric Wamsley added 11.

Coach Jon Hegeman and his squad will try to maintain their unbeaten streak next Wednesday when they host the Beall freshmen in a 7:30 p.m. contest.

Oakland Dribblers Club Now Playing; Other Youth Invited

The Oakland Rotary Dribblers Club teams are now playing at the Dennett Road School gymnasium every Saturday, and will continue to do so through February.

Even though games are under way, additional area youth are welcome to join at this time, according to a club spokesperson. Boys and girls in the third grade play from 9 to 10:30 a.m., and those in grade four play from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Those interested should report to the school gym at the appropriate time for their age group.

Oakland Rec BB Results Reported

The nets were all but shredded Sunday in Oakland Recreational Basketball League action, as Joey DiSimone bombed away for 49 points as Mettiki topped Fox's Pizza by a 79-58 margin. Other league contests ended with victories for Markwood Citgo and Quality Machine.

DiSimone's big game for Mettiki offset a 26-point tally recorded by Fox's Doug Copeland.

Markwood netted a 70-65 win over MeadWestvaco as Jason Shank scored 24 points for the victors. MeadWestvaco was paced by 26 points by Jonathan Price and 21 points from Tom Stem.

Quality Machine nailed a 62-50 victory over M Acres Boys. Jason Brenneman and Jeremy Skiles netted 20 and 17 points, respectively, for Quality Machine, while M Acres Boys got 20 points from Tobi Stoner and 13 from Mike Fazenbaker.

Sunday's slate will pit Mettiki against Markwood at 6 p.m.; MeadWestvaco vs. M Acres Boys at 7 p.m.; and Fox's against Quality Machine in an 8 p.m. nightcap.

NHS Downs Tigers, Elks To Take Five Of Last Six

The Northern High School boys' varsity basketball squad swept its slate clean by beating Union on Friday, 63-49, and mashing Salisbury on Monday in a 72-27 romp. With shooting forward Brent Beachy and point guard Chris Speicher leading the way this week, the hot-handed Huskies appear to have turned the corner after a slow 1-3 start to take five of their last six outings. Their record has improved to 6-4 (3-4 WMIL).

Northern's victory in Friday's home court contest with Union was an evenly played contest for the first three quarters, then the Huskies pulled away over the final stanza. NHS held a slim 12-11 lead after the first eight minutes, and expanded that margin to 30-23 at the half. The Tigers snapped back in the third quarter with a 16-9 run that cut the gap to two points, 41-39, but a fourth-quarter 22-10 Northern rampage iced the Igloo contest.

Juniors Beachy and Speicher paced the Husky win, as Beachy scored 19 points, hitting 7 of 9 free throws along the way, and Speicher netted 14 points as he handed out nine assists. Beachy also snagged a team-high eight rebounds. Senior power forward Eric Johnson contributed 10 points, and junior forward Blake Walker added nine.

Union (2-6) placed three players in double figures, as Cody Mitters and Isaac Riggleman had 12 points each, and Aaron Streets contributed 11.

The Huskies hosted Salisbury Monday, and Beachy and Speicher again paced a torrid but balanced offensive effort that ran up a 15-5 first quarter advantage. NHS took a 34-13 lead at the half, and was up by a staggering 59-22 margin as the fourth quarter opened.

Beachy netted 20 points and snagged five steals, and Speicher tossed in 13 points and dished out nine assists. Johnson and senior classmate Chris Fickes had eight

The Elks' Shane Knopsnyder and Aaron Beiler had 13 and 11 points, respectively, for the visitors.

Northern hosts Hancock tomorrow night in a 7:30 p.m. varsity showdown set to follow a 6 p.m. JV contest.

APOLOGIES!

In the December 23, 2004 issue of The Republican, the House of Hope ran an ad thanking all of the "support" personnel for the 2004 fund/food raising events. To accomplish these events takes a team effort. This team supports two amazing women, without whom the House of Hope would not be available to offer their services to the surrounding areas. The author of that ad would like to apologize for the omission of the names of Sister Mary Ann and Sister Joanna. Their energy, enthusiasm, compassion and devotion to the House of Hope mission are greatly appreciated.

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE ACTION is Southern High School's Kayla Nazelrod (#13, pictured above), drawing the attention of three Bishop Walsh defenders during Monday's 55-41 SHS loss in Oakland. The Ram junior has her pick of unguarded teammates to hit with a pass, as from the left are an open Jasmine Scheffel (#33), Kendra McLaughlin (#31), Sarah Cosner (#14), and Sarah Stephens (#11). McLaughlin, Southern's high scorer for the night, is shown below challenging a pair of Spartans on the perimeter. The sixth-ranked Rams rebounded last night with a 14-point demolition of third-ranked Allegany, and put their perfect 3-0 WMIL mark on the line in a road game at Beall on Monday. SHS Blows Past Tornados, Falls To BW, Crushes Alco

It was a week of peaks and valleys for the Southern High School girls' varsity basketball squad, as the Rams wrapped a pair of big wins over Keyser and Allegany around a mid-week late-game collapse against Bishop Walsh. SHS crushed visiting Keyser Saturday, 63-35, saw a seven-point halftime lead over BW dissolve into a 55-41 defeat Monday at home, and roared past host Allegany by 14 points, 62-48, last night in a hostile Campobello gym. The Rams' record stands at 6-4 (3-0 WMIL).

Southern turned on the jets early against Keyser and never let up. After streaking to a 14-4 first-quarter lead and a 32-9 halftime advantage, the Rams recorded an 18-11 tally over the third quarter to go up 50-20 as the final stanza got under way.

Senior Jasmine Scheffel and sophomore Sarah Stephens paced SHS to victory, as Scheffel put together a 14-point, six-assist performance while Stephens turned in 10 points, five steals, and five assists. Junior Kendra McLaughlin contributed eight points and chipped down a Ram-high eight rebounds.

Megan Webb led Keyser with nine points, and teammate Aushia Beavers had eight points, eight rebounds, and three assists.

The junior varsity contest was a tighter battle, but Southern prevailed by a 30-26 margin. The Rams' Brittany Boyce led all scorers with 17 points.

SHS took control of Monday's battle with powerhouse BW early on, grabbing a 13-6 first-quarter lead and a 27-20 halftime advantage. The Spartans rallied to knot the score at 37-all as the fourth quarter opened, and a few minutes into the final stanza the score was tied at 41-41. However, Southern hit a cold spell while Bishop Walsh kept the heat on to net 14 unanswered points.

SHS was led in the scoring column by McLaughlin, who recorded 11 points, and Caitlyn Brown, who contributed 10. Karen Iams took game-high honors for the Spartans (10-1) with 22 points, including a pair of treys. Leah Gonzalez added 13 points and Lara Groetzinger had 10.

The Ram JVs downed BW, 36-26, as Boyce scored 17 points. Kara Miller had 11 for the Spartans.

Southern's offense caught fire early last night at Allegany as the Rams blazed away for 40 first-half points. The Rams went up 19-14 after one quarter, with Nazelrod netting eight points and Brown six in the eight-minute span. SHS was up 40-27 at the half, and 46-38 at the end of the third stanza.

McLaughlin scored a game-high 18 points that included an 8-for-11 tally from the foul line. Stephens was just one off that scoring pace with 17 points while adding a 6-for7 free-throw performance. Scheffel added nine points, and Nazelrod and Brown contributed eight each.

Overall, the SHS squad sank 81 percent of its foul shots by connecting on 21 of 26 attempts.

Alco's (8-2) top scorer was Jessica Tichnell with 12 points.

Boyce led Southern's jayvees to another win with her third consecutive game-high 17-point tally. Jackie Boor had 12 for the Campers.

The Rams are slated to visit Beall Monday in their only scheduled outing of the week.

Huskies Raid Raiders, Bag Elks, Nip Sentinels

The Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team took all three of its outings this week, demolishing Meyersdale 47-32 last Thursday, Jan. 13, beating Salisbury 37-25 Tuesday, and downing Fort Hill last night in Cumberland by a 42-39 margin. The Huskies are now 5-5 (1-4 WMIL).

The first quarter of the Meyersdale contest proved deceiving, as the Huskies managed just an 8-6 lead over their hosts. NHS kicked into gear in the second quarter to take a 27-17 advantage, and ran up a 42-25 tally by the time the fourth quarter got under way.

Senior guard Jeseca Gibson led all scorers with 23 points, nailing six three-pointers along the way. Center Lakin Weimer swept the boards clean for 15 rebounds in addition to scoring nine points, and teammates Jayme Miller and Amy Shaffer grabbed eight rebounds apiece. Corrin Moser led the Red Raiders with 10 points.

Northern was edged in the junior varsity contest, 27-24. Sarah Voelkel put up eight points for the Huskies.

NHS and Salisbury opened Tuesday's meeting by scoring four points apiece over the first quarter, then the visiting Huskies went up 17-11 at the half and 28-18 after three quarters.

Gibson set the scoring pace for the night with 18 points, while Weimer put up nine points. Weimer and Miller ripped down 12 rebounds and snagged three steals apiece. Tiffany Yoder and Amy Shaffer each scored seven points, and Yoder had a game-high four steals. The Elks were led by six points apiece from Chelsea Green and Adrienne Grove.

Last night at Fort Hill the Huskies fell behind early and were down 11-8 after one quarter, but the NHS defense stiffened to hold the hosts to just three points over the second stanza as Northern took an 18-14 edge at the half. NHS held on to its lead and was up

Rams Finish Second, Huskies Third In Garrett Invitational

Just missing a team championship in the Garrett County Wrestling Invitational, hosted by Northern High School on Saturday, were the Southern High Rams.

Coach Dave Taylor's squad finished with 245 points, second only to Francis Scott Key, which won the team title with 257.5 points.

The host Huskies, coached by Scott Stough, finished third as a team with 209 points, followed by Berlin with 170, Keyser with 131, Liberty with 106.6, and Jefferson Morgan in eighth place with 83 points.

Three Rams and three Huskies captured individual championships, with perhaps the most thrilling final involving Northern's Brock Glotfelty and Luke Schuster of Francis Scott Key in the 189-pound finale.

Shuster, a senior, came into the match ranked #1 in the state of Maryland for that weight class, Class 1A and 2A, but Glotfelty, a sophomore, held on for a 2-1 upset decision. He was named co-outstanding wrestler for the tournament along with Eric Dcarrion of Berlin.

Champions for Southern were Daniel Carr in the 125-pound class, Justin Ratliff at 135 pounds, and defending state champion Scott Wildesen at 171 pounds.

Carr, a sophomore, recorded an 8-3 decision win over Zack Lee of Berlin in his final. Ratliff topped fellow Garrett Countian Andy Ganoe of Northern on points, 7-4, to win his title, while Wildesen pinned Ethan Virgilli of Jefferson Morgan in the championship round of his weight class.

The other two Northern grapplers, besides Glotfelty, who earned titles were defending state champion Casey Kamp in the 112-pound division and Michael Wolf in the 152-pound class.

Kamp pinned Ty Bassinger of Jefferson Morgan in the 112 final, and Wolf recorded a 3-1 decision over Dennis Kuhn of Berlin to garner his first place.

Runners-up for Southern were Josh Armstrong in the 119-pound division and Jeremy Gregory at 160 pounds. Second-place finishers for the Huskies were Ganoe (135) and Randy Wilhelm at 103 pounds.

Winning their consolation rounds and taking third places for the Rams were Andrew Pritts (140), Nathan Sines (145), Jeffrey Gregory (152), Justin Fitzwater (215), and Sean Sisler (275).

Placing fourth were Josh Tasker (103) of Southern, and Travis Glover (125), Robert Stark (140), and Nick Payne (171), all of Northern.

Team winner Francis Scott Key had five wrestlers finish with individual titles: Matt Callari (103), Reuben Gill (119), Shane Eyler (140), Tom Rush (215), and Ralph Standbaugh (275).

The Rams also competed in a tri-match at Fort Hill on Tuesday, while the Huskies entertained Westmar. (See separate stories for those results.)

The Rams and Huskies will meet each other this evening at Southern, where competition will get under way at 7:30. Southern will travel to Beall for a tri-match next Thursday, and the Huskies will vie in a 6 p.m. tri-match hosted by Preston next Wednesday. Northern will also travel to Allegany next Thursday.

Husky Matmen Crush Wildcats On Mats, 73-3

After placing third in the eight-team Garrett County Invitational on Saturday (see separate story), the Northern High School wrestling team returned to the mats Tuesday evening and crushed visiting Westmar, 73-3.

The duration of the match was relatively short, as six Huskies were declared winners by forfeit, and four bouts were won by Northern via pinfalls.

Those recording pins for the Huskies were Randy Wilhelm in the 103-pound class, Casey Kamp at 112 pounds, Travis Glover in the 125-pound class, and Dean Rounds in the heavyweight division.

Gaining point victories for Northern were Corey Kamp at 119 pounds, Jay Clark at 145, and Nick Payne, 171.

Huskies given forfeit wins were Taylor Jones (130), Andy Ganoe (135), Robert Stark (140), Mike Wolf (152), Brock Glotfelty (189), and Jared Beachy (215).

The only victor for the Wildcats was Matt Marchikie, who won by decision in the 160-pound clash.

The Huskies will travel to Oakland this evening to take on county rival Southern in a 7:30 match. They will travel to Kingwood next Wednesday to compete in a tri-match with Preston and Keyser. That event will begin at 6 p.m.

SIX INDIVIDUAL CHAMPIONSHIPS were captured by Garrett County high school wrestlers — three for Southern and three for Northern — during Saturday's annual Garrett County Invitational, an eight-team event hosted this year by Northern High School. Pictured above left is Northern's Brock Glotfelty (top), a sophomore, battling Francis Scott Key senior Luke Shuster, who came into the match as the #1 ranked 189-pound wrestler in Maryland's 1A/2A schools. Glotfelty removed him from that position, however, by eking out a 2-1 decision victory in the 189-pound final. In the photo above right, Southern Ram Scott Wildesen, who is the reigning state champion, controls Ethan Virgilli of James Morgan High School and goes on to pin him to win the 171-pound division title. Below left, Northern's Casey Kamp, another defending state champ, ties up Ty Bassinger of James Morgan and ultimately defeats him via a pin for the title in the 112-pound class. Below right, Southern's Justin Ratliff earns riding points against Andy Ganoe of Northern in the 135-pound division final. Ratliff won via a 7-4 decision. At bottom left, Michael Wolf of Northern (top) works his way to a 3-1 decision win over Dennis Kuhn of Berlin to take home the championship trophy in the 152-pound division. In the shot at bottom right, Southern's 125-pound starter Daniel Carr (top) vies with Zack Lee of Berlin in a title bout and wins an 8-3 decision. The Rams finished second as a team, while the Huskies placed third. See story for details. Photos courtesy of Del Carpenter.

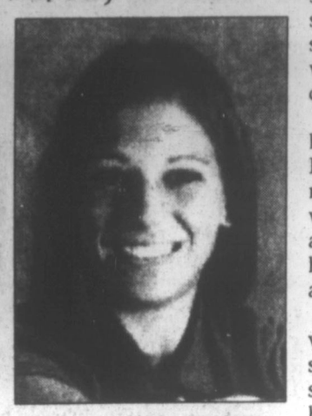
Three Huskies, One Ram Are First Team All-Area, WMIL

BRITTANY MILBOURNE



MEGAN SHAFFER

TIFFANY YODER

JASMINE SCHEFFEL

Four Garrett County high school female soccer players — three from Northern and one from Southern — were recently named by a vote of area coaches to both the All-Area and All-Western Maryland Interscholastic League first teams.

Receiving those honors from Northern were seniors Brittany Milbourne, Megan Shaffer, and Tiffany Yoder, while senior Jasmine Scheffel was the selection from Southern.

It was the second year in a row that Northern's Milbourne was named to the All-Area first team. The senior striker and four-year letter winner started the past three seasons at either attacking midfielder or striker. She led the Huskies in scoring this past season with seven goals and seven assists for 21 points, sixth best in the area.

"Brittany is a strong player with good speed and good skills," stated her coach, Lynn Lais. "Her experience made her a quick decision-maker, which is a real asset in soccer."

She finished second in scoring in the WMIL with six goals and one assist in league matches.

Shaffer, a midfielder, also earned four letters and started the past three seasons for the Huskies. She scored a pair of goals and was one of the team's top defensive players.

"Megan was the glue that held our team together," Lais said. "She is a hard-nosed player who was always around the ball, and always looking for ways to help her teammates, both in attacking and defending."

Yoder, also a midfielder, was yet another Husky who started the past three seasons and completed her high school career with four letters. She was the team's corner-kick and set-piece specialist for the past two years. She was also among the area's scoring leaders this past season, with six goals and one assist.

"Tiffany became known for her flank runs and crosses, plus her outstanding ability to strike the ball and score from a distance," Lais said. "She had tremendous desire, and played as hard defensively as she did when on attack."

The Huskies finished the 2004 campaign with an overall record of 9-5-1, and placed second in the WMIL with a 5-4-1 mark.

Scheffel was a four-year varsity player for Coach Ron Petrella and the Rams, and served as team captain from her midfielder spot this past season.

Petrella said that she was defined by her "take-charge attitude" on the field.

"Jasmine gave 100 percent in every match and was a leader by example," he said. "She displayed good foot skills and was exceptionally strong on throw-ins."

Scheffel was one of the few letter winners back on the Ram squad this past season, as many top performers of the past several seasons were lost to the 2004 graduation. After nothing but winning seasons, the Rams finished 5-6-2 overall and 2-6-2 in the WMIL this past year.

Named to the second team, All-Area, were Bethani Gillum and Britta Lais of Northern, and Shar Hollingsworth of Southern, while Northern's Stephanie Beachy and Southern's Erin Rhodes each received honorable mention.

Gillum, Lais, and Stephanie Beachy of Northern, as well as Southern's Hollingsworth were also named to the All-WMIL second team, while Amy Brenneman of Northern and Southern's Rhodes received All-WMIL honorable mention.

Named the All-Area and All-WMIL Player of the Year was Allison Heavner of Allegany, while the All-Area and All-WMIL Offensive Player of the Year was Tasha Wilhelm of Beall, and goalkeeper Emily Mathews of Allegany was selected the All-Area and All-WMIL Defensive Player of the Year.

32-28 as the fourth quarter opened.

The Huskies staved off a Sentinel comeback in the final stanza by converting 10 of 12 free throws, with Gibson alone hitting eight of 10 attempts from the charity stripe. Yoder clinched the victory by stepping to the foul line with 1.8 seconds remaining, and NHS up by one, to sink two foul shots and put the Huskies up by three.

Gibson scored a game-high 22 points and snagged three steals, while Yoder had five points and a team-high seven rebounds. Miller and Kayla Kipp hauled down six rebounds apiece. Lindsay Holliday led FH (4-6) with 20 points..

NHS's junior varsity dropped a 32-21 contest. Amber Savage had six points for the Huskies, while Cassie Donahue and Shay Burnette had nine points each for the hosts.

Northern visits Westmar Saturday before returning home to host Frankfort Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The jayvees' tip-off is slated for 6 p.m.

Upton Rolls 299

While bowling for the Stomper's Shoe Store team on Wednesday, Jan. 5, in the Wednesday Civic Bowling League at Par-Matt Lanes, Mtn. Lake Park, Tim Upton rolled a near-perfect 299.

After recording 11 consecutive strikes in the third game of his set, Upton's 12th shot entered the pocket slightly high. Nine of 10 pins went down, and the remaining 4-pin wiggled, but didn't fall.

He rolled a 216 and a 214 in his first two games, which gave him a set of 729.

Upton, whose average is currently 190, will receive a patch for the 700-plus set, a watch for recording 100 over his game average, and a patch for 150 pins over his set average.

This is the second time Upton has rolled a 299, having done so on October 8, 2003, in league play at Par-Matt Lanes.

Hunters' Field Feast Slated In Pleasant Valley

The Hunters' Field Feast, a dinner and judging contest featuring wild game and fresh fish, is slated for 5 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 22, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. The annual pot-luck dinner is sponsored by the Men's Brotherhood of Faith Evangelical Free Church, Mtn. Lake Park. The event is open to all hunters and fishermen, and there is no admission charge.

The featured speaker for this year's Hunters' Field Feast is avid outdoorsman and local dairy farmer Paul Yoder, who operates the family-owned Cherry Kreek Farm dairy on Blue Ribbon Road just south of Oakland. Born in Bellville, Pa. Yoder's family moved to Garrett County when he was 9 years old. The devoted hunter has taken to the field in Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, and Tennessee. Yoder and his family will be sharing many of their own hunting experiences including those of his father-in-law, local bear tracker Ernest Shrock.

The dinner will feature various wild game dishes, and fresh catch from local waterways. Participants are encouraged to bring their own favorite wild game or fish dish to share and enter in the judging contest. The contest will have several categories, and a number of prizes will be awarded.

In addition to the dish judging contest there will be a hunter and angler outfit contest with prizes in the hunting category being awarded in the "Mountain Man or Woman" and "Camo" categories. There will be no penalty for blaze orange in the Camo category.

A number of door prizes will also be given away, including hunters' clothing, tree stand accessories, knives, and gift certificates. Two copies of the Meshach Browning book Forty-four Years of the Life of a Hunter will also be given away.

There will also be a number of displays, including the taxidermy mounts of Wes Massey.

"Last year we were overwhelmed by the response," commented Jim Blasher, president of the Men's Brotherhood of Faith Evangelical Free Church and coordinator of the event. "There were over 200 participants and at least 75 different wild game dishes that ranged from trout to buffalo and elk. We even had some rattlesnake."

Blasher noted that the event is geared for all ages, and both men and women are invited to attend. "Anyone who has a love for the outdoors is welcome," he said.

No reservations are necessary. For further information, persons may contact the office of Faith Evangelical Free Church at 301-334-4172.

Garrett Hunting Violations Noted By N.R. Police

The Maryland Natural Resources Police have reported that a total of 23 hunting citations have been issued in Garrett County from Nov. 27, the opening day of whitetail deer firearms season, to today. Of those citations, 14 (60 percent) stemmed from incidents of hunters carrying loaded weapons in their vehicles.

"Carrying a loaded weapon in a vehicle is not only a poaching issue if the individual is trespassing, spotlighting, or hunting out of season, but also a serious safety issue," a spokesperson said. "We encourage all hunters to follow the rules and regulations which are in place to help ensure a successful hunt for as many hunters as possible, and a safe hunt for everyone."

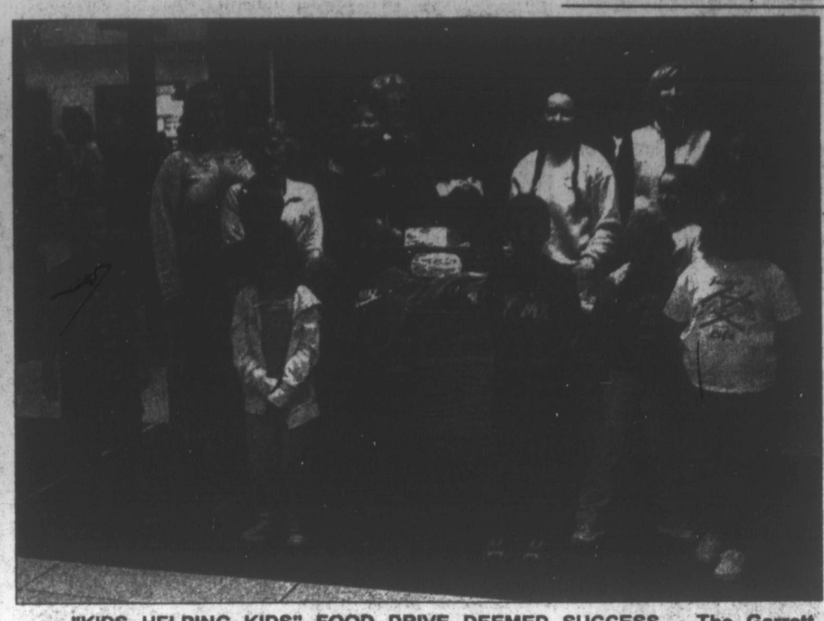
SPEAKERS TELL OF MAKING ACHIEVEMENT COUNT – Volunteers from local businesses in Garrett and Allegany counties spoke to freshmen students at Southern High School recently. "Achievement Counts" Speakers Bureau, part of the Maryland Business Roundtable for Education (MBRT), is a comprehensive program designed to show students the vital connection between achievement in high school and success in college and the workforce. Achievement Counts speakers challenge students to focus on their futures by providing them with concrete reasons why working hard in high school will translate into broader opportunities in their personal and professional lives. Achievement Counts volunteers went into Southern High School's ninth grade technology education classrooms to deliver their message based on their own experiences in the working world, and focused on the importance of working hard and building a strong transcript while in school. The key messages are the same, but each speaker brings his or her unique perspective, stressing things they think are important to students and will help students get ahead. Although most have been in the workforce for years, these volunteers easily relate to high school students. Christine Sisler and Annette Chapman from First United Bank and Trust in Oakland, along with Jason Sweitzer of PrimeVest Financial Services in Cumberland, spoke. Achievement Counts volunteers will also speak at Northern High School later this spring. This campaign has drawn high praise from educators, businesses, parents, and students both locally and nationally. The National Alliance of Businesses and the National Business Roundtable have named the program a "national best practice." Above, Sweitzer speaks to a class.



"KIDS HELPING KIDS" FOOD DRIVE DEEMED SUCCESS – The Garrett County Community Action's "Kids Helping Kids" Food Drive that was held in October of 2004 was a "tremendous success," said a spokesperson. Nine Garrett County Schools participated in the food drive this year, collecting a total of 12,159.35 pounds of food. Shaffer Ford Sales donated a truck to pick up the donated food with the help of Jeff McDaniel, a sales representative from Shaffer Ford. McDaniel donated hours of his time and energy aiding in the collection of the food. Team One donated a vehicle for the transportation of food on another occasion. The food will be stored and then distributed to needy families as considered necessary. The following schools participated: Northern High, Swan Meadow, Yough Glades Elementary, Broad Ford Elementary, Dennett Road Elementary, Friendsville Elementary, Grantsville Elementary, Kitzmiller Elementary, and Southern Middle. "Special thanks are sent to all who participated in the Math Challenge proposed by Swan Meadow School. The top winners of each school are celebrating their success with a "Super Sundae" building party made possible by Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc., Community & Emergency Services," said Amy Piper-McConnell, AmeriCorps coordinator at Community Action. "Dennett Road School forfeited their party and requested that the money that would have supplied their party be used to purchase a food basket for a needy family. Thank-you to all who participated this year." Above are students and math teachers at Broad Ford Elementary School. In the front, from the left, are Michael Welch, Austin Sines, Holly Weissgerber, Josh King, Devon Tracey, Chelsea Sines-Ortiz, and Marisa Elliott. In the back are Erica Foley, Amy Flanigan, Danielle Hazelwood, Piper-McConnell, Jessica Fratz, Briana Wagner, and Jordan Body. Below are students of Barb Law's Student Service Alliance class, who collected food during homeroom. In the front are Nichole Kovach, Maranda Funk, Amber Yoder, Christa Uphold, and Cynthia Brenneman. "Victims need to know that services are available and that they should not hesitate to get help when they need it," said DHR Secretary Christopher McCabe.

The Rape Crisis Program operates through a network of community-based rape crisis services. Services include 24-hour crisis hotlines; counseling for the victim and family members; accompaniment for medical services; assistance and support for the victim in using mental health, medical, and law enforcement services; information for the general public regarding prevention and treatment of rape and sexual assault; specialized help for adult victims of incest; assistance and support to the victim in legal proceeding; and training of professionals in the community.

the General Assembly and governor, the commissioners will be required to hold a public hearing prior to any actual change in the weight limit on the roads.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office also asked for legislation that would give the county the legal authority to establish and administer alternate sentencing options, including home detention for certain nonviolent inmates.

If approved, the home detention option is expected to save the county money, as it would not be responsible for feeding, housing, and medical care for those receiving this sentencing option.

Health officer Rodney Glotfelty, Garrett County Health Department, also asked Hafer and Edwards to support legislation to secure a mechanism for funding Medbank of Maryland. This will probably take having the governor reinstate the line item for Medbank in the state budge at a level of $2,000,000, noted county officials.

This will allow for all Medbank programs throughout the state, including Garrett County's, to be funded at their current levels and allow for some expansion in certain areas such as the Eastern Shore, they added.

The Western Maryland Delegation has already sent a letter to the governor requesting this line item change.

Medbank helps low-income, chronically ill, uninsured, and underinsured individuals throughout the state get prescription medications at low or no cost through patient-assistance programs maintained by pharmaceutical companies.

would give the county the legal authority to establish and amend water disconnect and reconnect fees, to impose special event permitting, and to regulate gaming events and establish a special gaming fund to benefit county fire and rescue services.

A "housekeeping" bill will also be introduced which would allow the county to amend existing legislation to delete it under articles pertaining to the percentage of fines imposed by the Liquor Control Board. Those fines had been directed to the Circuit Court Library and the clerk of the Circuit Court.

Special Events

A daughter, Emma Rose, was born on Jan. 6 to Jamie and Jennifer (Bilenki) Michael, Mtn. Lake Park, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

About 600 Garrett County residents get their medications through the Medbank program, according to Glotfelty.

The Health Department also requested that a tobacco-placement bill be introduced during the 2004 General Assembly session be resubmitted. Initiated by Garrett and Carroll county health officials, the proposed legislation would limit minors' access to tobacco products at retail establishments. A similar bill failed to pass last year because of an unrelated amendment that had been attached to it, the health officer noted.

Hafer and Edwards will also introduce bills that

KINSEY

Rated R - Running time: 1:58

Review by Adam Sincell

If I could name one aspect of human behavior that has this nation squirming in its seat, my primary answer would unequivocally be "Sex." I can honestly say that a movie like Kinsey deserves substantial praise simply for its brave handling of such a topic. This film is a very honest representation of the human being as a sexual creature of nature, and whether this movie opens or closes one's mind concerning the issue at hand, I am 100% sure that you will have a strong reaction to it. Filled with outstanding performances and substantive plot material, Kinsey is effectively brought to the screen in a way that defies societal conventionality.

The film chronicles the life of Alfred Kinsey (Liam Neeson), the son of a staunch minister, who became a global figure in the world of sexual behavior specialization. Resisting his father's close-minded condemnation of self-exploration, Alfred emerged from his oppressive familial walls and headed for Harvard University. After having graduated from the zoology program (which specialized in the study of the gall wasp), Alfred was offered a position at Indiana University as a professor of biology, whereupon he met and fell in love with his better half, Clara McMillen (Laura Linney). Throughout his teaching, Kinsey became fascinated by the lack of research devoted to sexual behavior among humans, and as numerous students begin tracking him down with questions about sex, Kinsey decided to recruit a team of researchers including Clyde Martin (Peter Sarsgaard), Paul Gebhard (Timothy Hutton), and Wardell Pomeroy (Chris O'Donnell). Kinsey developed an interview system which broke through the embarrassment of his students and allowed them to openly talk about sex. His success as a teacher only increased with his publication of Sexual Behavior in the Human Male in 1948, but soon after, much of America began to object to Kinsey's ruthless and blunt manner of addressing the topic of sex, seeing it as an attack on American values. This movie effectively shows the trials and tribulations associated with Kinsey's incredible journey to bring difficult issues to the forefront in American culture.

The cast of this movie is nothing short of impressive. Each member contributes nicely to the mix of fine performances, but the real standouts here are Neeson's and Linney's performances. Liam Neeson brilliantly shines through the screen as Alfred Kinsey, a man with a unique struggle and an unmatched passion for learning, and Laura Linney portrays the hardheadedness and integrity of Clara Kinsey with immense effectiveness. Each of the supporting actors lends a helping hand in the film, making it a movie that you mustn't miss.

It would be appropriate to note here that this movie does indeed contain graphic images related to sex, and the movie in and of itself is the most straightforward and relentless movie I have ever seen. I will admit that I was very surprised at how far Kinsey delves into literally every aspect of sexual behavior, and this seemed somewhat disconcerting at first. As much as the film challenges the mere subject of sex, it challenges its audience even more, emotionally and mentally. When I saw Kinsey, I was one of only two people in the theatre, and it did not surprise me very much. Who wants to see a movie all about sex anyway? I walked out two hours later only to find myself thinking, "Everyone should see this film." I ask you to please give Kinsey a chance. Will it make you squirm a little? Yes. Will it test your beliefs a little? Yes. Will it open your mind a little? Hopefully. In a way that is far from timid, Kinsey triumphantly breaks through conventional barriers that still keep many people on edge today. Believe me when I say that I have developed a great deal of respect for this movie. It is one of the most honest portrayals of human behavior I have ever seen, as well as a remarkable film in general.

MEET THE FOCKERS

Review by Adam Sincell

Why do we find immense entertainment in analyzing the oddities of on-screen characters? Is it because we find them so extraordinary, or is it because they actually remind us of how weird people can truly be? The new comedy Meet the Fockers is a valiant follow-up of 2000's Meet the Parents, and it tackles this subject matter in a very elaborate and hysterical way. Director Jay Roach returns with the same ensemble cast of Meet the Parents, along with a few other nice touches. As over-the-top as this movie may seem at times, it maintains a genuine sense of honesty. This is certainly a well-rounded movie of substance and, more importantly, it keeps the laughs going at a constant rate from beginning to end. With help from an all-star cast and a unique script by John Hamburg and John Herzfeld, this movie is above average and definitely worth a look.

Meet the Fockers picks up shortly after its predecessor left off. Greg Focker (Ben Stiller) and soon-to-be wife Pam Byrnes (Teri Polo) are anticipating their ever-approaching wedding day, and it seems that everything is in order for the big event. Greg, having already met the standards of Pam's conventional, retired mother Dina (Blythe Danner) and ex-CIA agent father Jack (Robert DeNiro), is hoping for the best as he prepares to introduce Pam's family to his own. Pam's father still has his misgivings about Greg, and his uneasiness skyrockets as we quickly learn how little the Fockers have in common with the Byrnes family. Greg's father Bernie Focker (played wonderfully by Dustin Hoffman) is a retired lawyer who has gone through a bizarre spiritual transformation and become something of a hippie, and Greg's mother Roz (Barbra Streisand) is a very matter-of-fact sex therapist. Together, the Fockers do not hide who they truly are, proving to be too much for Jack, causing him to have second thoughts about marrying off his daughter. As was the case in the first movie, Jack uncovers potential skeletons in the Focker closet (the humor in the last name is very apparent, let me assure you) and plots to destroy Greg's reputation. As you can imagine, this premise allows for huge laughs, and the movie seizes every chance at creating compromising situations and out-of-control shenanigans for both families.

The actors are very well-cast in their corresponding roles. Ben Stiller falls back on his neurotic and insecure character he developed in the first movie. Robert DeNiro, Blythe Danner, and Teri Polo all maintain an appropriate chemistry among themselves as the Byrnes family. However, my hat goes off to both Dustin Hoffman and (to my astonishment) Barbra Streisand as Mr. and Mrs. Focker, and I would see the film again for their performances alone. It was obvious that Hoffman could handle his wacky character with ease, being the reputable actor that he is, but Streisand truly surprised me with her performance. I am not a fan of Babs, but I felt that she pulled off her role extremely well. The cast members seem to work very comfortably with each other, and as a result, we get a first-rate comedy.

So, is this going to win any Oscars? Surely not. Is this the finest showcasing of our actors? Not really. Truly, this movie is entertaining, but not monumentally groundbreaking. Some of the humor can be quite raunchy at times, so I would certainly not classify this movie as a "family comedy." However, despite some of its repugnant moments, Meet the Fockers is a success on a minor level. The plot does come full circle with a dose of good-hearted cheesiness. So, give this one a chance. I personally wanted nothing more or less from this film. It was simply satisfying.

The eighth grade team has selected the following people to serve on the eighth grade dance committee: Trista Aronhalt, Matt Hanlin, Cathy Hughes, Emily Lipscomb, Rebekah Rush, Bethany Stephens, Kim Stephens, Morgan Anderson, Brittany Harvey, and Jennifer Cosner. The dance will be held in May.

The next school dance will be held on Jan. 21. It will raise money for the tsunami victims. Brittany Morgan, Kelsie Sanders, and Gabrielle Hintz are responsible for the suggestion that led to this dance.

Mrs. Spiker's classes are taking a whole new approach to the famous country projects this year. Each class is working on a different project activity, and projects are being completed one activity at a time. Dakota Workman's class has created a timeline and a political map. In early January, his class will work on a travel brochure. Dakota's country is Jamaica, and he considers the project "fun and interesting." Kenya is the country Tiffany Thomas chose. To date, her class has completed a recipe and a paper doll. Tiffany's classmate Brittany Hostutler is working on the country Bolivia. They were both "happy and proud" that Mrs. Spiker selected their projects to post on the bulletin board for display.

Social studies teachers are participating in the classroom rounds of the Geography Bee. Final rounds are this Friday. Winners will be announced next week. Gary Thompson, eighth grade social studies teacher, is in charge of the overall organization of this activity.

Mrs. Avona's four classes are reading novels. First and third period classes are reading The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn. Fourth and sixth period classes have just started an in-depth study of the classic To Kill a Mockingbird.

Town Hall

ACCIDENT

The January town meeting was held on Thursday, Jan. 6, at the town hall.

The 2004 Volunteer of the Year award was presented to members of the Accident Cultural and Historical Society and the Garden Committee for the work they did at the Drane House during 2004.

Clay Riley and Brian Hudkins from Thrasher Engineering were present to update the council on the sewer project. The contractors have been working for two weeks to reline the sewer lines. Each household will be notified by the contractor as to when work will be done in its area.

Mayor Carlson will attend the PACE reception in Annapolis later this month. He will be given the opportunity to discuss the current sewer project and the upcoming water tank replacement project.

The county commissioners are scheduled to be at the next town meeting.

The council adopted the Garrett County Multi-Hazard Plan.

The town convention will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 1, at 7 p.m., at the town hall. Nominations will be accepted for mayor and two council members. The current members who are up for re-election are Mayor Richard Carlson and council members Thomas Georg and Charles Hahn.

The next town meeting will be held on Thursday, Feb. 3, at 7:30 p.m., at the town hall.

NATIONAL SCHOOL COUNSELING WEEK WAS PROCLAIMED by the Board of Education for Feb. 7-11. The proclamation, which was signed by all board members, will be presented to each school. It states that "comprehensive developmental school counseling programs are considered an integral part of the educational process that enables all students to achieve success in school." Pictured above, from the left, are Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent; Michele Pavelko, counselor; Bonnie Swyter, counselor; Dr. Phil Lauver, supervisor of pupil services; and Rodney Durst, board president.

Thank You

We know that God lives for we saw Him today
In a hand that was offered to us on the way,
In the warmth of smiles that were offered to cheer us
In the touch of friends who took time just to hear us

We heard His voice in the words of support
Whispered to us when our hope had run short.

Yes, We know that He lives for we see how He sends
His love every day in the caring of friends.

We shall always remember with heat-felt gratitude the comforting expressions of care, concern and sympathy.
Nothing that is loved is ever lost.

GC Narcotics Task Force Releases Stats

The statistics for the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force for the year 2004 were recently released, according to Lisa Thayer Welch, spokesperson and state's attorney.

The statistics were 181 investigations conducted, 143 arrests, and 29 executed search warrants.

In addition, the following drugs were recovered in Garrett County: marijuana, marijuana plants, cocaine, crack cocaine, heroin, ecstasy (MDMA), LSD, methamphetamine, mushrooms, and numerous types of prescriptions drugs.

The task force is comprises a combination of four personnel from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and Maryland State Police. Citizens are encouraged to contact the task force with drug information at 301-387-9566 or 301-895-5889, and may remain anonymous.

Basket Sales To Raise Money For Tsunami Victims

For a limited time, a Cherish the Children basket with 100% of the proceeds going to the American Red Cross and UNICEF specifically for the benefit of children affected by the Dec. 26 tsunami disaster is now being offered by Henn, an American maker of handmade baskets and other products. These baskets along with everything in the Henn catalog are sold by Debbie Friend, branch leader, of Oakland. The basket can be seen and ordered at Stompers or by calling 301-334-3917.

The basket and other details can also be seen at www.hennworkshops.com/debbiefriend. The basket will sell for $35, and is only available through Jan. 31. Henn has set a corporate goal to raise $20,000 through this campaign.

The basket is woven with 3/8 inch weaving splints with a navy accent splint in the body of the basket and a navy trim splint on top of the band. The basket measures 5¾x4x4¾, and is finished in a golden honey fruitwood stain and includes a commemorative pewter tie-on that bears the name of the basket. Accessories that are available to purchase include a plastic liner and a fold-over fabric liner featuring "Tiny Hands," made from white flannel fabric with a primary color children's handprint design.

Message from the Dean's Desk

Garrett College

by Dr. Virginia Broaddus
Dean of Academic Affairs

Like life, education involves challenges. For students to venture to college isn't always easy. It takes determination, support, resources, and even courage. What's more, once students are in college, the challenges continue. Fortunately, Garrett College students quickly realize that much of the support and many of the resources they need to succeed are right here on our campus. Whether they're working with our free tutoring program or with our financial aid office, whether they're seeking assistance with a deferred payment plan or determining which career would suit them best, Garrett students find that they have the support to make accepting the challenge worthwhile.

After our students leave us, they encounter even more challenges in the "real world." Yet part of our goal here at Garrett is to lessen the anxiety behind some of the challenges and risks and to teach students how to take other risks responsibly, to consider their options, and to make their best possible choices. It's always a pleasure for us to hear about students who have left us, made great choices, and learned powerful lessons that they can then share with others.

For instance, Kevin Dodge, Peter Skylstad, other faculty, and I have been delighted to learn that Ricky Long, a graduate of Garrett's natural resources wildlife and technology program, has recently found a position as a forest ranger in Calvert County. Ricky, who also earned a certificate in law enforcement at GC, couldn't have made us more proud, and we applaud him for facing the many challenges involved in pursuing a career as a ranger and for finding a position in which he'll undoubtedly succeed.

On the other side of the world, other former Garrett students have faced enormous challenges, challenges that have left most of us in sadness and in awe. Former GC students Justin Day and John Bray were with Tom Cecil, who devotes a substantial amount of time to instructing climbing for Garrett's Adventuresports Institute, when they encountered the recent devastation in South Asia. We at GC breathed a collective sigh of relief to learn of their safety, just as we felt a tremendous surge of pride that our former students were able to use their smarts and their skills, the latter fine-tuned at Garrett, in helping others. After all, serving our community, whether that community is in Garrett County or half a world away, is one of the greatest gifts we can give.

At Garrett, we try to find opportunities for students to serve not only themselves but others. Indeed, the curriculum for our Adventuresports Institute often focuses on skills designed to help the individual as well as the community. That's why we're delighted that Terry Peterson, assistant professor of adventure sports, regularly leads our students in working for the Transitional Age Youth Program in conjunction with Garrett County Core Service Agency. This program models service for others and highlights learning that happens in and out of the traditional classroom. ASI professor Michael Swiderski is leading another model program. Through a service learning opportunity designed at the request of the Florida Bay Outfitters and the state of Florida, Michael and his students will conduct GPS mapping of the Florida Keys. While in Florida, they are undoubtedly facing challenges and risks similar to those being confronted by Steven Shewach, ASI instructor, and his backcountry living skills students as they navigate the Everglades for part of their course. In each instance, students will have taken calculated risks but will have done so in a safe environment, with instructors dedicated to helping them make good choices that will serve as models for future decision-making in their lives.

Teaching strong decision making, of course, isn't limited to any one aspect of GC's curriculum. We stress weighing options and making good choices in all of our classes, including our sciences and allied health classes. Clearly, many of Carolyn Deniker's former students have learned their lessons well, and we're particularly proud of recent ACM nursing graduates who took at least their first year of coursework at Garrett. We send our heartfelt congratulations to Elizabeth Burgoyne, Brett Friend, Reggan Hershman, Christy Kisner, Brenda Moreland, Tara Toothman, and Sarah Vance. The nursing graduates we know will each face any challenge with integrity and intelligence and will provide wonderful service to the community in which they find themselves.

As we in the Garrett College community find ourselves approaching the start of a new semester, we're glad to gear up and to help students face the challenges that may come their way. Whether we can help advise students about taking one course or six, whether we can offer information about financial aid or career services, or whether we can provide classes in theatre or technology, we at Garrett are here to support students in making decisions that can make the best kind of differences in their lives.

Free Tax Prep. Offered By Comm. Action

Free preparation of individual federal and state income tax returns will be available on Tuesday afternoons and Wednesday evenings beginning Feb. 1 and ending April 14 at the Mary Browning Center in Oakland. The service will be available from noon to 4 p.m. on Tuesdays, and from 5 to 7 p.m. on Wednesdays.

No appointment is required, and taxpayers may have their returns completed while they wait or leave them for processing and later pickup, typically during the next tax preparation day. Taxpayers must bring their 2004 year's returns with them.

The Mary Browning Center is located in Oakland at 104 East Center Street. This free tax return preparation program is organized by AARP, under contract with the IRS, and sponsored by Garrett County Community Action.

One new member, Anthony Lucas, attended the awards program, as well as a member who graduated, Michael Steyer.

The meeting adjourned with the exchange of Christmas gifts.

GRANTSVILLE 4-H CLUB
by Ethan Broadwater, reporter

The January business meeting of the Grantsville 4-H Club was conducted by new president Kasondra Broadwater. Members were reminded by leader Duane Wilhelm to turn in their record books to him no later than Jan. 20. All members approved the purchase of new T-shirts and jackets for all of the members. A new logo was decided upon, and Duane Wilhelm will take care of getting the orders in to the printer.

All members agreed to do two separate fundraisers. The first fundraiser will be selling pizza, and a gun raffle will follow.

Demonstrations were given by Heather and Megan Wilhelm. Megan's was titled "How to Make a Record Book," and Heather's was "How to Make Orange and Strawberry Cupcakes."

Brittany Wilhelm and Ethan Broadwater will give demonstrations at the next meeting. The snack will be provided by Dean and Adam Rounds and Sarah Broadwater.

The next meeting will be held Monday, Feb. 7, at 7 p.m. at the Sportsman's Club.

NORTH GLADE
Samantha Gibson, reporter

The North Glade 4-H Club held a brief meeting at the club's holiday party on Dec. 3. It was well attended by the members and their families.

A short business meeting was held before the party. Members who had not yet turned in their 2005 enrollment forms were given forms to sign and give back to June McClosky. A year ago, our meeting time and day was changed from every third Thursday. It was decided at this meeting that the time and day for our monthly meetings would remain the same, every third Friday at 6 p.m.

It was announced that the club elections would be held at the January meeting and that everyone should be thinking about who they wanted in the officers' positions. June McClosky went over the responsibilities for each office.

Members were reminded to turn in their record books at the January meeting. Donations of money and items for our "Giving Tree" were collected, and as of the meeting over $100 in cash was donated to give to a needy family in our area. A bag full of toys was also added to what we had collected already at Anchor Mart.

After the meeting the club enjoyed a pizza buffet dinner and social time at Uno's, and then went on to see The Polar Express at Garrett Eight Cinemas.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, Jan. 21, at 6 p.m. All members are to come prepared for nominations and election of officers. They are also to bring their completed 2004 record books to give to Debbie. The snack will be provided by the McCloskys.

The Mission Offering from Sunday School will be donated to the Tsunami Disaster Fund in the amount of $458.50.

The Christmas program offering of $347 will go toward the Blanket Fund to purchase 69 blankets.

A bread and cup communion will be held during the morning worship on Sunday, Jan. 16.

In Pastor Moore's absence, Debbie Shaffer will show slides and give a presentation on her mission trip to Guatemala on Sunday, Jan 30.

FRIENDSVILLE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

The Friendsville UMW will meet Monday, Jan. 17, at 7 p.m. at the church. This is a special meeting and all women of the church are encouraged to attend.

GRACE LUTHERAN CHURCH

Holy Communion will be shared on Sunday, Jan. 16, at the Grace Lutheran Church during morning worship services.

The congregation welcomes Ronald Hartman, a first-year seminary student from Gettysburg, to Grace Lutheran Church.

LAUREL RUN CHURCH OF GOD

The Church of God Ministries sent $5,000 to World Vision to support the relief efforts in Sri Lanka, India, Indonesia, and Thailand following the recent tsunami disaster. The Laurel Run Church of God is accepting donations that will be forwarded to World Vision. Anyone interested in making a donation may do so by contacting Norma Uphold, treasurer. Checks should be made out to the Laurel Run Church of God with "gifts for tsunami relief" designated on the memo line and sent to Norma Uphold, Treasurer, 775 Trap Run Road, Friendsville MD 21531. Donations will then be forwarded to World Vision. Donations made by Jan. 31 can be used as a 2004 tax deduction.

The youth group is sponsoring a spaghetti dinner this Saturday, Jan. 15, from 5 to 9 p.m. at the church, weather permitting. They are currently selling tickets to the event at $6.50 for adults and $4 for ages 12 and under. For more information or tickets, persons may call 301-746-5320.

The youth are also taking orders for hoagies to be delivered prior to Super Bowl weekend. To place an order, persons may contact any youth.

BLOODMOBILE VISIT

The bloodmobile visit to the Friendsville fire hall on Dec. 13 netted 15 units. Mary Frantz completed her 8th gallon. The next visit to Friendsville will be in April.

MUNICIPAL PRIMARY ELECTION

Because of the response of candidates for a seat on town council, a primary election will be held Monday, Jan. 24, at the Town Hall from noon to 7 p.m. Voters will vote for six of the following candidates: Herschel H. Allen III, Eugene Dixon, Jane G. Fox, Frances E. Friend, Agnes C. Lichtner, James Allen Naeseth, Joseph E. Sessa, Shawn M. Sessa, Alice Marie Spear, and James Spear. The six winners of the primary will go on to the general municipal election to be held Tuesday, Feb. 8, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., when three new council members will be chosen of the six. Council members who still have one year to serve are Thomas L. Fike, Harry Hobart Griffith, and Robert G. Sines. Mayor Spencer R. Schlosnagle also has one year remaining in his current term.

Absentee ballots can be obtained by contacting Election Board chairperson Robin Sines before Jan. 24 at 301-746-5603. For more information, persons may telephone Town Hall at 301-746-5919.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

EVERYDAY SCIENTIST
THE CASSINI SPACE PROBE

Q. I read that the Cassini space probe has now reached Saturn, but is going to visit the moon Titan instead of the planet itself. That seems a mighty long way just to visit a moon. How come?

The space probe is actually known as "Cassini/Huygens" and is named after two different scientists from centuries ago. Here's what's going on:

Cassini was launched from Earth in 1997, and spent seven years getting to Saturn, by doing fly-bys of other planets (Venus, Earth, Jupiter). In such a maneuver, the space probe picks up speed as it "slingshots" around the planet. Very high speed is necessary to reach out to Saturn, and Earth-launched rockets aren't powerful enough to send something directly all the way to Saturn.

In June 2004, Cassini slipped through a gap between two major rings around Saturn, and has now dropped into orbit around Saturn. The reason it went through the gap was to avoid being hit by the rocks that make up the rings. All it got hit with was some fine sand in the gap.

In the next step is, a smaller space probe (named "Huygens") disconnected from Cassini and is now headed toward the surface of the moon Titan. This is where it gets interesting.

The planet Saturn is one of the "gas giants" – it is a huge ball of gas (as is Jupiter, Uranus and Neptune) and doesn't really have a surface. A probe sent down into such a planet just keeps going deeper until it is lost. Such a probe descended to Jupiter on an earlier space mission. On the Cassini mission, Saturn itself can be studied from orbit for a longer time than if a probe descended into it.

Titan, on the other hand, is a solid ball with a surface, and actually has an atmosphere somewhat akin to that of Earth. That makes it very interesting, because nothing else in the solar system seems to have an atmosphere.

The disconnect-sequence started on Christmas Day 2004, with Huygens separating from Cassini and traveling closer to Titan. Then, 21 days later, the Huygens probe began descending to Titan in a manner akin to the way a manned space capsule returns to Earth. The probe enters the atmosphere of Titan at high speed, and the heat dissipated as it penetrates the atmosphere slows it down a lot. Then a parachute opens to make the final descent to the surface. At the very last minute, retro-rockets fire to prevent the Huygens probe from hitting the surface too fast.

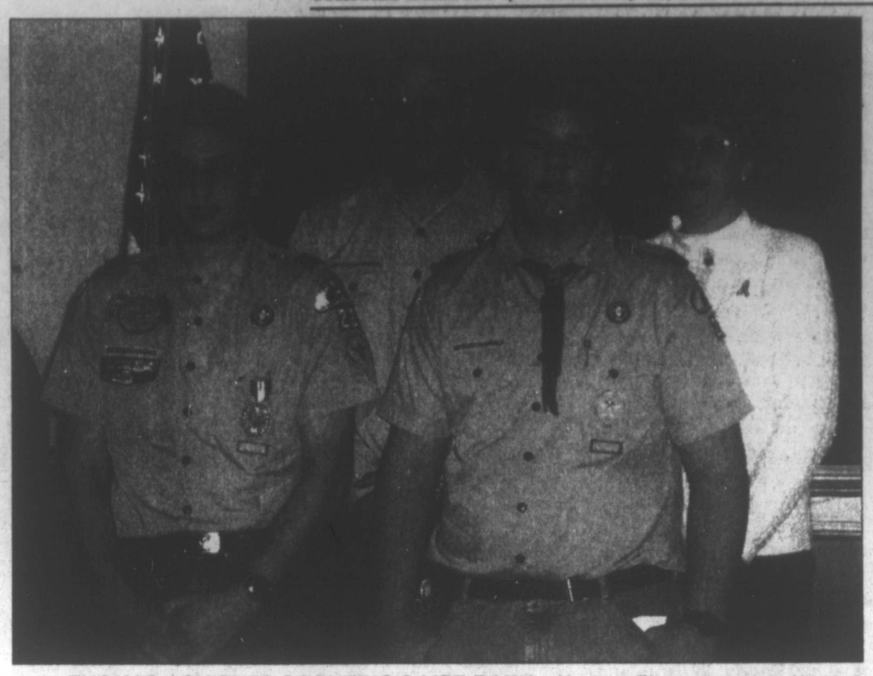
Everything has to go right or else the object will crash. There have been soft landings before on other places (Mars Rover, etc.), but Saturn and Titan are awfully far away. Moreover, we don't really know the properties of the atmosphere of Titan as well at Earth's atmosphere, so predicting the exact trajectory is terribly difficult. There is a telemetry system on-board the Huygens probe, but if the landing is hard, the whole thing becomes just scrap metal. NASA engineers are not betting the farm on a soft landing here – the main mission of Huygens is to study the atmosphere of Titan.

What will the Huygens probe do? For about two hours, all the way down toward the surface, it will take data (and telemeter it back to Cassini) about the properties of the atmosphere – the chemical composition, density, etc. Once on the surface, it will continue to take data for another half hour or so until the batteries run down. So a crash landing won't totally spoil the mission.

Cassini, meanwhile, has quite an agenda of tests to run over a four-year period. It will orbit Saturn 74 times, using the slingshot effect around Titan to change its orbit occasionally. (We could never afford to send enough fuel all the way to Saturn to enable major orbit changes via rocketry; the gravitational attraction of Titan is needed again and again.) Cassini will map the magnetic field of Saturn, photograph it from many different directions, fly by other moons, and so forth, during those years. All the data collected will be regularly transmitted back to Earth. The electrical power on Cassini is expected to last until late 2008.

One of the interesting features of this entire mission is that it represents not just NASA's effort, but the collaboration of many international partners from 17 countries. In fact, the entire Huygens probe is an accomplishment of the European Space Agency.

Dr. Sheahen is a physicist who was educated at MIT. He lives at Deep Creek Lake and has taught physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.



THOMAS ACHIEVES SCOUTING'S LIFE RANK – Nathan Thomas, a member of Boy Scout Troop 22, was awarded the rank of Life Scout during a recent Court of Honor. The Life Scout rank was presented by Troop 22 Scoutmaster Allen Taylor, with Nathan's older brother, Eagle Scout Wesley Thomas, assisting at the ceremony. A sophomore member of the Southern High School football team, Nathan earned the prestigious Arrow of Light as a member of Cub Scout Pack 31 before advancing to the Boy Scouts. Pictured at the ceremony, in the front row from left, are Wesley and Nathan Thomas, and in the back row are the boys' parents, assistant Scoutmaster Bill Thomas and his wife Kim. Troop 22 is sponsored by the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club and meets on Monday nights at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church in Oakland. Persons interested in Scouting can contact Troop 22 committee chairman Bob Stephens at 301-334-8647 for more information.

COLLECTING ALUMINUM CANS

Mary Ann Umbel is currently collecting aluminum cans, with the proceeds to go toward the Tim Umbel Memorial Scholarship Fund. All help will be "greatly appreciated." Anyone who has cans that they would like to donate to this cause may do so by contacting Mary Ann at 301-746-5109, and she will come pick them up.

The Tim Umbel Memorial Scholarship Fund is a scholarship set up by Coach Paul Edwards of the Northern High School boys' basketball team in Tim's name, to be presented to an NHS senior boy or girl athlete who has played four years of basketball, is a leader in the community, and has achieved the academic requirements set forth by the fund. The fund is through the First United Bank and Trust, and donations can also be made at any bank location in Tim's name.

This is an ongoing project, and Mary Ann encourages everyone to "keep saving."

Swanton Mother-Daughter Team Up For College Study

Swanton residents Tammy Wilson and her daughter, Heidi Michaels-Burns, will both receive pharmacy technician certificates after each completes the upcoming spring semester at Allegany College of Maryland. The pair will also be pursuing phlebotomy/EKG technician certificates at the college beginning in the fall.

A 2003 graduate of Southern High School, Heidi Michaels-Burns is a child psychology major at ACM. She is the daughter of Mike Michaels of Kitzmiller.

Tammy Wilson is the wife of Randy Wilson and the mother of two. She is employed with TLHC, based in Hancock.

Heidi said she thought it would be beneficial to further her education in different fields, and persuaded her mother to attend college with her.

Bartlett Visiting North Korea With House Delegation

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett (R-Md.) and five other House members left Washington, D.C., on Saturday for a visit to Pyongyang, the capital of North Korea. The bipartisan group will meet with North Korean officials in an effort to improve relations between the two nations.

This is the second invitation that the North Koreans have issued to members of Congress in two years.

The delegation's 10-day trip through Asia also includes visits to countries involved in the "Six-Party Talks" (those making diplomatic overtures to North Korea) to share their findings. Besides the U.S. and North Korea, other countries involved in the talks are South Korea, China, Japan, and Russia.

The group also plans to visit the tsunami-torn areas of Indonesia and deliver 13,000 pounds of medicine, food, water, and toys to the victims. Other congressional delegations have also recently visited that area.

Leading the U.S. delegation is Curt Weldon (R-Pa.), the second-ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee. Silvestre Reyes (D-Texas) and Solomon Ortiz (D-Texas), both members of the Armed Services Committee, Eliot Engel (D-N.Y.), member of the International Relations Committee, and Fred Upton (R-Mich.) are also making the trip. Bartlett is also a member of the Armed Services Committee.

He said the delegation's intention was to meet with North Korean ruler Kim Jong Il, but such a meeting could not be assured.

Lisa Wright, spokesperson for Bartlett, said the purpose of the group's visit to North Korea was to support President Bush's "position on the Six-Party Talks and to do so by putting the face of Congress behind the administration with real people meeting with North Korean government officials to emphasize to them Congress's interest in a peaceful solution, and that the United States is not hostile to North Korea or the North Korean people."

On the delegation's last trip to North Korea, Weldon developed a peace plan. "I am hopeful that with an ongoing dialogue we can continue to address important issues such as nuclear weapons production, drug trafficking, and human rights that have prevented us from working together in the past," Weldon said before departing on his second trip to North Korea.

The delegation is scheduled to return on Jan. 18.

NHS After-Prom Meeting Slated

The Northern High School After-Prom committee has scheduled a meeting for 6 p.m. Monday, Jan. 17, at Annie's Kitchen for all parents of NHS students and other members of the community interested in planning for the spring event.

Persons desiring further information may contact committee members Chris Miller at 301-746-7040 or Debbie Workman at 301-746-8717.

Salisbury VFD Slates Dinner

The Salisbury Volunteer Fire Department and Ambulance will hold an "all-you-can-eat" roast beef dinner on Sunday, Jan. 23, from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. at the fire hall, located along Ord Street in Salisbury, Pa.

The dinner will consist of roast beef, mashed potatoes and gravy, noodles, vegetables, cole slaw, choice of beverage, and dessert. Take-outs will be available.

The cost is $7 for adults, $3 for children under age 12, and free for children under 5.

January Is Nat'l Cervical Cancer Awareness Month

In recognition of National Cervical Cancer Month – January – the Garrett County Health Department is urging all women to have annual pap smear tests.

The test checks for abnormal cells on the cervix and can detect HPV infection, precancerous cells, and cancer cells.

"In many cases," said a Health Department spokesperson, "treatment can stop cervical cancer before it fully develops. If caught early, treatment for cancer of the cervix can be easier, and the chances of curing it are much higher."

The Health Department will offer a Pap test screening clinic on Friday, Jan. 28. This clinic is free to any woman. To schedule an appointment, women may call 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Md. Dairy Association Conference Will Focus On Manure Management

The Maryland Dairy Industry Association's (MDIA) annual meeting and conference will feature presentations by national leaders in manure management. The event will be held from 8:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. on Feb. 17 at the Carroll County Agriculture Center in Westminster.

The speakers will explore new uses for manure as ways to better manage nutrients and increase farm revenues.

"Manure management is of particular concern to farmers in the Chesapeake Bay watershed, and we are proud to work with our dairy farmers to explore profitable, alternative uses of manure," said Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley. "Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. and I are committed to working with farmers to find ways to protect the environment while sustaining an economically strong dairy sector in Maryland."

The education program is designed to provide attendees with a clear understanding of the options available to them to manage manure. While most Maryland dairy farmers continue to use manure as a valuable source of fertilizer on their fields, some producers are exploring alternatives.

Curt Gooch of the Pro-Dairy program at Cornell University (Ithaca, N.Y.) will discuss the challenges and opportunities of managing manure as well as discuss federal clean air requirements.

Two dairy farmers will also speak: Bob Foster of Middlebury, Vt., and Ted Mathews of North Clymer, N.Y. Foster, who heads Vermont Natural Ag Products in addition to managing his family's 350-cow operation, will discuss marketing dairy manure compost.

Vermont Natural Ag Products markets compost created from the residuals out of Foster's anaerobic digester. Foster also serves on the board of directors of Agri-Mark/Cabot Cooperative of dairy farms.

Mathews operates a 675-cow dairy operation in Chautauqua County, N.Y. Recently, to address concerns he had with odor, nutrient management and increasing farm revenue, he installed an anaerobic digester to produce electricity for his farm.

Dana Kirk of Michigan State University in East Lansing is a national expert in phosphorus management for dairy farmers. He will provide an overview of mechanical and chemical removal methods for phosphorus in manure.

Also on the agenda is a presentation on the management of financial risk of farming through crop insurance from Dr. Wesley Musser of the University of Maryland.

"I think we have an outstanding group of speakers lined up for this conference," said Robert Ramsburg, MDIA president and a Walkersville dairy farmer. "We really hope Maryland farmers take this opportunity to learn as much as they can about some of the opportunities that exist for many of us in manure management."

Maryland Department of Agriculture and the USDA Risk Management Agency are sponsors of the MDIA meeting.

To register for this conference, persons may call Debra Spurrier at MDIA, 301-473-7522. A fee of $15 is due with registrations received by Feb. 3. After that date, the fee is $20. The fee includes the cost of lunch.

For more information about the conference, persons may call Mark Powell, Maryland Department of Agriculture, at 410-841-5775.

2005 NONINSURED CROP DISASTER ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Farmers are reminded that the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) is intended to provide coverage equivalent to the Catastrophic Level of Crop Insurance for crops that are not insurable in the county. NAP is like Catastrophic Crop Insurance in that the first 50 percent of the farmer's loss is not eligible for payment. The payment rate is 55 percent of the crop's average market price. Benefits are limited to $100,000 per crop year for each participant.

NAP covers all non-insurable, commercially grown crops produced for food and fiber. Any acreage of forage intended to be mechanically harvested, but grazed instead, must be appraised before grazing.

Producers who received benefits under the 2001/2002 Crop Disaster Program on non-insurable crops are reminded that they are required to obtain NAP coverage on those crops for the 2005 crop year. The sales closing date for all annual crops such as wheat, barley and commercial produce is close of business February 15, 2005.

Growers of the above crops must pay the nonrefundable service fee of $100 per crop, per county. Fees are capped at $300 per county, not to exceed $900 for farmers with interests in multiple counties.

For 2005 crops that suffer damage or loss, producers must file a timely notice of loss. For prevented planting claims, this would be 15 calendar days after the final planting date of the crop. For low yield claims and allowable value loss, a timely report would be the earlier of 15 calendar days after the damaging weather or natural disaster, or date loss of the crop becomes apparent.

If a producer is eligible to receive NAP payments and benefits under any other program administered by the Secretary of Agriculture for the same crop loss, the producer must choose whether to receive NAP payments or benefits under any other program. A producer is not eligible for NAP benefits and an insurance indemnity.

For further information regarding the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program, persons may visit the Preston County Farm Service Agency Office located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza or telephone (304) 329-1923.

Garrett Habitat Chapter Slates Annual Meeting

Garrett County Habitat for Humanity, which will build its 50th home in Garrett County this year, will host its annual meeting beginning at 6 p.m. Monday, Jan. 17, at the Deep Creek Brewing Co. in McHenry. The public is invited.

"The mission of Habitat is to build safe and affordable homes," said Garrett chapter coordinator Doug Riley. "Sometimes it is a little overwhelming to think about our mission of totally eliminating substandard housing in the state of Maryland, but we are making progress."

Maryland's first Habitat for Humanity affiliate was founded in 1982, and since then the nonprofit has worked in partnership with 700 homeowners across the state, serving close to 2,000 people. A house is completed every six days in Maryland, and Habitat for Humanity International completes one house worldwide every 26 minutes. The international organization will erect its 200,000th house next year.

"The impact on these families is amazing," said Riley. "[For example,] the Morris children no longer have to find peace and quiet in their closet so that the can do their homework; Mary no longer has to carry in water every day because there is no indoor plumbing; and no longer do three, four, or sometimes even seven to nine children here in Maryland have to share a single bedroom or bathroom. School and job performance are improving, and health issues have improved significantly," Riley stated.

"Not only am I gaining stability in my life, but I also have goals and dreams again," commented a Habitat home recipient named Kelly (last name withheld for privacy).

Habitat's work affects more than just the homeowners, according to Riley. "Entire communities have regained pride in their neighborhood, and volunteers have gained from learning new skills and feeling the joy of working together with others for a great purpose," he said.

Persons interested in applying for a Habitat home may call the Garrett County Habitat for Humanity office at 301-533-0600. Any civic organization, business, or church interested in additional information about Garrett County Habitat for Humanity may contact Riley at the number listed above, or via e-mail at driley@garrettcac.org.

HEALTHY COMMUNITIES™ HEALTHY YOUTH GARRETT COUNTY

Assets are qualities and experiences youth need to unleash their potential for growing into healthy, caring adults. For more information about Healthy Communities•Healthy Youth™ (HC•HY): Garrett County and about building assets in youth, call 301-334-1189.

HC•HY Garrett County and some of the activities above are sponsored by Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc./LMB (Local Management Board), the Garrett County Health Department, Garrett County Extension Service, and the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention.

FOP SUPPORTS "PLAY HARD. LIVE CLEAN." – The Garrett County Lodge #99 Fraternal Order of Police recently donated to the "Play Hard. Live Clean." campaign. Larry Gnegy, chaplain of the lodge, is pictured as he presents the donation to Venessa Stacy, coordinator of Community & Youth Development for the Garrett County Health Department (GCHD). The "Play Hard. Live Clean." program promotes positive lifestyles among youth with events throughout the year. Originally initiated from GCHD's Combating Underage Drinking committee, the program assists youth in maintaining a positive image and avoiding underage consumption of alcohol. The series of events has drawn attendance ranging from 125 to 300 youth at each event, Stacy said. The next event of the program will be tubing at the Wisp on Jan. 31, beginning at 6 p.m. Additional information may be obtained by contacting the health department at 301-334-7720. O'Brien Graduates Salutatorian At PIA

Danny O'Brien was recently awarded salutatorian status during commencement exercises at the Pittsburgh Institute of Aeronautics (PIA). As salutatorian, he had the opportunity to address his fellow classmates, PIA staff, guests, family, and friends attending the ceremony.

O'Brien earned an associate's degree in specialized technology in the Aviation Maintenance Technician Program, as well as a Program Completion Certificate from the airframe and powerplant curriculum.

During his enrollment at PIA, he was inducted into the Alpha Beta Kappa National Honor Society. He was also commended for his hard work and willingness to "go the extra distance" to achieve academic excellence.

O'Brien is returning to PIA to earn a second associate's degree in specialized technology in the Aviation Electronics Program.

He is the son of Ron and Kim O'Brien of Swanton.

TOOLS OF THE TRADE!

If you're like most folks, you probably believe that print advertising is an excellent tool for marketing and selling your home. However, the ad does not sell the home, the sales person does! Print ads are written in a way to pique the prospect's interest and contact the agent for more information.

That's why the entire story is not included in the advertising. By encouraging buyers to call for more details, the agent can then qualify them as simply "lookers" or as genuine "prospects." This is also how the agent discovers the particular desires and objections of the buyers, taking the opportunity to effectively promote the features of your property.

Keep in mind that ALL of the agent's ads are working for you, even if yours is not prominently featured every time! It's been shown that few people buy the property they first called about. Your home is promoted to anyone for whom it seems suitable, even if it's not the one in which they first expressed interest.

Internet advertising is another important tool of the trade. More and more buyers are looking first on the internet for property information, rather than in traditional newspapers and magazines.

But while many buyers read every available real estate magazine and newspaper, they're looking to their local real estate agent to provide them with the best information and listings. While ads are important, many buyers come from signs, referrals, other agents, and your agent's list of ready-and-waiting prospects. When you're ready to sell, take advantage of all these resources!

If you'd like to sell your home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

A Decision for GOD

Decisions, decisions...our lives are full of them. What is the right way to handle this...should I allow my teenager to do that? Is this the person I should marry? Is a move across country right for my future? Is this the right time to consider a career change?

Decisions are stressful; differing opinions can even increase our confusion and weigh our spirit down. What now? Why not pray about it? Include God in your decision. Psalm 16:8-9 says, "I have set the Lord always before me. Because He is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth. My flesh shall also rest in hope."

With God by our side we have peace and strength as we face the challenges of our lives. Keep God close to your heart as you go through each day. Study His Word and learn of His will for us as you worship this week at your local church or synagogue. Won't you make your decision for God?

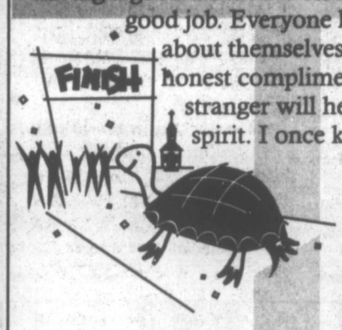
Everyone Needs Encouragement

Usually, it is easier to find fault in someone, rather than to appreciate the good qualities that they may possess. Constantly criticizing a person will only weaken their incentive to do their best, or to be a better person; however, constructive encouragement bolsters a person's enthusiasm and ambition. Parents, teachers, and employers who use the "encouragement approach" usually achieve good results, and having a good attitude is essential to doing a good job. Everyone likes to feel good about themselves, and giving an honest compliment to a friend or stranger will help lift a person's spirit. I once knew an owner of a business who would never compliment his employees, because he thought if he told them they were doing a good job they would ask for a raise in pay. With this kind of attitude it is difficult to keep loyal and good employees who feel that they are contributing to the business; and in fact, they may actually feel that they are being taken advantage of. God wants us to treat others as we want to be treated, and sharing a kind word of encouragement to those we come in contact with reflects God's love and good will.



But exhort one another every day, as long as it is called "today," that none of you may be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin.

Value of Nutrients During Pregnancy

The consumption of certain nutrients during pregnancy is important for the development of the baby and the health of the mother. Most health experts indicate that while dietary sources of vitamins and minerals are usually preferred, there are times when supplements may be necessary. Studies continue to point to instances in which the diet of the mother-to-be is not balanced with protein, fiber, and certain vitamins and minerals, and thus nutrient supplements may be needed.

One of the most important nutrients for the developing baby is folic acid. Since it is difficult to get enough folic acid from the average diet, the US government recommends that 400 micrograms of folic acid be taken every day before and during pregnancy to prevent possible birth defects in the brain and spine. Most physicians also recommend that the diet of pregnant women contain adequate amounts of vitamin C, vitamin D, calcium, and iron. While vitamin A is essential for embryonic growth and development, excess amounts of vitamin A from supplements should be avoided. Check with your doctor and/or pharmacist if you need help choosing a supplement.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Here's another of famed wit Ambrose Bierce's timeless definitions, this time on the subject of history: "an account, mostly false, of events, mostly unimportant, which are brought about by rulers, mostly knaves, and soldiers, mostly fools."

• In Indonesia, the traditional wedding cake should consist of at least six tiers — and the wealthier the families are, the higher the cake is.

• If you're of a morbid turn of mind, you can spend the night in Lizzie Borden's house — it's been turned into a bed and breakfast.

• Those who keep track of such things claim that every day in the United States, there are 15,342 cosmetic surgeries performed on women. Do you think men are less vain than women? The evidence of numbers would seem to support that claim: Only 2,466 cosmetic surgeries are performed on American men every day.

• The Jack Dempsey fish — a species named after the famed boxer due to its pugnacious nature — is partial to guppies, shrimp and snails when it comes to mealtime.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 18, 1778, English explorer Captain James Cook becomes the first European to discover the Hawaiian Islands. Cook and his crew were welcomed by the Hawaiians, who were fascinated by the Europeans' ships and their use of iron.

• On Jan. 20, 1870, Victoria Woodhull and her sister Tennessee Claflin open Woodhull, Claflin & Co., the nation's first brokerage firm run solely by women. The successful firm represented an early victory for equal rights in the often-chauvinistic world of Wall Street.

• On Jan. 19, 1921, crime novelist Patricia Highsmith is born in Fort Worth, Texas. Highsmith, whose novels include "Strangers on a Train" and "The Talented Mr. Ripley," frequently portrayed a world chillingly free of morality or consequences.

• On Jan. 21, 1959, Carl Switzer, better known as Alfalfa from the "Our Gang" comedies, is shot and killed after an argument over a $50 debt. Switzer became a hunting guide and bartender in Northern California after his acting career fizzled.

• On Jan. 17, 1961, in a nationally televised speech, Dwight D. Eisenhower addresses the American people for the last time as president. During the speech, Eisenhower first warned of the unfettered growth of the "military-industrial complex," as he coined it.

• On Jan. 22, 1973, in a historic decision, the U.S. Supreme Court rules in Roe v. Wade that women, as part of their constitutional right to privacy, can terminate a pregnancy during its first two trimesters. Only during the last trimester, when the fetus can survive outside the womb, would states be permitted to regulate abortion of a healthy pregnancy.

• On Jan. 23, 1997, Madeline Albright, born Maria Jana Korbelova in Czechoslovakia in 1937, is sworn in at the White House as America's first female secretary of state. As head of the U.S. State Department, Albright became the highest ranking female official in U.S. history.

Training Tools

Q. We just got a new puppy, and wonder what kind of training tools are available for housebreaking and obedience training? Also, how fast will our puppy learn? — Tammy C., Atlanta

A. The rate at which your new puppy will learn depends both on his ability to learn and on the amount of time you spend training him. Some dogs learn faster than others, so you will need to be patient and consistent until he "gets it."

Many training tools are available to help your puppy acclimate to life with humans. Below is a short list of items you should consider purchasing:

• Collar: Leather or nylon collars are durable and comfortable, especially for larger dogs.

• Leash: Again, leather or nylon will last a long time. It should be 4-6 feet long and attach securely to the collar.

• Food toy: Dogs go wild for these hard rubber toys filled with food or treats. They are mentally stimulating — meaning they can be used as a reward, a diversion or simply to combat boredom.

• Deterrent spray: A bitter-tasting liquid that pets avoid is a good way to discourage puppies from chewing furniture, electric cords or other items — especially when you're out of the room.

• Training discs or gravel can: These noisemakers can help modify unacceptable behavior by creating a clattering noise that startles the dog. Refer closely to training manuals when using these items, so they will be effective.

• Water pistol: A deterrent similar to noisemakers. Remember that you must catch the dog within a few seconds of misbehavior for any of these methods to work.

• Dog bed: Whether you make it out of old blankets or buy a durable pad, the bed creates a cozy, safe environment for your puppy and, as he grows, can be added to the training process. It should always be a safe place for him to relax.

• Toys: Of course! Your puppy probably has a few already, and has selected some favorites. Use these as rewards and as playtime tools.

This basic list should help you get started with a good training regimen. There are a dizzying number of other accessories available at pet stores, but do your research before buying them and make sure they will help, and not hinder, your new pup's obedience training.

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Q. I have an anvil that was used in a blacksmith shop in Mississippi at least a century ago. Who might be interested in it? — Steve, Buffalo, N.Y.

A. Dick Postman collects anvils and might be interested in the one that you have. His address is 10 Fisher Court, Berrien Springs, MI 49103. Although I have not seen it, Postman has written a reference book about the identification and values of vintage anvils.

Q. I would like to find the name of a dealer who might be interested in "Lady Delphine," a Royal Doulton figurine that I own. — Delphine, Howell, Mich.

A. Sandy and Ed Seward are co-owners of Vintage Collectibles, a shop that specializes in Royal Doulton collectibles. Another excellent resource is the Royal Doulton International Collectors Club, 701 Cottontail Lane, Somerset, N.J. 08873.

One TV Lenz isn't another's offspring

By Jay Bobbin

Q: Is Bethany Joy Lenz of "One Tree Hill" any relation to the '70s and '80s actress Kay Lenz? –Pamela Lawrence, via e-mail.

A: We recently had the chance to put that to Bethany Joy Lenz herself. The delightful young actress told us, "I get that question all the time. I am not related to Kay Lenz, which I know seems odd, because I think we really do look alike. I knew who she was, but I had never really seen her until I TiVo'ed an episode of 'MacGyver' she was in. I'd love to meet her someday and tell her how many people ask about the two of us."

Incidentally, Bethany Joy will return as singer and young wife Haley when "One Tree Hill" resumes new episodes on The WB Network on Tuesday, Jan. 25 – the same day Warner Home Video releases a DVD set of the drama's first season.

Bethany Joy Lenz

Q. Why did Daniel Davis, who played the butler on Fran Drescher's "The Nanny," not attend the reunion show? –Maria L., Franklin, Wis..

A: He had a New York stage commitment that precluded him from taking the cross-country trip when the recently aired Lifetime special was made last summer in California.

Q: I've been watching "The West Wing" since it debuted, and I still don't know President Bartlet's first name. Could you please tell me what it is? And what's the name of the vice president, and who plays him? –Shelley, via e-mail.

A: President Bartlet's (Martin Sheen) first name on the NBC series is Josiah, although those close to him call him "Jed." As for the show's vice president, the current one is Robert Russell, played by Gary Cole: his disgraced predecessor – who looks to be making a bid for the post-Bartlet presidency – is John Hoynes, played by Tim Matheson.

Q: What ever became of Kyle Chandler, who starred in the series "Early Edition"? –Neil, Santa Ana, Calif.

A: After that show, he did a couple of others: ABC's "What About Joan" and NBC's "The Lyon's Den." Currently, Chandler is filming director Peter Jackson's remake of "King Kong," which also stars Naomi Watts, Jack Black and Adrien Brody ... and a really, really big ape.

Q: Does Ben Affleck have an actor brother who played the part of Elliott on the Nov. 21 episode of "Cold Case"? That could be his twin. –Anonymous, via e-mail.

A: Affleck does have a brother who's also an actor – Casey Affleck, presently on view in the movie "Ocean's Twelve" – but that's not who played the recent "Cold Case" guest role on CBS. That was Josh Randall, who co-starred on NBC's "Ed" for four seasons as the title character's doctor buddy, Mike.

"GARRETT CONTAINERS IS A SMALL BUSINESS WITH A BIG HEART," said Chris Manges, spokesperson for the American Red Cross, Greater Alleghenies Region. With a work force of 95, the Accident-based company held a blood drive in which about one third of the employees donated 30 units of blood. Considering that donated blood is routinely split into three components, which can potentially help three different patients, the employees of Garrett Containers may have helped nearly 90 patients in need. "Garrett Containers truly exemplifies what it means to be 'a company that cares,'" Manges said. In fact, he added, even six new donors rolled up their sleeves for the cause. The American Red Cross Blood Services staff out of Johnstown, Pa., is pictured in front of the SCU (self-contained unit) during its stop at Garrett Containers. From left to right, they are Nancy Boyer, CS; Tom Bayush, CSI; Lisa E. Jones, CSII; and Melanie Whetzel, CSII. The Greater Alleghenies Region serves hospitals, patients, and donors in a 100-county area in Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia, with more than five dozen blood products and related services, according to the Red Cross. Garrett Containers Systems designs, tests, and fabricates aluminum containers for commercial and military customers.

Evangelist Messick To Hold Services At Crellin Church

Evangelist Steve Messick will hold services at the Crellin Assembly of God Jan. 16 through Jan. 19. Sunday services will take place at 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m., and Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday services will be held at 7 p.m.

A former government employee, Messick resigned to go into full-time ministry. He has been involved in the ministry of evangelism for 25 years and is an ordained minister with the Assemblies of God.

In addition to conducting revivals and crusades in the United States, Messick is involved in short-term overseas mission crusades. He is also a singer, songwriter, and recording artist, with 10 recordings to his credit.

The Crellin Assembly of God is located at 2220 Hutton Road. For more information, persons may call Pastor Bruce Craig at 301-334-3867.

Hospice Info Seminar Set At Lighthouse

An informational seminar on the services offered by Hospice of Garrett County will be presented at 10 a.m. Friday, Jan. 14, at the Garrett County Lighthouse. The public program will take place in the basement of the building, which is located along Route 39 on the western outskirts of Oakland.

The featured speaker will be Brenda Butscher, executive director of the local hospice. In addition to profiling hospice care, she will address the county's growing needs for hospice services, and take questions from the audience.

This informational session is sponsored by the Beacon Outreach program, and all members are asked to attend. For further information, persons may call 301-533-0998. For information on the Beacon Outreach program, a consumer-directed support effort, persons may call the number listed above or write to Harrison Stewart, P.O. Box 2132, Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550.

HOSPICE ANNOUNCES RAFFLE WINNERS – Hospice of Garrett County Inc. recently announced the winners of several raffles held recently as fundraisers for the organization. The drawings were held at the Volunteer Appreciation Luncheon. The livestock raffled off were purchased at the Garrett County Agriculture Fair and donated to Hospice. The baby beef was purchased and given by Mettiki Coal and Ed Wilburn Construction. The hogs were donated by the Terra Alta Bank of Oakland, F&M Bank, and Sheriff Dick Sanders. The lamb was donated by Dixon Electrical Services LLC, and the quilt was given by the Heritage Quilters. The raffles raised $7,462 for Hospice. Some of the winners, donors, and volunteers who sold winning tickets are pictured. In the front row, from left, are Brenda Butscher, Hospice executive director; Beverly Beard, Heritage Quilters and Hospice board president; Sheryl MacLane, seller; Kim Conroy, F&M Bank; Virginia Dixon, Terra Alta Bank; Lorraine Mason, seller; Travis Newton, Oakland, winner; and Jean Fafrak, seller. In the back row, same order, are Gary Berkebile, seller; Sheriff Sanders; Garrett Dixon, Dixon Electrical Services; Ed Glotfelty, Oakland, winner; and Frank Schad of Mettiki. Other winners not pictured were Ron Opel, Grantsville; Sandy Fredlock, Swanton; Darrell Rexrode and Wayne Ray, Mtn. Lake Park; Chip Gindlesberger, Bill Saltyziak, and Nancy Ferry, Oakland; and Bill MacLane and Barry Frazee, Friendsville.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

I should be prepared for the pain – after all, I saw it over and over again – the separation of mother and baby when we weaned Misty's foals from her. The first agony I experienced was when little Flicka and Peaches, still depending on their mother's milk, were separated from Misty, who was locked in a secure stall and with an udder filled with unneeded milk and her heart longing for her little darling babies. Nothing could comfort her. Maybe some day I can share again life with Claire. As far as I once wandered, I always found my way to come home, and now I am living one half mile away from my mother.

Even if you do not get the Weather Channel, you can tell from the sound of the winds during the predawn hours of upcoming winter weather. It sounds like real winter, with the wind coming from the west and north where it is turning frigid. According to the Weather Channel, our very abnormal warm temperature will go back to normal soon, and the rain will turn into snow or ice or a winter mix.

The song "It Never Rains in Southern California" is not holding true, as Southern Californians are dealing with their worst weather nightmare, with torrential rains and flooding and mud slides. The Ohio Valley floods we can blame at least partially on our weather, with all rain falling on our already saturated ground running straight into our creeks and rivers, at least on this side of Meadow Mountain, which then goes into the western watershed, eventually the Ohio River, and finally, the Gulf of Mexico. Usually, most of our ground is covered with snow, which stays put for most of the winter.

I noticed in the past when our western mountains get lots of snow, we do not get much at all. The mountains of California and the Pacific northwest have received the most snow since the very early part of the 20th century. I can't remember less snow here during my lifetime, which, of course, is only the last half of the 20th century. Even if we did have a white Christmas it was rare that we did not have at least one snow day off during December.

The old saying "Open winter means a full graveyard" might be true, as the snow and cold kill more germs. It does seem like this year a lot of bugs are going around and around. One is just hanging around me. This is about the worst, most long-lasting cold I ever had. It is not a terrible one, just unending, and it does come with the usual fatigue. I am too tired to get a decent night of sleep. Just worrying about the things I need to get done and am too tired to do got me up at an insanely early hour. That and the ache in my only walking leg left didn't help.

The Poholsky household had a very busy weekend, with Lenny's daughter Pam here. They held a back-to-college dinner party on Saturday evening, as Torrey would be returning to college Sunday morning. Guests included Cindy and Sam Stanton, and Dave and Nancy Beachy. Nancy celebrated her birthday a few days early.

Then it was get up at 4 a.m. to take Torrey to D.C. to catch an airplane to Greensboro, N. C., to arrive there in time to play a round of golf on a warm beautiful afternoon. He is having a great time there and he will start his college baseball career in the spring as a member of the varsity team. It does not seem that long ago when Sally and I were together in childbirth classes. But the 18-plus years were bliss for both of us, as very proud mothers watching those tiny babies turn into sweet little kids. Every year brought something new. I wish I could live it all over again. It was the best time of my life. Claire is also back at college in Morgantown, leaving on Sunday also.

Speaking of Sunday, that day was the birthday for Ellen Housley just a few days after Sheila Southerly had one on Thursday. Next week on Wednesday, my Meredith will celebrate her birthday. She still enjoys birthdays more than gals in my age group. It is a shame to say, when she born we were embroiled in a war with Iraq. That is one thing that has not changed much, but that tiny baby turned into a tall, curvaceous young lady. She still is as beautiful as she was when she was a newborn and looked like a real-life Gerber baby.

Meredith and Maddy Whittemore are members of Northern Middle School volleyball team. They are very busy practicing their new sport, with both of their mothers too sick with cold symptoms and stomach-ache illnesses. We don't feel very well. In fact, I feel like a train has run over me.

But I am a woman with many duties to accomplish. Besides this column, I face a very close deadline to produce two fresh pieces of art for the Gallery. I intended to do a painting of our white stag, but so far I have not seen him "in person" and am trying to find out an important detail about him, like what color his antlers are. Very few people notice much about the things they see. Sally Poholsky saw him twice, but unfortunately did not get very close, and it was also nighttime. I am not too familiar with deer anatomy to paint them without a picture. I can draw or paint horses doing just about anything from memory. However, Kevin Dodge delivered a stack of hunting magazines today, so I finally have something to work from, except it is a far cry from ordinarily brown, older, trophy-type buck to a young pure white one. So I will still have to depend on my imagination.

Our "hostess with the mostest," Sally Poholsky, entertained her long-time friend from Oakland, Janet White, for her birthday last Thursday with a meal at Penn Alps.

Now back to art and trying to make myself half human – so far no luck on the last two tasks. It is odd how more dark winter days without snow cover and with just a hazy pale gray sky with landscapes almost colorless can affect you.

I got a somewhat mysterious phone call from an unfamiliar reader urging me not to run away from Garrett County. He could not give me a good reason not to, but if I could afford to go anywhere, I don't have anywhere to go. I would be too afraid to go even though I barely feel alive here these days. At least I have a home here. Anyway, I would feel lost away from my home in Bittinger.

Not too much local news this week. Aunt Helen Englar and son Michael from Westminster came to Garrett County over the weekend for the funeral service for Rhea Hetrick of Salisbury, Pa. Also coming from out of town were John Walsh, W.Va.; Alberta and Paul Nolder, Baltimore; Bernadette Henson from St. Albans, W.Va.; Marie Bland and daughter, Reisterstown; and Kenny and Ruth Glotfelty, Carlisle. Services were held at the Lutheran Church on Saturday afternoon in Salisbury. The preceding are cousins of Rhea's. Other Garrett County cousins also attended, including: Harriett Buckel, Donna Glotfelty, Ruth DiPaolo, Rodney Glotfelty, Carol Bass, Margie and Bob Brenneman, and Courtney Englar. Also attending were Bill and Linda Oester from Salisbury, who were next door neighbors of Rhea and have adopted Rhea's loyal companion, her dog.

Derek Buckel, son of Bill and Tina Buckel, recently graduated from Naval Basic Training at Great Lakes Naval Station in Great Lakes, Ill. He spent the holidays with his parents and has left for Nuclear Station, S.C.

BID SOLICITATION:
Design Services
for
Acid Mine Drainage Abatement Project
Amish Road Phase II Seeps, Garrett County, Maryland

The Western Maryland Resource, Conservation, and Development Council (RC&D), a non-profit conservation group, is soliciting bids from qualified contractors to provide Design services for an Acid Mine Drainage Treatment/Wetlands Enhancement Project. The project site is an acid seep on a previously abandoned strip mine located on private lands in northern Garrett County, Maryland. The contractor wilt work cooperatively with the RC&D and the Maryland Bureau of Mines to create an appropriate acid remediation project design to be included in a future construction bid package.

Scope of Work

1) The Bureau of Mines has obtained right-of-entry for all activities on the site.

2) The contractor will review all available water quality data and other pertinent data for the site. The Bureau of Mines will provide the water quality data, topographic mapping, aerial photographs, and etc.

3) The contractor will provide conceptual design and engineering drawings for Anoxic Limestone Drains (ALD) and/or other appropriate and suitable technology to correct the acid mine impacts. In addition, the contractor will also develop conceptual designs and engineering drawings to enhance on-site existing wetlands into more natural wetland conditions. Road improvements will also need to be incorporated into the design to include installation of broad-based dips and water bars to control sediment and erosion problems.

4) The contractor will submit the 35% complete design proposed abatement system on existing mapping of the area (a topographic map will be supplied by the Bureau of Mines in AutoCad format) using approximate measurements with respect to known features by February 25th. A brief (no more than twenty pages) report of design sciences design criteria and material specifications, with anticipated post-construction water quality results, will be included. The RC&D and Bureau will review this proposed design and return to contractor by March 4th.

5) The contractor will meet with the RC&D and the Bureau of Mines personnel on-site to discuss the proposed project design if necessary.

6) The contractor will design a detailed second draft of the abatement system (65% complete)) including any modifications discussed at the field meeting, and submit these to the Bureau of Mines by March 18th. The RC&D and the Bureau of Mines will review this draft and return it to the contractor for any revisions by March 26th.

7) The contractor will design a detailed third and final draft of the abatement system (95% complete), and submit these to the Bureau of Mines by April 8th. These plans are to be suitable for inclusion in a construction bid package and are to include all necessary project specifications. The RC&D and the Bureau of Mines will review this final draft and return it to the contractor for any revisions by April 15th. The final design package will be due at the Bureau by April 29th. This design (100% complete) will include all revisions discussed after the 95% review. Final payment to the contractor will be made once these plans are reviewed and approved.

8) The contractor will submit the final plan to the Bureau of Mines with specifications in both hardcopy and in a compact disk file format compatible with AutoCad 2004.

General Information about Amish Road Seeps:

- The project is at a previously constructed wetland on private land off Amish Road near Grantsville, Maryland.
- Artificial treatment wetlands which can be altered by the project are already present on the site. Natural enhancement of some of these wetlands will be incorporated into the project.
- There are three separate areas that will need to be addressed on this site.
- There are approximately six to eight individual seeps in this area, three of which are known to have no dissolved oxygen (DO).
- Total discharge flow has been less than 50 gallons per minute at all three sites.
- pH values in 5's and 6's.
- Acidity has been less than 150mg/l, and iron (Fe) has been less than 30mg/l.

Contractor Qualifications

- Bidders must have a minimum of three years' experience with AMD treatment/abatement design work.
- Bidders must have designed a minimum of six AMD-related projects that have been constructed.
- Bidders must have a degree in chemistry, biology, geology or a related field,
- Proof of these qualifications must accompany bid package.

If you have general questions about the project site or the work of RC&D, please contact: Gary Reeves, RC&D Amish Road Project Manager, at 301-733-2973. If you have technical questions about the acid mine drainage abatement project, please contact Tamara L. Davis, MD Bureau of Mines Amish Road Project Manager, at 301-689-6764 ext. 214.

A pre-bid meeting will be held at the Bureau of Mines conference room on January 20, 2005, at 1:00 p.m. A site visit will occur immediately after this meeting. It is strongly recommended that you attend both the meeting and the site visit. If for some reason you are unable to attend you may request a bid package from Tammy Davis by calling 301-689-6764 ext. 214. Please submit your bid, in duplicate, on January 28th, 2005, by 3:00 p.m. in person or by mail to: Maryland Bureau of Mines, ATTN: Tammy Davis, 160 South Water Street, Frostburg, MD 21532.

HELP WANTED – Garrett College, a two-year community college, located in a four-seasons mountain recreational area in western Maryland (approximately 180 miles west of Baltimore and Washington, D.C., and 120 miles south of Pittsburgh), is seeking an associate dean for academic affairs. This position will have direct oversight of the college's arts and sciences and education divisions. Qualifications: Master's degree in fine and performing arts, humanities, social sciences, mathematics, sciences, or education; doctorate strongly preferred: degrees must be from institutions accredited by USDE-recognized accrediting bodies. Five years' experience required, including three years full-time teaching, some at the college level. Familiarity with the community college mission, transfer programs, education programs, and developmental programming initiatives in math and language arts required. The applicant will be responsible for leading a diverse faculty with expertise in multiple areas and must use superior communication skills to articulate a vision and to provide dedicated, energetic, and compassionate leadership and management with integrity. Candidate should have the ability to contribute to the enrichment of the multi-cultural and learning environment of the institution. Responsibilities include the ongoing development and implementation of a vision for Garrett's education and arts and sciences divisions; developing and implementing curricula in response to community and academic needs, particularly for transfer programs, especially in education; overseeing and advancing a strong developmental studies program, including support services for students; supervising full- and part-time faculty and staff; managing a budget; advising students; maintaining high academic standards and integrity; working with the public schools in developing and delivering programs; representing the dean of academic affairs in his or her absence; and interfacing with the public and college community in a variety of professional and academic situations. Excellent management and communication skills are required. This is a 12-month administrative position with teaching responsibilities. A copy of the job description is available upon request. Salary range: $41,564 to $55,718 with excellent fringe benefit package available upon successful completion of provisional period. Please send résumé with cover letter, transcripts, and the names and contact information of three most recent supervisors to Dr. Virginia Broaddus, Dean of Academic Affairs, Garrett College, 687 Mosser Road, McHenry, MD 21541. Application deadline: February 7, 2005. Start date: on or before July 1, 2005. For assistance with the application process, please contact Linda Fike, director of personnel, at 301-387-3049 or lfike@garrettcollege.edu. Minority and women candidates are encouraged to apply. EOE. 45-2.

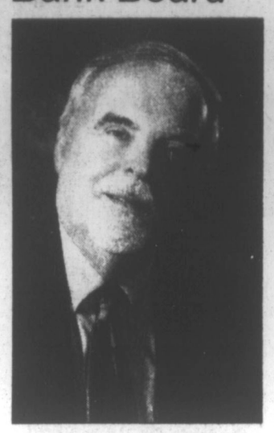
Ruddell Joins Bank Board



Gary R. Ruddell has been elected to the board of directors of First United Corporation and its subsidiary, First United Bank and Trust, according to corporate board chairman and chief executive officer William B. Grant

Ruddell has been affiliated with First United for several years. In 1991, he was appointed to serve on First United's advisory board, and in 2002 was nominated for the corporation's advisory council, where he served until his recent appointment to the board of directors.

Ruddell graduated from Northwestern Senior High School in Hyattsville. In 1973 he graduated from University of Maryland, College Park, with a bachelor of science in business and management. He is currently chief executive officer and entrepreneur of Total Biz Fulfillment, where he has devoted the past few years to re-engineering his company for future expansion.

Ruddell has taken an active involvement in community service, and two of his most recent projects were the spearheading of the ReNew Grantsville Library Committee and the Maryland Salem Children's Trust fundraising steering committee. He is a 10-year member and past president of the Grantsville Rotary Club, and is also a current member of the board of directors of the Adventure Sports Center International in McHenry. He also serves as vice chairman of the Garrett County Development Corporation.

Ruddell and his wife Luanne reside in McHenry, and the couple have three children and one stepdaughter.

Graduate Prog. For Educators Offered By JHU

Johns Hopkins University, in collaboration with the Maryland State Department of Education, is offering a graduate program to prepare teachers of students with visual impairments. The graduate certificate program is open to special education teachers currently working in Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Carroll, and Frederick counties.

Scholarships equal to 75 percent of tuition will be available to those who qualify. The program, offered by the Graduate Division of Education of the School of Professional Studies in Business and Education at Johns Hopkins, is designed for certified special educators interested in working with students with visual impairments.

Program participants will gain the knowledge and skills necessary to provide accommodations and appropriate instruction to students with low vision or blindness, according to a program spokesperson.

Courses will be scheduled in the early evenings and Saturday, and will be held in a central location in western Maryland. Upon completion of the program, graduates will be expected to work for two years in a Maryland school.

For an application, persons may contact Julianne Taylor, program coordinator, at 410-516-8393 or e-mail jbtaylor@jhu.edu.

Annual "Bundle Up" Blanket Drive Now Under Way

Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc., Community and Energy Services is holding its annual "Bundle Up" Blanket Drive from now through Feb. 1. The blanket drive is conducted each year to aid Garrett County residents who are experiencing an energy crisis during the winter months.

The following establishments will be collection sites for the blanket drive this year: Ruth Enlow Library of Oakland, Ruth Enlow Library of Grantsville, Ruth Enlow Library of Friendsville, Ruth Enlow Library of Kitzmiller, Bloomington United Methodist Church, Zion Lutheran Church, Fairview Church of the Brethren, Cherry Grove of the Brethren, and Asher Glade Church of the Brethren. Donations should be taken to any of these sites prior to Feb. 1.

All donations will be stored and distributed at Garrett County Community Action located at 104 East Center Street Oakland, Maryland. Persons in need of blankets may contact Amy Piper-McConnell, AmeriCorps coordinator at Garrett Community Action, at 301-334-9431, ext 132.

Maryland Life To Host Social At Visitors Ctr.

Great State Publishing, the publisher of Maryland Life magazine, will host a social at the Garrett County Visitors Center in McHenry on Saturday, Jan. 29, to help familiarize readers and advertisers with the new bimonthly lifestyle magazine. This will be the second in a series of statewide socials that the publishers have held.

"The event will give Garrett County residents a chance to meet the Maryland Life staff and regional advisory board members, and provide input on issues of content and style," said a spokesperson for the magazine.

Members of Great State Publishing's Maryland board is an advisory committee made up representatives from each county and municipality. The members advise the publishers on noteworthy events and interesting developments in their various areas. They also host and attend the socials in their local geographic regions.

Garrett County board members coordinating and attending the Jan. 29 social are Vianne Bell of Good Timber Bed & Breakfast and Linda Taylor of Railey Mountain Lake Vacations. Gail Shofer Hall, a western Maryland representative for the magazine, is also coordinating the event.

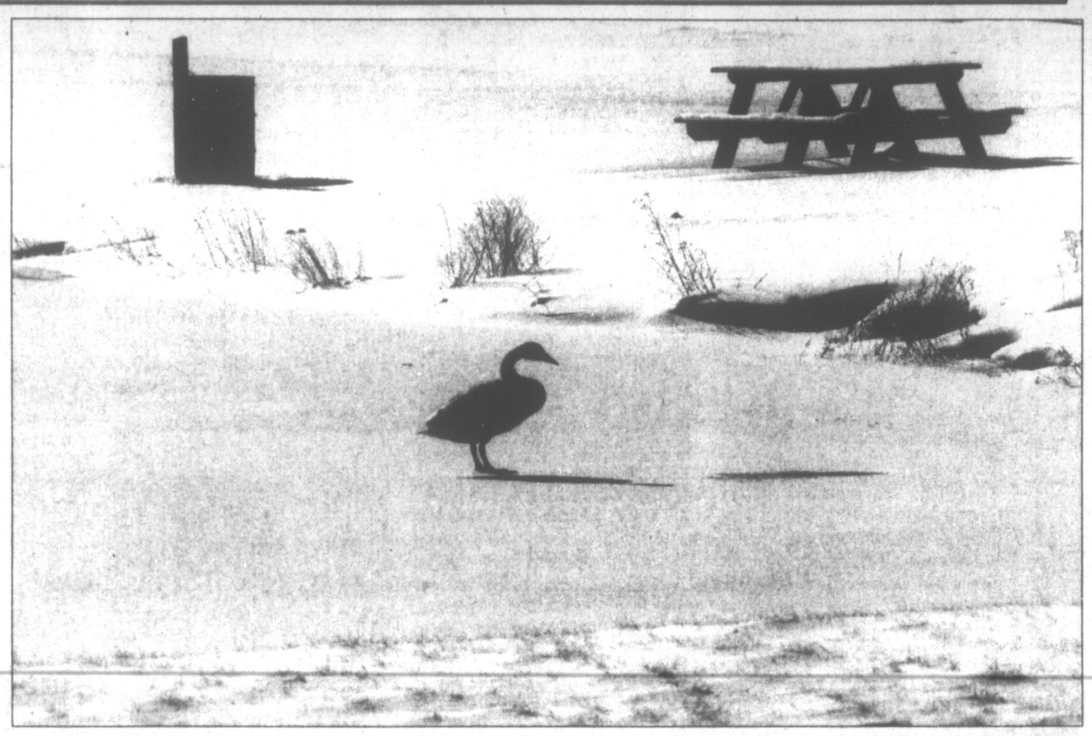
Those interested in attending the local social are asked to contact Bell at 301-387-0097 or info@goodtimber.net.

Great State Publishing plans to host several of these gatherings each quarter in locations throughout the state. The first social was held in Frederick in December, and upcoming socials are planned for Baltimore City, Annapolis, Ocean City, and Cumberland.

Located in Frederick, Great State Publishing was founded in August 2004. Its board and management team is composed of journalists, publishers, and community leaders.

"With Maryland Life, Great State Publishing will cover Maryland's diversity of identities and include content on real estate, building, remodeling, recreation, health, living, dining, entertainment, and more," said the spokesperson.

For more information on Great State Publishing and Maryland Life magazine, persons may visit online at maryland-life.com or call 301-696-1060.



A LOST SWAN? Some residents in Accident have been worried this week about a visitor to the town pond. This young tundra swan seemed to be a little confused, standing on the frozen surface of the small body of water. By the looks of his plumage and bill color, he probably hatched last year, according to Fran Pope, a local bird expert. The Department of Natural Resources was alerted to the swan's presence, as it is not usual for a tundra swan to stay on a frozen pond, nor to be traveling alone. Usually the water birds are seen in families. The DNR reported this morning that they had not received another call about the swan, which they were expecting if the bird remained in Accident. Photographer John McEwen, who took the photo on Tuesday afternoon, said the swan seemed calm and content, despite the 11-degree temperature.

Ehrlich's Budget Boosts Funding For Education, Health Services

by Mike Torralba
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Gov. Robert Ehrlich boosted state spending by 4.2 percent in the proposed $25.9 billion 2006 state budget he released Wednesday.

The budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 would increase total spending by $1.1 billion. Elementary and secondary education won the greatest increases.

The budget would increase K-12 funding by $428 million, or 9 percent, from the current fiscal year, to $5.2 billion. Spending on health services would receive a $270 million boost and would still comprise the largest chunk of general fund expenditures, at 25 percent.

The budget calls for a $67 million increase in higher education funding, including a $27 million increase in need-based financial aid, according to the governor's budget overview.

Local governments would receive $5.1 billion in total aid from the state, a $474 million increase over the current appropriation.

Ehrlich said tax increases would not be necessary. Projected increases in revenue would come instead from an improving state economy.

The largest portion of state revenues, that from individual income taxes, was expected to increase by 6 percent in the current fiscal year and by 7.4 percent in 2006. Sales tax revenues are expected to grow as well, the administration said in its budget highlights.

But questions are just beginning to arise as to which programs will be cut and which will receive a windfall.

"It's ups and downs. It's a very difficult time being in government," said Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert. "Some got the goods, and others got the shaft."

Lawmakers will now set out to determine which programs fall into which of Miller's categories.

Before the General Assembly began earlier this month, the governor's Department of Budget and Management asked state

GC Officials Discuss New Building Permit Schedule For Utility Towers

The Garrett County commissioners are considering setting a new building permit fee schedule for all utility towers, including radio, television, cellular telephone antennas, and electric generating wind turbines.

Garrett County Department of Planning and Land Development staff this week suggested that a fee of $1 for each foot of above-ground elevation, up to 200 feet, be established for a tower permit, with a $10 charge for each foot thereafter.

"I think it's a good idea," said County Administrator Monty Pagenhardt.

The department's director, John Nelson, said now was an appropriate time to consider establishing higher fees for towers, given the proposed construction of wind turbines in the county.

"This is simply a proposal for your consideration," he told the commissioners.

The Maryland Public Service Commission has approved Clipper Windpower's construction of 67 turbines along 13 miles of Backbone Mountain and is reviewing plans for another 24, slated for construction atop Roth Rock by Synergics Energy Services.

Nelson said Clipper Windpower had inquired about the county's permitting process and would like to begin construction this spring. Each turbine will cost the company more than $1 million to build, he noted.

If the commissioners approve the proposed fee structure, companies would have to pay a $2,200 permit fee to construct a 400-foot wind turbine in the county.

The number of cellular towers has also increased in the county in recent years. Jim Torrington, permits and inspection chief, said his department had issued 11 permits for cellular towers in the last five years, and that the average height of those towers was 300 feet. The permit fee for each of

Woman Charged In Bloomington Area Bear Kill

A Savage River Road woman who said she shot a bear out of concern for her dog's safety has been charged with an illegal kill by the Maryland Natural Resources Police.

Susan Maude LeMaster killed a 210-pound female bear near her house before daylight on the morning of Dec. 4, according to NRP Cpl. John Milbourne.

The bear was one of three bears that Milbourne said had apparently been attracted to the location by corn that was being left out to feed wildlife. "We charged her because we believe there was no reason for her to shoot the bear," Milbourne said Thursday. "It and her three yearling cubs were running away from her when she fired three times."

The charge of hunting or killing a black bear during closed season carries potential maximum penalties of a $1,500 fine and/or a six-month jail sentence.

LeMaster is slated to appear in Garrett County District Court next month.

Flu Cases On Rise; Vaccine Still Available

Cases of influenza are being reported across the state of Maryland with the activity level being defined as "widespread" through the week ending Jan. 8, according to a report from the Garrett County Health Department (GCHD).

Widespread activity is defined by influenza-like illness, institutional outbreaks in at least half of the regions, and lab-confirmed influenza in the state. The number of lab-reported influenza cases locally is low, but is expected to increase in the next few weeks, according to the report.

With the expected increase in influenza activity, Garrett County Health Officer Rodney Glotfelty is encouraging individuals who meet the eligibility guidelines for the influenza vaccine to get it. The health department received an additional limited supply of vaccine to meet the needs of those in high-risk priority groups, which was expanded on Jan. 6 by Maryland state health officials.

Any person who thinks he or she qualifies and wants to schedule an appointment for a flu shot should call the health department at 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111.

Immunizations will be given by appointment only at the cost of $18 each. Persons with Medicare cards should bring them for billing purposes. The GCHD will not be responsible for billing private insurance or Medical Assistance, the report noted.

For more information, persons should call GCHD at the numbers noted above, or visit the department's web site at www.garrett-health.org.

MeadWestvaco Sells Luke Mill; Transaction Seen As Positive Step

The MeadWestvaco company this week announced the sale of its papers business, which includes the mill in Luke. Rick Watro, vice president of mill operations, said the transaction bodes well for the mill and its employees (many of whom are Garrett Countians).

MeadWestvaco sold its paper assets to a private buy-out group for $2.3 billion, according to reports. The private group is a new company controlled by Cerberus Capital Management, a private investment firm based in New York. The new ownership company will be based in Dayton, Ohio.

However, the paper production at the Luke mill will continue with the same management team, according to reports. On the closing date of the multi-billion dollar sale, all current staff members will be offered employment with the new company, which has yet to be named.

"The sale of the papers group will create the opportunity for the Luke mill, along with four other former Westvaco mills, to establish an independent company focused solely on our coated and carbonless business," Watro said.

Watro will be joined in management by former Luke mill manager Roger Dandridge, who is currently the vice president for coated paper operations for the MeadWestvaco Paper Group. Peter Vogel Jr., current president of the papers group, will reportedly become the CEO of the new company.

John A. Luke Jr., chairman and CEO of MeadWestvaco, said the sale is an important strategic step, and that it will allow the company to reduce its debt, return value to shareholders, and position the company for profitable growth.

At the Luke mill, the bargaining units' contracts will remain in place until they expire, according to Patsy Koontz, public relations director. She said there are few details as of yet as to the full impact of the sale, but the transaction is seen as very positive for all parties.

Watro said the current "talented and dedicated workforce" at Luke, combined with the mill's new ability to focus solely on its paper operations, creates the potential for "huge success."

Other plants included in the sale are located in Ohio, Michigan, Maine, and Kentucky. The mills have a combined annual capacity of approximately 2.05 million tons of coated paper, 290,000 tons of carbonless paper, and 110,000 tons of uncoated paper.

The transaction includes 900,000 acres of forest land in six states that provide wood to make the paper.

Bartlett, Other Delegation Members Urging Dialogue With North Korea

by Megan McIlroy
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland Rep. Roscoe Bartlett said the United States must maintain "open dialogue" with North Korea to persuade the isolated communist country to drop its nuclear weapons program.

The Frederick Republican spoke Tuesday afternoon at Andrews Air Force Base, where he and a delegation of congressmen had just returned from a trip to North Korea and five other nations, including Indonesia where they delivered six tons of tsunami relief supplies.

"I am reminded of a (line) from the Bible: If you would have friends, be friendly," Bartlett said of the approach the United States should take with the North Koreans.

The delegation members — three Democrats and three Republicans — said they spoke informally with North Korean officials in an effort to get that government to participate in the six-party nuclear disarmament talks aimed at the communist country.

Rep. Curt Weldon, R-Pa., called the delegation's trip "an overwhelming success." Provided there is no inflammatory language in President Bush's inaugural or State of the Union speeches, North Korea will likely join the six-party talks about nuclear disarmament,

Crellin Man Sentenced For Assault, DUI

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced a Grantsville man last week in Circuit Court to two 18 month sentences in the Garrett County Jail. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Ervin Estil Sliger, 56, Crellin, had pleaded guilty earlier to second-degree assault and driving under the influence. Both events occurred in June 2004. The assault charge was the result of an investigation by Garrett County sheriff's deputies who had responded to a Crellin-area home after Sliger had been at the residence and made inappropriate comments to a resident, according to the state's attorney. The victim also reported Sliger had grabbed her hand while speaking with her.

Having obtained an arrest warrant, a deputy was traveling into Crellin to arrest Sliger for the first incident when he observed Sliger driving a farm tractor on the roadway and consuming an alcoholic beverage.

After stopping Sliger, the officer performed field sobriety tests on Sliger and made additional observations to determine that he was under the influence. Slinger was then arrested on the warrant and for the DUI.

GCMH BILLBOARD FEATURED IN MAGAZINE – Garrett County Memorial Hospital was recently featured in the latest edition of the Healthcare Advertising Review. The publication, which highlights the latest trends in healthcare advertising, chose GCMH's "Experience, Excellence, Expansion" billboard, designed by Linette Sines, the hospital's marketing and development specialist, to appear in the January/February 2005 edition. In addition to the northbound Rt. 219 billboard near Wal-Mart in Oakland, the publication also included the hospital's sign that hangs on the Glotfelty barn along southbound Rt. 219 near Glotfelty Tire, near Oakland. Sines returned to the hospital's marketing department last summer and has been designing marketing materials since 1996. "Linette has proven herself to be a great asset to our hospital's marketing/public relations staff," said Kathy R. Greaser, CFRE, director of marketing and development. "We are very pleased that both Linette and Garrett County Memorial Hospital have been honored by this public recognition."

MORE THAN 340 PILLOWS from Garrett and Allegany counties are on their way to American soldiers stationed in Iraq, thanks to contributions from area businesses, organizations, and individuals. Practically buried in the pillows is Rachel May, who coordinated the Pillows for Patriots campaign. She said she was pleased that the brief campaign sponsored by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce more than tripled its goal of 110 pillows. Some monetary contributions were also received. LOCAL COUPLE REALIZE "GREAT AMERICAN DREAM" Tim and Stacy Ashby's dream of owning their own home recently became a reality, thanks to Garrett County Community Action's First-Time Homeowner Program. The young couple were the 200th participants in the program, which began in 1994. See story for details. Pictured, left to right, at the closing for the Ashby's new home are Deb Swiger, GCCAC home ownership and rehabilitation loan coordinator; Tim and Sta-cy Ashby; Sue Liller, Railey Realty; Debbie Beitzel, Long & Foster Realty; Deane Foy, First United Bank & Trust; and attorney Len Eiswert of Eiswert, Janes & Kepple.

Homeowner Prog. Celebrates 200th Closing Milestone

The year 2005 should be a great one for a young Garrett County couple. Tim and Stacy Ashby, participants in the Garrett County Community Action Committee's First-Time Homeowner Program, recently moved into their new home along Hutton Road. The closing negotiation for the home was the 200th for the program.

Since 1994, it has helped low to moderate income families purchase their first homes through special financing, interest rates, and payment assistance.

"In addition to making a sound investment in their family's future," said Cindy Sharon, program director. "The Ashbys may now enjoy a place that they may call their own."

Prior to purchasing their own home, the couple rented for several years. They no longer have to worry about a landlord deciding to no longer rent to them, noted Sharon. Additionally, they can express their personalities in the décor, have house pets, and hold large family barbecues and gatherings, she added.

Clients must have a stable income and meet certain income guidelines to be eligible for the program. For example, the maximum annual household income limit for a family of two is $35,050. For a family of four it is $43,850, and $50,850 for a family of six.

The clients need to be credit worthy, committed, and knowledgeable, added Deb Swiger, home ownership and rehabilitation loan coordinator.

Clients are required to attend two three-hour training/educational workshops, which are held Monday evenings. Swiger and other GCCAC staff members discuss issues such as the financial obligations of homeownership, what lenders are looking for in prospective borrowers, budgeting, goal setting, and credit.

Local professionals also volunteer their time at the workshops. Mortgage specialists from First United Bank & Trust, M&T Bank, and F&M Bank review the clients' credit reports with them and explain what they need to do if they have some blemishes on their credit.

Craig Ingram and other local attorneys from the firm of Eiswert, Janes & Kepple also discuss legal issues involved in purchasing a home so that clients can understand their legal documents.

Professional home inspector Dennis Murray of Building Specs also volunteers at the workshops. He discusses home inspection and offers energy saving and maintenance tips.

Local real estate agents discuss purchase negotiations, the agent's role, sales offers, contracts, and other issues.

After the workshops, Swiger then meets with the clients on a one-to-one basis to go over private financial issues such as how much they want to spend on a home, budgets, down payments, and financing options.

She indicated that the goal of the program is to set clients on the "path to homeownership," even if they have some issues at the present time that may keep them from obtaining a loan.

"We really believe in this program," Swiger said. "We like to think of it as a hand-up, not a hand-out."

Sharon noted that Garrett County "celebrates" a 78 percent rate of homeownership, which is 10 percent above the national average. The Ashbys are now a part of that "Great American Dream."

For more information about the First-Time Homeowner Program, persons may call Swiger at 301-334-9431.

Gov. Ehrlich's Young-Driver Initiative Focuses On Safety, Penalties, Parents

Governor Robert Ehrlich Jr. last week launched "an ambitious young driver initiative to improve safety on Maryland's roads by strengthening parental involvement and improving the instruction of young drivers between 15 and 20 years of age." In addition to three legislative initiatives, Ehrlich announced the creation of the Governor's Work Group on Young Drivers to study issues related to the safety, conduct, and education of young drivers, as well as increased parental involvement.

"More than a hundred young Marylanders were killed on our roads in 2003," Ehrlich said. "Inattention, impairment, and inexperience put our children and other commuters at great risk every day. The goal of my young driver initiative is simple: Put well-trained, attentive, and responsible young drivers behind the wheel. I look forward to working with lawmakers this session and this work group over the coming months to ensure we don't lose another young life to irresponsible driving."

Ehrlich plans to introduce three pieces of legislation in the 2005 legislative session related to young drivers. They are:

•Stronger Learner's Permit Period: The governor will introduce legislation to improve the driving skills of young drivers by lengthening the learner's permit period from four to six months. Under the current graduated licensing system, a learner's permit may be obtained at age 15 years, 9 months and must be held for at least four months. The prospective driver may take a road test and obtain a provisional license at age 16 years, 1 month. The governor's bill would extend that date by two months, to 16 years, 3 months. The National Transportation Safety Board recommends a learner's permit period of at least six months.

•Tougher Provisional Driver's License: After successful completion of the learner's permit period, a provisional driver's license is issued to the driver for a period of no less than 18 months. In an effort to encourage young drivers to be safer on the road and obey the restrictions of a provisional license, the governor's legislation will mandate 90-day license suspensions for violations of the seat belt and curfew restrictions during the provisional license period.

If the driver is convicted of a moving violation during the provisional license period, the 18-month provisional clock is restarted from the date of the violation. The legislation will restart the clock after the 90-day suspension is completed for restriction violations: failure to wear a seatbelt and driving between midnight and 6 a.m.

•Penalties for Driving Under the Influence: Ehrlich will also introduce legislation to revoke the license of a driver under the age of 21 convicted of an alcohol or drugged driving offense for three years or until the driver turns 21, whichever is longer. This bill addresses the administrative penalties for drunk and drugged driving issued by the Motor Vehicle Administration. Under current law, drivers under 21 convicted of DWI/DUI are not treated any differently than those over 21, despite the fact that alcohol consumption is illegal.

"This legislation will serve as a powerful deterrent to underage drinking and driving," said a spokesperson for the governor's office.

"The measures Governor Ehrlich outlined today will better prepare young drivers to operate a vehicle and act responsibly behind the wheel," Robert L. Flanagan, secretary of transportation, said last Thursday. "The incentives are there for both parents and young drivers to work together so the drivers are ready to deal with the challenges they will face on the road. This is a common sense approach to saving lives."

Flanagan will chair the work group, which will focus on the five "I's of teen driving: inexperience, inattention, impairment, involvement, and instruction. It will also study ways to strengthen the role of parents as their children learn to drive. The Work Group's complete membership and schedule will be announced at a later date. The members will report back to the governor by fall of 2005.

The governor's office noted the following statistics about young drivers in Maryland:

•There were 106 people between the ages 13 and 20 who were killed on Maryland roads in 2003.

•One in five teenagers is involved in a crash in his or her first year driving.

•Motor vehicle crashes are the No. 1 killer of teenagers nationwide.

•Minors account for 1.6 percent of the driving population in Maryland, yet this same population is responsible for 5.3 percent of the motor vehicle accidents in the state.

Ehrlich Launches "Countdown To Kindergarten"

by Deitrich Curry
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Gov. Robert Ehrlich kicked off a new $500,000 statewide campaign Tuesday promoting early education and child preparation for kindergarten.

The yearlong effort, "Countdown to Kindergarten: Learning Begins at Birth," will emphasize parents dedicating more time to learning with their children before they set foot in a school building.

Dubbing 2005 "The Year of the Child," Ehrlich said the initiative will help more children succeed in school.

The campaign will include statewide radio advertising emphasizing that learning begins at birth. It also will provide free educational materials, involve community-based promotions statewide, and encourage parents to include learning activities in daily routines.

"We want every parent in the state to read 20 minutes a night with their child," Ehrlich said.

He released a Department of Education study that showed that nearly half of Maryland's children arrive at kindergarten without the skills needed to fully learn at that grade level.

The National Research Council also reported that 90 percent of brain growth occurs between ages 0 and 5, yet 90 percent of public spending on education occurs after age 5.

During the brief ceremony, Ehrlich's older son, Drew, 5, read a couple pages of a book to demonstrate his progress after reading with his parents every night. Ehrlich also said that one of the best parts of the initiative was that many people were working together to support the campaign.

Representatives from the Maryland State Department of Education, Maryland Head Start Association, Friends of the Family, the Baltimore Ravens, and Discovery Communications were among those there to show support for the initiative.

Dr. Rolf Grafwallner, coordinator of early learning programs of the Maryland State Department of Education, said that the program begins in such an early stage of the child's life that it promotes eager learning.

"We need parents that really work with kids and support their education," Grafwallner said.

Atwood Collins III, chairman of the Countdown to Kindergarten committee, spoke about how the initiative saves money on remedial education.

"One dollar invested in early education is equivalent to $7 spent on remedial education," said Collins.

Ehrlich also stressed the importance of every child knowing how to read by kindergarten, and how that could affect other grades in school. "Without the essentials, first grade becomes intolerable," he said.

Maryland's Gun Safety Laws Draw "A-" Grade From Brady Campaign

by I-Wei J. Chang
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Maryland earned a grade of "A-" for its gun-safety laws in a report recently released by the Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence that gave grades of "D" or "F" to 31 other states. "Maryland has some really good gun laws," said Anne Rosello, associate director of communications at the Brady Campaign. "It requires background checks for all guns, when some states don't."

Only six states got an "A" in the report from the Brady Campaign. The state's high marks were welcomed by Leah Barrett, executive director of Cease-Fire Maryland, but she said there is still more to do, especially in law enforcement.

"We need tools and resources" to enforce gun laws, Barrett said. This includes "more money, more cops on the beat, more detectives, and better computer resources."

The eighth annual report rated states on whether they had seven types of gun laws, ranging from triggerlock laws to a requirement that background checks be done for private sales.

Maryland scored high marks for its laws aimed at protecting children from gun violence, such as those that limit access to handguns and assault weapons by unsupervised youth. The state also requires built-in locks on guns as well as a seven-day waiting period and background check.

The state's lowest grade, a "C," came because Maryland limits the ability of local governments to pass gun laws that are tougher than the state's laws. The Brady report said Maryland allows local governments to regulate guns only in cases involving minors and in places of assembly, a level of flexibility that it criticized as "minimal."

Rosello said urban areas, for example, might want to pass stricter measures to deal with higher crime rates.

But gun-rights advocates disputed the notion that gun laws lower gun-related crimes. "Maryland already has plenty of gun laws, but it hasn't lowered crime in Baltimore," said Sanford Abrams, vice president of the Maryland Licensed Firearms Dealers Association in Baltimore. Gun laws will not deter a person who intends to break other laws, such as committing murder, according to Abrams.

"The underlying theme is, they are criminals," Abrams said, adding that there are better solutions than creating new laws. To prevent gun accidents involving children, Abrams emphasized educating children about what to do if they come in contact with guns.

Maryland's grades did not change from last year, but the state did earn a new distinction, a "Sensible Safety Star," for strengthening a law aimed at disarming domestic abusers.

"Women need protection from domestic abusers that abuse to the next level," Rosello said. "It's important for the state to recognize that it should take guns out of the hands of these people."

Governor Says Slots Will Bring In $100 Million More For School Construction

by Deitrich Curry
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — While legislators and school officials pleaded for more school construction money at an annual session of the Board of Public Works Wednesday, Gov. Robert Ehrlich made a plea of his own for support of a future slot machine gambling bill.

"Should a slots bill be passed, there will be another $100 million a year for school construction," Ehrlich repeated several times throughout the day.

The annual BPW meeting, colloquially called the "beg-a-thon," is designated for school officials and leaders to ask for additional state funding.

School construction projects are known to be underfunded, so the future slots bill would be a way to bring more money to the building and renovating of schools, Ehrlich said. Slot machine gambling legislation has failed the past two years.

Ehrlich has already allocated $155 million for schools, a substantial increase from the $100 million that he designated last year. However, the money is still less than the nearly $600 million that schools requested for construction projects this fiscal year, according to David Lever, executive director of the Maryland Public School Construction Program.

One by one, officials from Baltimore and each county lined up in front of the Board of Public Works, which consists of Ehrlich, Comptroller William Donald Schaefer, and Treasurer Nancy K. Kopp, to express their need for money for construction of a new school, renovations, or just to replace an old roof.

But some school officials were quickly reminded that they would not receive all their requests when they were interrupted by the comptroller with orders to cut the list to only a few items.

"Tell me what your priorities are," Schaefer said. In Anne Arundel County, money was needed for a $4 million all-day kindergarten facility in Ferndale and air-conditioning at Arundel High School, the only school without air-conditioning in the county, costing $2 million.

Baltimore schools originally asked for $33 million, but have received $4.7 million so far. Their top priorities were the renovation of three schools.

"We really need $5 billion," said Baltimore City Council president Sheila Dixon, who was there along with Mayor Martin O'Malley. "But we are only dealing with the immediate [needs]."

Howard County schools requested $56 million, but only received $3 million. Sydney Cousin, Howard County Schools superintendent, pleaded for the board to reconsider deferring new school construction projects. After his presentation, Cousin was asked how much more he expected to receive: "None," he said.

No slots bill has been introduced into the General Assembly yet this session; however, Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Prince George's, said he intends to present a slots plan to the Legislature and didn't mind Ehrlich publicizing it.

"It's a very smart political thing for him to do," Miller said. Some county officials, including Prince George's County Executive Jack Johnson, did not agree with the slots method for funding schools.

"It's a tax against the poor," Johnson said. "It forces the poor to disproportionately pay for education."

The Montgomery County executive has also consistently disagreed with combining slots with funding education.

"We don't believe the education needs of our children should be held hostage to expanded gambling," said David Weaver, spokesman for Montgomery County Executive Doug Duncan. "We oppose slots and the effort of the government to link slots to funding schools."

Governor's Budget Calms Health Advocates' Fears Of Massive Cuts

by Ryan Basen
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Fearing massive cuts to health care services when Gov. Robert Ehrlich announced the state budget, Glenn Schneider stood in Lawyers Mall Wednesday morning and wondered aloud to a small crowd of supporters: "Will the governor use his budget as a weapon of mass destruction?"

But as it turned out, the worst fears of Schneider, executive director of the coalition Health Care For All!, were unjustified. When Ehrlich announced his $25.9 billion 2006 budget Wednesday afternoon, he included a 9 percent increase in Medicaid funding and a 6.6 percent hike in community services for the developmentally disabled. Overall, the budget includes $7.4 billion for health care, 27 percent of the total $25.9 billion budget.

Earlier in the day, Schneider led a 20-minute vigil, during which he noted that cutting Medicaid funding could destroy Maryland's health care system, and called on Ehrlich to expand the state's health care services instead of cutting them. With a $371 million increase in spending for Medicaid (to $4.3 billion), Ehrlich promised to provide service to about 644,000 Marylanders.

Other budget increases in health care include an additional $5.2 million for juvenile services and $9.4 million more for the Women, Infants, and Children program.

"I'm very happy with what I see," said Delegate Charles Boutin, R-Harford, a member of the House Health and Government Operations Committee. "I think people are going to be surprised . . . . It's a healthy increase" in spending on health care.

Ehrlich had implied in

No dinosaurs?...

National focus has descended upon the small, conservative Pennsylvania town of Dover because the Dover school district has become the first in the country to require teachers to make students aware of the controversy surrounding evolution while specifically referring to the "theory of intelligent design" as an alternative.

The Dover school board voted 6-3 to institute a policy to force biology teachers to read a one-minute statement at the beginning of each school term that says Darwin's theory of evolution is not a fact and continues to be tested, and "intelligent design is an explanation of the origin of life that differs from Darwin's view." The biology teachers at Dover High School refused to read the statement last week, so the assistant superintendent did so on Monday.

The American Civil Liberties Union has jumped into the fray with a federal lawsuit against the district, alleging that the intelligent design theory is inherently religious, and therefore the requirement is a violation of the separation of church and state.

What we have, then, is the old evolution vs. creationism argument, with the only slight difference between creationism and intelligent design being that the latter, while alleging that the best way to explain complex, information-rich structures observed by biologists is by the existence of a designer, it does not identify the designer, as does creationism (God).

It would seem that a very simple solution to all of this is for teachers of biology and related sciences to be required to instruct that every single explanation for the creation and existence of life is theoretical and, in some cases, religious. The teacher may personally have a strong belief in one theory, and he or she could state such to students, but always with the caveat that this is a personal belief and not offered as absolute fact. While there is a tremendous amount of scientific evidence that supports the theory of evolution, no one can say with absolute certainty that it is the truth. It would be similar to a Christian Sunday school teacher conducting a series on world religions. Simply teaching what others believe is not an endorsement of that belief, nor is it a rejection of Christianity.

Secondly, why is it that those who oppose evolution because of religious beliefs simply cannot comprehend that God just might choose to operate that way? A strictly literal translation of the biblical creation story is the main reason for rejecting such a notion. However, while Genesis says that God created the world and all that is in it in six days, Second Peter says that "with the Lord, a day is like a thousand years, and a thousand years are like a day."

There are some who even deny that dinosaurs ever existed, despite the mounds of evidence (e.g., lots of skeletons) that prove they existed. They deny because dinosaurs aren't mentioned in the Bible. However, first of all, the Bible was written a few million years after the extinction of the dinosaurs; and secondly, who says that "the beasts of the field" could not have included a brontosaurus?

Science and religion do not have to be, and should not be, opposing camps. Those who believe in God typically believe that he (she?) created all things, so for them science should simply be considered as one of his creations.

To the Editor:

The Kyoto Protocol becomes international law on February 16, 2005, 90 days after it was ratified by Russia. The U.S. and Australia are the only major developed nations that have not ratified the Protocol. The Kyoto Club now consists of 129 nations; only 30 of these nations are bound by its restrictive provisions. The other nations are free to use as much fossil fuel as they wish, and are designated recipients of the wealth transfer required of the 30 developed nations. The club consists of 129 nations–but only 30 are bound by the accord? Isn't that like exempting 99 of 129 kids in the swimming club from the "Don't Pee in the Pool" policy?

I was enjoying the front page photo of Deep Creek Lake and reading the caption when I choked over the way we started the New Year with a December 30, 2004, reference to The Farmer's Almanac. ACCK!

I find it hard to believe The Republican wouldn't cite our own Gruber's Hagerstown Almanack, since this 208-year-old publication is a local product, their editor lives in Newton, Pa., and their weather prognosticator, Professor William O'Toole, is on the faculty of Mount Saint Mary's College in Emmitsburg.

If "Farming on the Mountaintop" can suggest that we go to Hagerstown for a conference about Farming for Profit and Stewardship," then I'd like to suggest we can also go to Hagerstown for our favorite almanac predictions.

Enclosed please find a complimentary copy of Gruber's Hagers-town Almanack for use and reference by The Republican staff, in the hopes we will not see future lapses in almanac references.

If any readers would like to know more about Gruber's Almanack, note they have been found on the Internet since 1995 at www.almanack.com, and orders can be made through their web site.

Sincerely yours,
Douglas Scott Arey

Dear Mr. Arey,

Our writer used the words "Farmer's Almanac" in a generic sense. For most people, "the almanac," an even more generic term, is typically used. We do receive a copy of Gruber's Almanack, but thanks for a second one!

To the Editor:

I didn't realize my comments would be taken personally. I should have clarified myself. My thoughts concerned rock music at the national level. I have been a long-time Deep Creek dweller, almost 30 years. I do not remember any of the local bars, venues, or county fair ever attempting to bring in national rock acts. I know there are many talented local musicians who perform many different musical styles here on the mountain. Some of the local rock bands are good, some are bad. Most of the bar bands seem to get hired if they can cover "Old Time Rock n' Roll" or "Mustang Sally," regardless of how well they play them.

I've heard some of the bands you mention. One in particular that will remain nameless performed at the Oakland Friday summer series and sounded as if it was the first time they had played together. A large ensemble, individually talented, but no cohesiveness and awful vocally.

With all the big money sitting on top of the mountain these days, it's time Deep Creek attempted to occasionally bring in national rock entertainment that hopefully would be supported by the "old time rock n' rollers." I'm sure you would agree that after 50 years on the planet, good rock music would be considered art!

P.S. I do think The Republican is "fair and balanced," to borrow a Fox News line. You guys will print comments that go against the "good ol' boys'" wallets.

Christmas 2004 was a joyous time for our Burlington United Methodist Family Services "family." Thanks to the generosity of others, we were able to provide a happy Christmas for the nearly 200 children entrusted to our care, and to dozens of the other families we serve through family-based outreach services. Our ministry serves children and families through a variety of programs from locations in Burlington, Beckley, Fairmont, Grafton, Keyser, Petersburg, and Scott Depot, W.Va., and in Oakland.

We would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the individuals, churches, businesses, and organizations that generously donated money, toys, clothing, gifts, food, and time to our ministry. We especially thank the United Methodist Women, United Methodist Men, United Methodist Youth, and United Methodist churches from across the West Virginia Conference who have faithfully supported our ministry during our more than 90 years of service to children. We would also like to thank the members of our Burlington United Methodist Family Services' Auxiliaries at Burlington and Beckley for their support and assistance with our holiday events and with the sorting, wrapping, and distribution of gifts and food baskets.

It is heartwarming to know that the generous spirit of our friends and neighbors so abundantly blesses us. Thank you, again, to all who help Burlington United Methodist Family Services remain a refuge of hope to children and families in need.

Grace and peace,

To the Editor:

It has been interesting following the various editorials and letters concerning the doctor's liability insurance and wind turbine situations.

There is a simple answer for the doctor's insurance problem. Adopt the British law regarding tort and civil suit litigation. Simply stated: You sue, you lose, you pay all costs. All costs means prosecution's, defendant's, and court. This is the reason flu vaccine manufacturing has been moved to England. The proposed plan to tax HMOs to finance insurance premiums is another example of the ordinary citizen being "taxed" against his/her will. It is not the true solution to the problem; it is just another delaying tactic.

The wind turbine situation is interesting. It is a case of hypocrisy taken to the nth degree. If memory serves me correctly, environmentalists succeeded in closing a Garrett County peat business a number of years ago. They complained the business was "hurting" the eco-system through their constant harvesting of peat.

These groups love their trees, birds, and beautiful vistas. So why aren't they reacting with the same indignation over the destruction of trees, birds, and beautiful vistas with the construction of the turbines? Might it be a matter of mixed priorities? Is it a matter of their wanting any/all forms of alternative fuel and electric generation sources in place, no matter the alternatives?

A simple fact of life states: "For every winner, there is a loser." One must list all the pluses and minuses of a situation and "weigh" the same in order to reach a reasonable decision. Using this logic, the wind turbine project would appear to be a failure.

Sincerely,
Richard Stewart
Ephrata, Pa.

To the Editor:

In last week's paper, you ran a story about GLAF (Garrett Lakes Arts Festival) receiving a $10,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. I congratulate them. As a lover of the arts, and a musician myself, I applaud them for all the hard work that went into earning a financial grant of that size.

There is, however, a glaring error in the story submitted by the organization. The statement is made that "the Sprenger-Lang Foundation of Washington, D.C., originally initiated the classical festival." The plain truth is that the classical festival and "Deep Creek Symphony" were initiated by my wife, Kathryn Sincell-Corwell, and her good friend and internationally acclaimed violinist, Erick Friedman. Erick and Kathryn began the festival in 1987 and managed it for 14 years prior to the Lang family's involvement. I realize that this foundation does indeed supply the capital for the festival now, but I witnessed years of Erick, my wife, and the entire Sincell family slaving together to meet the logistical and artistic demands of the annual summer event. It disheartens me to see others taking the credit, or at the very least, failing to acknowledge the contributions of the originators of the festival.

It is true that in 2004 GLAF did, in fact, honor

PARIS THE BEAUTIFUL – II

The glass pyramid of I.M. Pei, completed in A.D. 1989, in the courtyard of the Louvre remains as controversial as when the design was first announced. I respect and understand the views of those who hate it, who think it unfitting. I expected and even wanted to hate it myself, but discovered on first seeing the pyramid in the flesh – or in the glass, as the case actually is – that I liked it. Indeed, I like it very much.

Connections between France and Egypt abound. The Louvre itself has a fine collection of ancient Egyptian art and artifacts. The glass pyramid is a simple and elegant statement of that connection. It is also another geometrical figure which points beyond itself.

The Parisian pyramid points to a history wrapped in mystery on the edge of the Egyptian desert, a history which was complete thousands of years before the glorious palace of the Louvre existed. It points literally upward.

If modern and post-modern mortals have learned that "up" is not necessarily where God "is," nevertheless who can look up without at least wondering if there is more to life than food, clothing and shelter? A sense of awe stands very close to the discovery of beauty.

Even those who despise the pyramids from the outside must give way a little when standing inside it. The pyramid becomes a glorious atrium of cascading light, reminiscent of the neo-platonic vision which gave birth to gothic churches and their stained glass walls.

History more recent than that of the Egyptian pyramids suggests that caution is often the better part of prudence, if not of valor. When the Eiffel Tower was built, at that time the tallest man-made structure in the world, 300 French cultural worthies – architects, novelists, playwrights, composers – signed a petition expressing their outrage.

In A.D. 1909 the Eiffel Tower was nearly taken down because its planning permission had expired. What saved the Eiffel Tower was not the realization that it was beautiful, that it was a world treasure. It was saved because it had become an irreplaceable radio tower. Thus beauty sometimes owes its existence to function.

What is the source of the French love of beauty? Henry Adams, in his Mont St. Michel and Chartres, discusses mediaeval devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary. He points out how women became prominent and powerful in mediaeval France. Perhaps he would elaborate his theory of the feminine in French culture as one source. At the risk of outraging any and all, I shall state the obvious: Both women and men like women to be beautiful. Paris is like a grande dame, ever beautiful.

There is something perhaps even older at work. The barbarian tribes originally outside the Roman Empire admired the glories of Roman civilization even if they despised the imposition of its imperial power.

For 2,000 years the people of Gaul have been importing beauty from what we call Italy to what we call France. That is why the Mona Lisa hangs in a French art museum and not in an Italian one. King Francois I brought Leonardo to France; with him came certain canvases.

At some point in their history the French discovered the power of beauty to heal. Paris is a center of expatriate life because wounded souls are often drawn to here for that healing power.

On the few bad days I have had in Paris, I have needed only to take a walk, to let the city embrace me in order to have my spirits restored. One need not search out the stunning sights, like the walk from the porch of the Madeleine to the Seine or from the Bastille to Beaubourg. Façades of apartment buildings, window displays in shops, alone are enough.

During the visit of family after Christmas, I had the joy of watching Paris put a sparkle in my nephew's face, of watching my niece, secure and unself-conscious, skip along Parisian streets. That is the effect of Paris at its most beautiful.

John Keats closes his poem, "Ode on a Grecian Urn": "Beauty is truth, truth beauty, – that is all/Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know." Well, not quite all perhaps, but if we pursue both beauty and truth equally in tandem, the rest of what we need to know may follow.

One of the great debates about the philosophy of St. Thomas Aquinas, who taught a mile from where I sit just 7½ centuries ago, is whether beauty is one of the transcendentals. The idea is that the existence of a thing is the truth of a thing and the goodness of a thing. To the degree that a thing exists, it is equally true (intelligible) and good (desirable). The question is whether to the degree that a thing exists, it is also beautiful.

That is one of those questions which – absent the discovery of a manuscript – will never be settled. I hope the manuscript, if there is one, remains lost so that philosophers may always debate this question, as lovely as it is true.

Between now and the imponderable then, my hope too is that Paris will continue to be beautiful.

DEPUTIES LEARN STOP STICK TECHNIQUE – The Garrett County Sheriff's Office recently acquired six Stop Sticks through contributions from the Oakland-based Shillito-Hansford Nationwide Insurance Agency and grant funds received from the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention. Stop Sticks are tire deflation devices which, when deployed into the roadway by a Sheriff's Office deputy and run over by the fleeing vehicle, result in a controlled deflation of the fleeing vehicle's tires. This greatly reduces the violator's ability to continue to flee. As additional funding becomes available, Sheriff Dick Sanders said his goal is to equip the entire fleet of patrol vehicles. The sticks weigh approximately one pound, are three feet in length, and are covered with 36 Teflon coated hardened steel quills. Above, Brian Ray of StopTech Ltd. gave a lecture to members of the Sheriff's Office. Ray noted that the sticks are not to be used for motorcycles. Each officer was also given the opportunity to use the device in a simulation, pictured below. Photos by John McEwen.

State Park Programs

DEEP CREEK LAKE STATE PARK

The following activities have been scheduled for this weekend at Deep Creek Lake State Park. Further information can be obtained by calling the Discovery Center at 301-387-7067.

•Friday through Sunday, 1/21-23: Various activities offered all day on a drop-in basis, including a pine cone bird feeder craft activity ($1 per participant); a feeder watch/record-keeping activity; scavenger hunts; and supplies to undertake a craft activity of one's choice ($1 per participant).

•Sat. 1/22: A one-hour winter bird watching and bird feeder craft activity will begin at 11 a.m. ($1 per participant for craft supplies); a 45-minute "Amazing Animals – Winter Wildlife" naturalist's program will get under way at 1:30 p.m.

CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS SUPPORT CAMO – Court Oakland #2209 of the Catholic Daughters of the Americas (CDA) recently donated $500 to CAMO (Central American Medical Outreach) and Dr. Dona Alvarez's mission to Honduras. Each year, Alvarez and a number of other Garrett County representatives visit Honduras to provide medical care to those unable to get help in a country not able to provide good orthopedic care to all its citizens. Pictured is Alvarez, left, receiving the check from CDA representative Rosalee Finch. The CDA donates to a wide variety of local, national, and world efforts to "embrace the principle of faith working through love in the promotion of justice, equality, and the advancement of human rights and human dignity for all. For 2003, Court Oakland donated more than $23,000 for this purpose, according to a DAR spokesperson.

Budget Calms

the fall that he would ask for cuts in health care spending with the 2006 budget. After the governor introduced the budget, Boutin and fellow House health committee member Charles Weldon, R-Frederick, were initially pleased at its commitment to health care services, especially Medicaid.

"That astounded me," Boutin said.

"My expectation was that there would be a slight increase," Weldon said, "but nothing like what we saw today . . . . We're talking about a substantial commitment to people who need care."

Schneider, however, was not yet satisfied with the budget changes. He was encouraged to hear of the increases, but withheld further comment on the budget until Health Care For All! and the Baltimore-based advocacy group to which it belongs, Maryland Citizens' Health Initiative, has thoroughly examined it.

Schneider questioned whether the budget's dramatic increases masked any health care cuts. Health Care For All! ultimately wants all residents of the state to have "access to quality, affordable health care."

"I will be the first person in line to say 'Thank you, governor' if he put money in the budget," Schneider said. "Because that's the first step."

Erick for his role in originating the festival. Unfortunately, this acknowledgment did not come until after Erick died of lung cancer. I think it was a shame they failed to publicly recognize his contribution to the history of the organization prior to his passing. I think it would be positively shameful if GLAF were to continue to ignore the roles both he and Kathryn played as originators of this wonderful festival.

Sincerely yours,

To the Editor:

Freedom in Iraq is a wonderful change, but we have decided to set up polling places and cover the cost to support Iraqis voting here in the U.S.; a bad precedent indeed. The costs around the country, including in Maryland, total about $100 million. We have not done this for any other displaced citizens of countries moving toward democracy.

This decision to set up polling places across the U.S. was made with very little consideration for consequences of these rules. The hastily developed rules for U.S. polling places for the Iraqi election provides that would-be Iraqi voters must either be: (1) an Iraqi citizen or (2) a former Iraqi citizen who acquired U.S. citizenship. The second part should be bothersome to most new and current U.S. citizens.

We still have a pledge that new citizens take when they become U.S. citizens. That pledge requires new citizens to "renounce and abjure absolutely and entirely all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty of whom or which the applicant was before a subject or citizen." The Supreme Court has upheld the pledge for all but a few with valid rights of dual citizenship. Conduct inconsistent with this pledge could theoretically lead to loss of one's U.S. status. But while once aggressive on these rights of dual citizenship, the State Department has not recently enforced the pledge, and many countries also easily grant passports and identification to U.S. citizens who are naturalized.

That creates holes in border security and protection as well as provides safe haven for those with dual passports. Now these voting rules go a long way to codifying the lack of enforcement. The rules promoted by our own government allow U.S. citizens of Iraqi descent to vote here for an Iraqi government even after giving up that right. It weakens that pledge for new citizens, is inconsistent, and makes it difficult to be sure U.S. citizens hold only valid U.S. passports.

It indicates nationwide and worldwide that the pledge new citizens take is an empty promise when U.S. citizens born in other countries can now vote here in the U.S. and also in their old countries sanctioned by the U.S. itself. Obviously this was probably not well thought out, so it shows how another rush toward a policy and plan for Iraq has again overtaken clear thinking and judgment.

Sincerely,
David Murphy

Thank You!

Our family would like to thank everyone for their prayers these last 6 years. On January 19, 1999, Mike was diagnosed with a rare type of cancer and we were told there was no known treatment. He went through 6 months of very strong chemotherapy and thank God the cancer went into remission. Then over the next couple of years the cancer would return but by the grace of God the doctors gave him medication to put it back into remission. In September 2002, he was told the cancer was back and this time in 5 different places. A bone marrow transplant was the only thing that could be done. He was admitted to Ruby Memorial Hospital. Our daughter phoned a lot of churches and also put an ad in The Republican requesting as many cards be sent to her dad as possible. We want to thank all the churches and individuals who answered her request. He received 285 cards and we hung them all in his room. Six years later we are still thanking God and praying for a lot more time with this wonderful husband, dad, and pap-paw!

Although his future (or ours) is not guaranteed, our family knows that ALL THINGS ARE POSSIBLE WITH GOD!

WINDPLANT CONCERNS TO CONSIDER

January 14, 2005

Dear Commissioners and those who care about Garrett County:

My husband and I are proud owners of property in Garrett County. My husband's family has been coming to the area for over 57 years to enjoy the pristine beauty of the countryside. My husband brought me to the lake when we started dating in the early 70s. It took us quite awhile to obtain our little slice of heaven, and we look forward to retiring to this beautiful place.

Please take action to protect the community you chose to serve! Garrett County is experiencing rapid growth and change in a wide variety of ways. As a community we need to avoid making decisions that will negatively impact the county and its inhabitants. We need to carefully consider the overall and long-term impact of the current growth in the area. We need to develop a land-use plan which will maintain and preserve the beauty of our wonderful county while allowing progress to occur in an acceptable manner. The current case in point is the proposed invasion of the wind industry.

We believe that the pros and cons of windpower should be explored thoroughly before it can proceed in the area. From everything we have heard so far, it does not paint a pretty picture:

- Wind turbines are a tax shelter that is being subsidized with our own tax money. Subsidies, in terms of tax credits and accelerated capital depreciation, have created an opportunity for investors who are attracted by the ability to shelter income in something that is risk-free–for the investor! In other words, money is apparently one of the primary motivators in the swift development of this industry, and all of us are helping to pay for it–whether we want to or not, whether it is has been proven to be worthwhile/effective or not.
- We have read articles stating that windpower is not an efficient source of energy at present. The wind isn't consistently blowing to generate power, but our need/demand for energy is more constant; therefore, traditional means of generating energy are needed to supplement windpower. There are inefficiencies in producing energy this way, and it apparently does not reduce air pollution or produce cheaper energy.
- Reports from other areas where wind turbines exist report that they are continually noisy to those who live nearby and produce flickering shadows, as well as strobe lighting. They can also interfere with satellite reception. Not exactly a desirable neighbor.
- We have read several articles on the threat to wildlife that these huge moving machines present. Consider the impact on birds and bats. Our area has a wide variety of birds. We love waking up in the morning to the symphony outside our window when we are at the lake at certain times of the year and thrill to seeing new species that we haven't seen before. We are not avid birders, just nature lovers, and we don't want to see their numbers decreased significantly due to these machines churning the air with their huge 260 foot propeller blades à la Meyersdale!

A recent article in the Washington Post states that researchers have determined that an unusually large number of bat deaths per turbine have been discovered at the nearby wind farms on Backbone Mountain in W.Va. and Meyersdale, Pa. Conservationists fear that the situation could worsen as wind developers erect new turbines. Merlin Tuttle, president and founder of Bat Conservation International (leading the research effort in Appalachia), was quoted as follows:

"Take the most conservative estimates of mortality and multiply them out by the number of turbines planned and you get very large and probably unsustainable kill rates. . . . One year from now we could have a gigantic problem." The article goes on further to explain the bats' important roll in nature, such as devouring insects that threaten crops such as corn and cotton, but also feasting on pests that spread disease such as mosquitos.

The huge number of bat deaths at nearby wind farms has researchers puzzled, since the sonar that allows them to search for food while avoiding trees and other objects is failing to detect the turbines. Windpower is being pitched as being environmentally friendly. . . . We think not! . . . particularly not in our area.

- Windplants have not been around that long in the East, but the negative impact on property values has already been felt. In some areas the property values have dropped 20-30% and may drop further. In nearby Pa., it is reported that property values have dropped 50-80%.
- Wind turbines are to be placed along many of the highest mountain ridges in the area . . . including Backbone Mountain. People love this area for its natural beauty. But, these wind turbines are 40 stories or 400 feet tall. Those in Meyersdale are 375 feet tall–taller than the Statue of Liberty. We live in Dayton, Ohio (58th largest city/MSA in the country) and our tallest building is only 28 stories tall. Cleveland, Ohio, which is the 25th largest city/MSA, has only 2 buildings that tall–one with 40 stories and one with 45 stories. Cleveland is a BIG city. So, think about lots of these tall windmills perched on high ground all around the county. We've read that a typical windplant consists of dozens of 400 foot turbines in continual motion arranged 8 to a mile, each on large concrete pads within a 4-acre clear-cut. They will be bigger than the largest buildings that are found in most cities, bigger than we can possibly imagine without seeing them, and then it will be too late! Our beautiful mountain views will be marred forever.

Garrett County Commissioners: It is our understanding that a year ago, the commissioners asked the MDPSC for an expedited review recommending that the MDPSC set aside its usual (legally required) practice of conducting a lengthy examination of the environmental and economic impact implications including impact of property values and living conditions. You could have/should have, instead, conducted a lengthy examination of the environmental and economic impact on our beautiful area including property values and living conditions in the immediate vicinity. Your expediting the review contributed to the MDPSC waiving its usual investigative procedures, and, following an expedited hearing with virtually no notice to adjoining landowners, a permit was granted to an outside investor to build a massive wind factory. We understand this is now being challenged in the Maryland Court of Appeals, which we hope is successful.

Landowners in the area, please decide NOT to lease your beautiful land for such a purpose. The drawbacks currently far outweigh the benefits, and a lot of people believe you would come to regret such a decision. Our property is located on the lake, and we don't believe the windplant will be visible to us at our home. But, that is not the point. What is the point is the impact this will have on the county as a whole, on our rural citizens who comprise about 70% of the permanent residents in the area (29,846 total county population, according to the 2000 Census data) and our wonderful wildlife population. The devaluation of their property, the impact on tourism (which means jobs), all of these things will affect the permanent residents, not to mention the devaluation and degradation of their quality of life.

Commissioners and MDPSC, please take action today! Politicians and others are waking up to the need to slow down this process until more is known about this industry's impact. According to a 1/2/05 article in the Baltimore Sun:

- "Acting Governor Richard J. Codey of New Jersey has ordered a freeze on proposals for offshore windmills for 15 months while a panel studies whether the towers would hurt the state's tourism industry, among other potential effects." You read that correctly, tourism! Our #1 industry in Garrett County.
- U.S. Senator John W. Warner of Virginia proposed a bill last fall regarding off-shore wind turbine plants. While it did not pass, he is continuing to press his fellow congressman for a "temporary time-out on wind-farm development."
- The West Virginia Public Service Commission is considering a moratorium on all wind turbine construction in the state.
- Environmentalists are now starting to split on this issue due to the impact on wildlife. Some local environmentalists are calling for a moratorium on building windplants on wooded mountaintops due to the bat death issue so the topic can be researched thoroughly. "The amount of power generated by windmills is not worth killing bats and birds," noted Dan Boone, conservation chair of the MD chapter of the Sierra club and spokesman for a group called Citizens for Responsible Wind Power.

Please slow down this process, declare a moratorium delaying any construction or whatever else is necessary before it's too late! You (the commissioners) DO have the power and the legal authority to take action and conduct a thorough examination of all the issues on behalf of the people, wildlife and natural beauty of the area. A serious situation such as this should never have been undertaken/approved without a thorough examination of the overall impact on our community for today's as well as future generations.

Sincerely,
Marcia and Robert Chocinsky

Of Our Darling
Darla Diane DeWitt
April 30, 1970 - January 16, 1973

As the years go by, you're thought of each day
A memory we carry in our hearts to stay.
You were taken from us while you were so young,
Your life had ended before it had begun.
The times that we shared were precious
And the memories we have are too few.
But the love we keep in our hearts
Will always be there for you.

FITNESS AFTER 55

by Elaine Kackley
Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center

We're just a few weeks into a new year. The temperature has dropped and so has the resolve of some people to finally get fit in 2005. Here at Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center we have seen our daily use numbers climb since the end of the holidays. We want to help all our members and future members to hold on to the commitments made to feel better by exercising more.

Our Monday, Wednesday, Friday aerobics hours remain popular with those who want to get their hearts pumping strongly early in the day with our 3-mile walk. This 9-10 a.m. session also serves as a pleasant social time for catching up with friends and neighbors. Both aspects of this class — aerobic exercise and social interaction — are beneficial to our health.

Yoga, now offered Tuesdays and Thursdays is open to the public and has attracted some younger people to take advantage of this opportunity to increase flexibility, strength, and range of motion. No yoga experience is required, just the desire to get a good stretch.

In this season of colds and flu, we encourage everyone to wash hands frequently to help reduce the risk of passing germs to others. At the center, we now keep hand sanitizing lotion at the check-in desk. Please make use of this for your protection as well as others.

About 20 people came to the fitness center for the CPR training given January 12 by members of the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad. We decided to break the training into two parts and will finish it on Wednesday, Feb. 9. We shared a potluck luncheon after the class and will do so again after the next session.

Member Barrie Gregory brought a delicious dish to our potluck luncheon and has shared the recipe with us. Here it is. Give it a try, and thank Barrie when you see her.

Japanese Chicken Salad

2 Tbs oil
½ cup sliced or slivered almonds
2 Tbs sesame seeds
1 pkg. (3 oz.) Oriental Ramen Noodles crumbled (do not use flavor pack)

Heat oil. Assemble above ingredients. Cook 'til lightly browned. Set aside.

Combine and set aside:
2 cups (or more) of cooked chicken breast, shredded
4 cups finely chopped green cabbage
½ cup chopped green onion

Dressing:
⅓ cup canola oil or olive oil
⅓ cup rice vinegar
5 tsp. sugar or Splenda
½ tsp. pepper
Salt if desired.

Fifteen minutes before serving, mix all ingredients together.

Upward Bound Program Set At Frostburg State

The Frostburg State University Upward Bound Regional Math/Science Center is currently accepting applications for its summer program.

The program is funded entirely by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education and is completely free to all participants. This summer, the six-week program will run from June 26 to Aug. 5.

The goal of the RMSC is to help interested and qualified high school students develop the skills necessary for successful admission into and completion of college programs that will lead to careers in mathematics and science.

Students work to improve their math and science skills while conducting an environmental science research project. The students are exposed to hands-on laboratory and field-based experiences to facilitate learning and inspire career goals. In addition to the academics, students participate in recreational activities and culturally stimulating field trips that are designed to promote enthusiasm and individual growth. During the school year, the RMSC staff keeps in touch with the students to provide academic support and motivation. Students who are accepted are expected and encouraged to continue in the program until they graduate from high school.

Currently, the program has openings for students residing in many area counties, including Garrett.

To be eligible for the summer 2005 program, students must currently be in the 8th, 9th, or 10th grade. Students also must have an interest in math and/or science and meet U.S. Department of Education income criteria or be a potential first-generation college graduate. Students currently enrolled in Upward Bound or Talent Search programs automatically meet those criteria.

For more information and/or applications, persons may contact the Regional Math/Science Center office at 800-646-6004 or 301-387-4295 or visit the web site at www.frostburg.edu/clife/mcenter/.

Named To Fall FSU Dean's List

Garrett County resident Megan Bernard has been named to the dean's list at Frostburg State University for her academic achievements during the fall 2004 semester.

To be eligible for the dean's list, a student must complete a minimum of 12 credit hours, and earn a cumulative semester grade point average of at least 3.4 on a 4.0 scale.

Megan is the daughter of Rich and Brenda Bernard of Swanton.

Local Student On Dean's List

Kathleen Pritts has been named to the Cedarville University dean's list for the 2004 fall semester. To be named to the list, a student must earn a 3.5 grade-point average or higher and carry at least 12 semester hours.

Pritts is a freshman at the university majoring in U.S. history and political science. She is the daughter of Philip and Sylvia Pritts of Oakland.

The accredited Christian university is located in Cedarville, Ohio, and offers arts, sciences, and professional programs.

COUNTRY EXPLORERS

by Katelyn Gnegy

The January meeting of the newly formed Country Explorers 4-H club took place at Swan Meadow School recently. The first item of business was the installation of officers, who are: Eric Tichnell, president; J.B. Gnegy, vice president; Catlin Carrico, secretary; Nathan Tichnell, treasurer; Katelyn Gnegy, reporter; Aaron Lantz, historian; and Levi Lantz, Greg Tichnell, and Faith Tichnell, game leaders.

A program on parliamentary procedure was presented by Willie Lantz.

A Livestock Skill-a-Thon practice session was slated to take place Monday, Jan. 17, at Garrett College, and an officer training program was set for the following day at Southern Middle School.

Club members were reminded that the 4-H Public Speaking Contest will take place in March.

The Garrett County 4-H Ski Day is scheduled for tomorrow, Jan. 21, at the Wisp. The Livestock Association will sponsor its annual snow tubing and pizza party on Sunday, Feb. 13. All livestock exhibitors are invited to attend.

Club members are raising funds by selling Joe Corby pizzas, and orders will be taken until Friday, Feb. 4. Delivery is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 19.

New members who recently joined our club were Colt and Chase Mason, Leon and Grace Dubansky, Landon and Noel Custer, Gertrude Tesar, Andrew and Jacob Hauser, Amy Kight, and Mikail Perrine.

Katelyn Gnegy presented a demonstration about her rabbits, and Aaron Lantz's demonstration focused on the club's record books.

The next meeting of the Country Explorers 4-H Club is set for Friday, Feb. 4, at Swan Meadow School.

STUDENT JOINS FITNESS STAFF – Frostburg State University senior Steve Guy started serving his student internship this week at the Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center for Mature Adults, Accident. Under the supervision of fitness director Elaine Kackley, Guy will assist members with work-out programs and develop additional exercise options. "It will be great to have Steve here with us bringing his knowledge and ability to our program," Kackley said. "I think we can offer him very useful experience and information on health and fitness for older people." Guy will graduate in May with a degree in exercise and sports science. Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Well, it looks like Bittinger is back to having weather we used to have in January. The weather is so cold that it froze my car door shut and only a few brave shoots of grass are visible above the thin coating of snow. The other thing that reminds our residents of the old days is that the Pittsburgh Steelers have emerged as contenders in this year's fight to get into the Super Bowl. They barely squeaked past the New York Jets, but a win is a win. It was a double treat, as the Maryland "Terps" hoop squad beat Temple just a few hours before the AFC playoff game.

But that was not the real treat, as Boo, Tigger, Caitlin, and I were surprised with an unscheduled visit from Claire. I am really glad that she is not so far away that it requires an airline ticket to get her home. So I guess my girls and I will watch the game between West Virginia and Boston College this afternoon. Boston College always is a serious threat. I believe they want to join the Atlantic Coast Conference, so soon they will be the problem of Maryland instead of the "Mountaineers." It will be odd to have a New England school with all those other schools south of the Mason-Dixon line. Claire is still not totally a fan of her school, as she forgot about the WVU, game and she never forgot a "Terps" game.

Sometime last week I wrote how dark it seems our days are without a real snow, and sure enough this morning (Martin Luther King's birthday) was the brightest day in weeks, even if we have subzero temperatures. Plus I have all three of my girls with me which makes my days much brighter. With the snow maybe I will be inspired to finish my snowscape painting before the deadline.

Boo is not as enthusiastic about the snow as I am, but I doubt that I would want to go out barefoot to go to the bathroom either. That is one way the present is much better than the "good ol' days." The outhouse has pretty much disappeared from our lives.

A very wonderful Christmas present I received was a print of an old Glotfelty heirloom photograph of my Dad when he was about 4 years old with his new baby sister, my Aunt Helen. Both of them were so sweet and it is hard to think of toilet training with outdoor plumbing, which does not seem very easy or appealing.

I hope my cousin Mike Englar will dig deeper in our family archives and make more prints. I know of lots of other great old photographs, especially one that has both a team of work horses with the same old Farmall tractor we still use once in awhile. The collection of family photographs used to be in a big box in the home of my grandparents, Orval and Emma Glotfelty, and the descendents often dug in it. I spent many happy hours looking through the box. I was fascinated by the picture of my Pappy and his brothers in their World War I uniforms. The ultimate goal of that war was to end all future wars. How sad that has not come true. It seems our present leaders believe a war is the best solution to any conflict, but they do not seem to know that war destroys lives both in the victorous side as well as the defeated nation. Someone said to me that the best way to support our troops is to promote peace.

Today, January 17, is Martin Luther King Day. If you did not admire him when he was alive and working for equal rights for our African Americans or if you don't recognize his speech "I have a Dream" along with Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and John F. Kennedy's "ask what you can do for your country" speech or if you never had a black friend, I wonder if you should get a day off from work. Sing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and think about the words–especially the line "Christ died to make people holy, we will fight to make men free," etc. I don't see how it applies to the present conflict in Iraq. I am so proud of my uncle, Wayne Buckle, who was jailed with the Kings during the Walk on Washington in 1960! I assume those marchers with darker skin than Wayne judged him by his character rather than the color of his skin. It saddened me very much when a lovely young black man thanked me for inviting his teammate and him to dinner and for allowing them to hold my babies. He should have known I didn't judge them by the color of their skin.

One of my favorite snapshots from the 1980s is of a tall black student beside an equally tall, very fair, red-haired student working in my garden. That photo speaks volumes about what Garrett College did for our young people. I was very happy to have a chance to have an early memory of a loving face looking at them. I believe I thanked them for that as well as their donated labor in my garden and picking rocks from a plowed field. I was deeply proud of them on the court, in the classroom, and on campus. I felt privileged to know them so well.

I constantly worry whether a beloved and inspirational one (now in heaven) was and is proud of me. I hope Jimmy, Sean, Myron, Michael, Earl, Tony, and William ask themselves whether I am proud of them. Although I only know for sure what became of one of them, I have little doubt the answer must be yes. Because of the character they displayed during their years at GC, I am sure they have gone to excel. I doubt they believe the whole white race are all demons. I think they will pass that idea on to their children, so maybe we face a little less racial conflict in the future.

I hope that Denny Buckel is right that if someone has shot our white stag of Bittinger they couldn't keep it a secret. He did not hear anything about it during hunting season. But still no one has seen him since. I did a painting of him and his brown mate safely in a spring woodland thicket. I hope at least one of their offspring will be white. Imagine how pretty a picture of a white buck with his ordinary mate and with one of each fawns would be.

I can't see how anyone can criticize our bus drivers, especially in the winter. However, my two younger daughters went out for the long walk to the road in sub-zero temperature about the right time to get picked up for the two-hour delay and even though they were in sight the bus rolled right past. I remember how cold I would get being stranded along Rock Lodge Road waiting for the bus. My girls refused to have me drive them out, but it turned out I had to do it anyway to rush them up to the Bass house. Luckily my lane was not drifted shut and my car started right up without any problem, which is always a big surprise in mid winter during January.

I would not do the job of transporting a bus loaded with kids on our roads. So Wanda Wassell has a lot of guts, but hopefully she will wait for a minute for passengers in sight. It is just too cold to go early.

It looks like it will be wintry weather for the AFC championship football game in Pittsburgh, with cold temperatures and snow falling. It is a shame the Steelers are not facing a team from the south because our weather gives a real shock to teams from their home cities, which would give a big advantage to our Steelers.

Robbie Glotfelty is still on semester break, but it was not all fun. He had to get dental surgery; however, he still plans to try to perform on the tuba with the Maryland Pep Band at a home game this coming weekend. Unfortunately, the television coverage rarely includes shots of the band.

As strange as our weather seems, I talked on the phone last evening to a longtime friend, Charlotte Griffith, who is now living in Las Vegas, and she told me about a major snow storm they had a couple weeks ago. She said the flakes were about the largest she has ever seen. When you live in the desert areas it is pretty upsetting to have more snow than in the place they left to escape the winter weather. Tough luck, Charlotte.

I still can't get used to how to live an ordinary life with only one hand to do things. Just tidying up feels like a major spring cleaning session, and that short trip to the Bass house this morning takes as much out of me as a trip across three states. Like the song "Dung Hill" says, "It is better than being dead somewhere...!"

A few weeks ago Pastor Pat Pittsnogle, as part of children time in church, gave a new box of crayons to the little ones. I was jealous. Remember how great it was to get a new box of crayons? How good they smelled, and how fun it was to think of all the possibilities with all those beautiful fresh colors. The next time I saw crayons in a store, I treated myself, and they still give me a lift when my spirits are dragging. I recommend to anyone that you get some crayons and use them, as it takes at least 20 years off of you.

The Southerly men plus Matthew Bass attended the WVU basketball game in Morgantown on Sunday. I am sure they were disappointed with the loss. Things are relatively quiet in Bittinger these cold days.

Animal Shelter Report

The Garrett County Office of Emergency Management reported that a white and tan longhaired adult female cat was picked up as a stray in the Mtn. Lake Park area.

It is now housed at the Garrett County Animal Shelter and must be claimed within 72 hours. For more information, persons may call the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553.

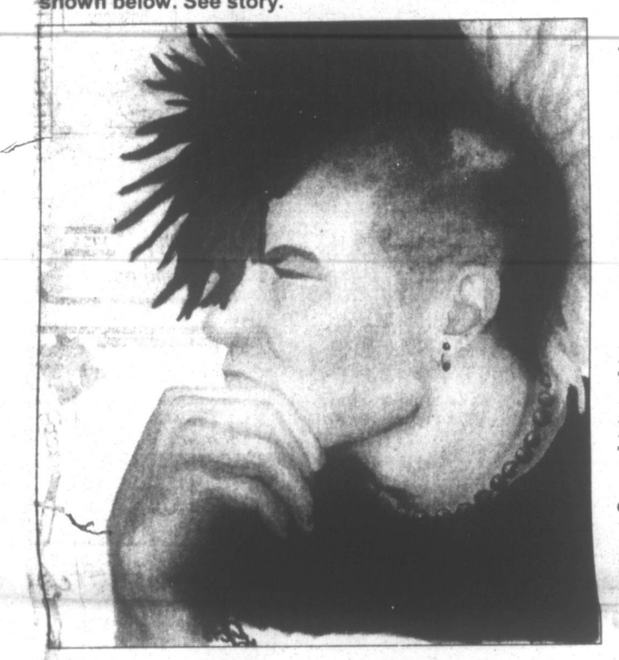
RECEPTION FOR YOUNG ARTISTS SET – The Garrett County Arts Council and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland will host an informal public reception to honor young artists of the area at the Gallery in Oakland on Saturday, Jan. 29, from 1 until 3 p.m. The annual Youth Art Exhibit, a special arts project of the Civic Club to showcase and recognize local artists in grades 6-12, is currently on display. Among the 34 works included in the exhibit are "Heartstrings" by Megan Viar (Southern High School), pictured above, and "Thomas" by Julie Nixon (Northern High School), shown below. See story.



The Arts

Youth Art On Display At Garrett Arts Council Gallery

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland is currently presenting an exhibit of youth art at the Garrett County Arts Council's Gallery, located along Alder Street in Oakland.

Featuring two-dimensional art work by students attending the county's middle and high schools, the exhibit will be on display until Feb. 11. The presenting organizations are extending an invitation to the public to an informal reception for participating artists on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 29, 1-3 p.m.

The exhibit is part of the 2005 Youth Art Contest sponsored by the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs (MFWC), with cash awards and ribbons to be presented in two classes of competition, as well as in a separate category of photography/computer art.

Winners of the local competition will compete in the MFWC Western District competition. District level winners will advance to statewide competition in April at the annual MFWC convention near Baltimore.

Judges for the local competition were retired art teachers Virginia Neff and Pat Filsinger of the Civic Club of Oakland.

In Class 1 competition (grades 6-8), they awarded first place to Tina Salmon of Northern Middle School, second place to Jordan Schwinabart of Southern Middle School, third place to Lincoln Humberson of Northern Middle School, and honorable mention to Ian Jobe of Southern Middle School.

In Class 2 competition (grades 9-12), the judges awarded first place to Julie Nixon of Northern High School, and second, third, and honorable mention to Megan Viar, Mandy Tichnell, and Marie Lauver, respectively, all of Southern High School.

Guy Hinebaugh of the Garrett County Arts Council served as judge in the photography category of competition, awarding first and second place ribbons to Northern High School students Markell Klavuhn and Wes Gallagher.

The exhibit was facilitated with support of art teachers from participating schools: Marcette Danner (Southern Middle School), Elizabeth Gilbert (Swan Meadow School), Frances Kenna (Northern Middle School), Sonia Pratt (Southern High School), and Teresa Roberts (Northern Middle School).

In addition to those awarded ribbons, the following students are participating in the exhibit: Jessy Beal, Alecia Bender, Bryson Matthew Dixon, Stephanie Farber, Keesha Fazenbaker, Calvin Friend, Megan Garlitz, Caleb Griffen, Dan Hughes, Britta Lais, Erica Maust, Laura Maust, Devin Mayle, Carolyn Maxin, Jean Miller, Mike Moyer, Rebekah Rush, Allie Schumacher, Gina Stuck, Jeremy Allen Swartzentruber, Katy Towers, Megan Voelkel, Kristophy Andrew Yoder, and Melissa Ann Yoder.

Additional information about the exhibit is available by calling the arts council at 301-334-6580. The Gallery is open to the public Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

OTT TO PRESENT 84 CHARING CROSS ROAD – Players at Our Town Theatre in Oakland will present the play 84 Charing Cross Road on Jan. 27-29 at 8 p.m. and on Jan. 30 at 2 p.m. at the theatre located along Center Street. Hanff was a reader for a New York film company in 1949 when she wrote to the Marks & Company book shop requesting some out-of-print English titles, but stating that she did not have the financial means to afford collectors' items. She received a letter back from the manager, Frank Doel, along with the books. This was the beginning of a 20-year written correspondence between the two, which Hanff later published as a book. The manuscript was then adapted for the stage by James Roose Evans. The cast of the local production is pictured. In the foreground is Judy Bertsh. In the back, from left, are Betty Pritt, Erin Peacock, Richard Hill, and Maureen Mielenz. Tickets on Jan. 27 and 30 are $5, and are $8 on the remaining evenings. Reservations are strongly advised and may be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640.

Boosts Funding

agencies to assume that in the 2006 fiscal year, they would receive 88 percent of their current funding. Ehrlich on Wednesday defended the request. He said the goal was to determine which programs were most successful in achieving their goals rather than measuring them by the amount of money they receive. He maintained that the 88 percent target has been misinterpreted by lawmakers and the media.

"In a couple cases that was a correct conclusion, and in the majority of cases that was an incorrect and is an incorrect conclusion," Ehrlich said. "In fact, in a number of our agencies, the number for this year is more than 100 percent" of current base allocations.

House Appropriations Committee Chairman Norman Conway, D-Wicomico, said he wanted to see how the governor's budget deals with a projected $311 million deficit in the general fund. He said he was also concerned that the proposed budget is "significantly above" the guidelines prescribed last year by the Joint Spending Affordability Committee.

The Maryland Constitution requires the governor to submit a balanced budget by the third Wednesday of January. The General Assembly can then begin trimming — but not shifting or adding — money from government programs.

What the proposed budget will really mean for Maryland won't be known for several days as the General Assembly begins to digest the details. The Senate Budget and Taxation Committee and the House Appropriations Committee will hold a hearing on the matter on Monday.

Until Wednesday, the Ehrlich administration had withheld details of its budget proposal from lawmakers as well as from the number-crunchers at the non-partisan Department of Legislative Services. Democratic lawmakers were annoyed.

"This puts us in a mode where we really have to do catch-up," said Sen. Majority Leader Nathaniel McFadden, D-Baltimore. "It doesn't give you time to really analyze it as quickly and as expeditiously as you need to."

The House minority leader, Delegate George Edwards, R-Garrett, said releasing details in advance would have set off premature criticism before the administration agreed on a final budget.

"It doesn't bother me that the governor hasn't whipped out all this stuff to everybody," Edwards said.

Weldon said.

"I don't think all of us can hug and sing songs together," said Rep. Eliot Engel, D-N.Y., another delegation member. "But Bush should seize this opening. Belligerent rhetoric will only set us back."

Bartlett and Weldon stressed that they were not trying to be diplomats on the trip and were not there to speak for the administration, but rather to represent their districts. A spokeswoman for Bartlett said one reason he went is because he sees national security as "the most important job in Congress."

Weldon said he hopes to go back during the March recess to continue talks.

Delegation members described their talks with North Korean officials as "frank." But they said that while the North Koreans claimed to be a nuclear power and conceded that nuclear disarmament is a good thing, government officials there also denied having a uranium enrichment program, according to Weldon.

Bartlett said he is convinced the trip was a success based in part on the reception the delegation got from the North Korean press, which said the United States and North Korea could be "friendly."

"No one would believe it," Bartlett said of the statements in the country's press.

In addition to speaking with lawmakers from the other countries involved in the six-party talks — South Korea, Russia, China and Japan — the delegation's 10-day trip stopped Sunday in Indonesia. There, it deliv-

On Dean's List

Among those students of Frostburg State University named to the dean's list for outstanding academic achievement for the fall 2004 semester is Ann Johnson, daughter of Tom and Kathy Johnson, Oakland.

A freshman majoring in law and society, sociology, and political science, Johnson earned a grade point average of 3.6 on a 4.0 scale. She is enrolled in the honors program.

Johnson is a 2004 graduate of Southern Garrett High School.

GC Task Force Arrest Pa. Man On Drug Charges

A Pennsylvania man was arrested on drug charges following a traffic stop on Friday at approximately 7:30 p.m. on Rt. 42 near Friendsville, according to the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force.

Craig Hood, 39, Mount Pleasant, Pa., was arrested after a canine scan of his vehicle resulted in a positive alert for drugs. A search of the vehicle recovered suspected cocaine and prescription medication.

Hood was charged with possession with intent to distribute cocaine, possession of cocaine, possession of prescription pills, and possession of drug paraphernalia. In addition, the 2001 Chevrolet truck he was driving was seized.

Task Force investigations were assisted by uniform members of the Maryland State Police, McHenry Barrack.

Sentenced For Manufacturing

An Oakland woman was sentenced last week in Garrett County Circuit Court to 18 months in the Division of Corrections for manufacturing a controlled dangerous substance.

Lesa Diane Cole's sentence was suspended, and she was placed on supervised probation. Judge Jim Sherbin also imposed a $1,000 fine.

Cole, 41, was arrested last March after officers with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force executed a search and seizure warrant at her home and seized five marijuana plants, small quantities of marijuana, and drug paraphernalia.

According to the state's attorney, a closet in Cole's home had been adapted to promote the marijuana growing operation.

Injured In Sang Run Rd. Crash

Two Terra Alta, W.Va., residents were injured in a single-vehicle accident along Sang Run Road Sunday afternoon.

Tilden Wilt, 43, was traveling with 32-year-old passenger Angela Wilt on Sang Run Road, just past White Rock Road, when the mishap occurred at 12:20 p.m. Wilt's Ford Taurus went out of control on an ice-slicked road surface just west of the Youghiogheny River and struck a culvert.

The Wilts were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company assisted at the accident scene.

Tilden Wilt was charged with driving on a suspended license.

Murder Of Deputy David Livengood Resonates 26 Years After Tragedy

by David Foster

"Another one of those things that 'will never happen in Garrett County' has indeed finally happened. For the first time in history, at least in recent history, a law enforcement officer has been murdered in the line of duty in Garrett County. The tragic death has sent a shock wave over the entire county...."

Twenty-six years ago this week, with copious front page coverage, The Republican informed its readers of the cold-blooded murder of sheriff's deputy David G. Livengood in Oakland. Two days after the first Garrett County sheriff's deputy to be killed in the line of duty was laid to rest in Garrett County Memorial Gardens, in an editorial titled "It Finally Happened...", editor Don Sincell wrote with the still-palpable shock felt by the entire community:

"Because this type of incident has never happened before, we Garrett Countians are probably more guilty than most when it comes to taking the job of a law enforcement officer for granted. We don't often stop and think about how many times these people literally place their lives on the line, yes, even here in Garrett County."

The earliest hours of Jan. 18, 1979, opened with exceptionally cold, biting winds and spitting snow. Ice-slicked roadways made driving dangerous. The vast majority of the county's residents asleep in their warm homes, relying on three men for protection – 31-year-old sheriff's deputy Dave Livengood, Oakland police officer Roger Lewis, and Maryland State Police trooper Larry Rosage. Three men in three cars were responsible for the well-being of 23,000 residents and all 657 square miles of the county.

Earlier that night, Livengood peeked in on his sleeping young children, Shannon and David, and gave his wife Geni a goodbye kiss. The Marine Corps veteran and Little League baseball coach then made his way along icy roads from his Crellin into Oakland to report for his midnight shift. The gusty winds gave Livengood pause, and, feeling a chill in his body that might mean the onset of a bad cold or even the flu, the officer decided not to overtax himself during his nine-hour tour of duty.

Riding in the backseat of the Ford Torino police cruiser was Livengood's K-9 partner Sarge, an exceptionally large snow-white German shepherd he had raised from a puppy. One of the family, Sarge would cuddle with Livengood children, but on the job he was all business.

About the same time, prior to going off his evening shift duty that night, Deputy Chuck Nolan checked the exterior of Davidson's Army-Navy Discount Store, a hunting and sporting goods store fronting Third Street at the present location of the county's Department of Social Services. The store had been burglarized three nights earlier, and no suspects had yet been identified. The padlocked chains on Davidson's front door were tightly secured.

Among the items stolen in that Jan. 15 burglary was a 9mm handgun.

"Despite being taken for granted, despite the criticism and poor image some people have of police officers, Dave Livengood went out of his way to be a good officer. He trained hard, took his job seriously, he demonstrated tremendous courage, and he knew how important it is to uphold the laws of the land. Besides losing a top-notch officer, we have lost a husband, a father and a friend to many."

Around 3 a.m. at the sheriff's office, Livengood told Lewis, his neighbor and good friend, that he still didn't feel well, and Lewis agreed that his buddy should try to stay out of the weather if possible.

As the minutes of the quiet "graveyard" shift slowly ticked away, Trooper Rosage left for Cumberland on the interagency mail run, and Lewis parked his vehicle across from Oakland City Hall to watch for traffic violations along Third Street.

At 5:25 a.m., movement inside Davidson's store tripped an alarm that sounded in the courthouse just over a mile away. Livengood was in the sheriff's office at the time, and the deputy hurried out to his cruiser, and sped along Fourth Street to approach the building from its rear. Lewis arrived at the front of the building along Third Street at about 5:27 a.m. to find the padlock and chains broken off the front door.

With the scene unsecured it was possible that the perpetrator(s) were still in the vicinity. Over the howling wind Lewis could barely make out Livengood's radio transmission asking if he had seen any suspicious vehicles traveling in area. About a minute later, Livengood's voice came over the speaker: "Stay in your car, I am going to check out a suspect vehicle." Those instructions indicated that the deputy was preparing to take Sarge out of the cruiser, and served as a warning to Lewis to stay out of the dog's way.

It was 5:30 a.m., and those were the last words of Deputy Livengood heard by his friends Lewis, dispatcher Dale Harvey, and off-duty deputy Chuck Nolan listening to his scanner while lying in bed at home.

At the same time, a Mitchell Manor resident came out of his house to get into his truck and leave for work. As the citizen was opening the door to his truck, he heard yelling coming from Fourth Street, behind Davidson's. He looked down his driveway and down the hill toward the back of Davidson's store, and saw one car sitting on Fourth Street, and a dog, illuminated by the car's headlights, pacing back and forth in front of it. The dog left the lights of the car, the citizen heard what sounded like gunshots, then after a pause heard more shots and the sound of car tires spinning on the icy surface, and noted a second vehicle as it slid into a tree or telephone pole.

Although the citizen could not have known it, the first car was Livengood's police cruiser, and the second car was driven by two burglars who had just killed the deputy.

The citizen ran back into his house, called the main emergency number, and told that dispatcher what he had heard. While he was on the phone, the first vehicle pulled away from the scene. The information was relayed to Harvey, who radioed for Livengood – with no response. He called Lewis – still at the front of the store as Livengood had instructed – who could not hear the shots because of the gusting winds and the terrain of the low valley his partner had been standing in. Lewis drove his car alongside the building toward the back, where a steep embankment dropped off to Fourth Street below. His lights could not reach down to see the full extent of the street in the darkness.

About that time, the citizen who had called in the sound of gunfire left home for work, and as he was driving south on Fourth Street he saw a body lying in the road, and recognized the uniform as that of a sheriff's deputy. He immediately drove to the sheriff's office to report what he had seen.

Moments later Lewis made his way around a long block via an ice-slicked side road, and found his partner's body. Livengood had seven 9mm gunshot wounds, including one in the back of his head. Sarge, the faithful K-9 partner, was a short distance away lying against a barbwire fence. The dog was bleeding heavily from wounds made by a Samuri sword, and as Lewis walked over to him, Sarge raised his head, looked at Lewis as if to say "I did all I could do," and died.

What had begun as a burglar alarm was now a homicide. Never in the history of Garrett County had a sheriff's deputy been killed in the line of duty.

In cold summary, what the murder investigation eventually revealed was that Deputy Livengood had confronted two suspects who were in the process of carrying stolen property from the rear of the store. In the course of the performance of his duty while attempting to take them into custody, the deputy was shot and killed.

Although he made a valiant effort to protect his master, Sarge was killed by the suspects when one of them rammed a Samurai sword they had in their vehicle down his throat.

The two suspects fled the area in the deputy's police cruiser. A short time later, the suspects accosted a family in their residence near Deer Park. The family was tied up and the suspects stole their car. Later that day, both suspects were taken into custody by the West Virginia State Police near Morgantown.

One of the suspects, Roberto Rezek, was a member of the Pagan Motorcycle Club. The other suspect, Richard Tichnell, was a candidate for membership in that club. Rezek was tried and convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. Tichnell was convicted and sentenced to death. His sentence was later commuted to life in prison. Having been eligible for parole several times, both remain incarcerated in a Division of Corrections facility.

"Another sad and frustrating chapter to this nightmare is the strong possibility that the individuals responsible for this death may one day have their freedom. This says something about our parole system."

A parole hearing for Rezek is scheduled for this April.

David Livengood was survived by his wife, son, and a daughter. They moved away from the area after the murder. Among his family still living in Garrett County are his mother Josephine and his brother Ed, who is a correctional officer at the Garrett County Detention Center.

Numerous tributes exist to commemorate the life and sacrifice of David Li-

PARTNERS IN LIFE, and in death, Garrett County sheriff's deputy David Livengood and his K-9 partner Sarge were both cut down on an Oakland Street in a cold-blooded murder that took place 26 years ago this month. The Republican's editorial of that week gave an insight into the character and sacrifices of law enforcement officers: "Of those many persons who are quick to criticize law officers, who will be the first to step forward to take the job? There is an opening now on the Garrett County force. The hours are terrible, you'll work most holidays and in all kinds of weather, the salary is pathetic, and you must face the possibility of being killed in the blink of an eye time after time. How's that for a job description?" Young people can take on that challenge through the David G. Livengood Memorial Scholarship, which has been established by Garrett Lodge 99 of the Fraternal Order of Police to provide financial assistance to students interested in the criminal justice field. Applications for the scholarship are available at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Love

Love - is the key to all things.
Love- Suffereth long, is kind
Love - Envieth not, is not puffed up.
Love - Rejoiceth in the truth.
Love - Beareth all things.
Believeth all things.
Hopeth all things.
Endureth all things.
Love - Never fails.

Our family was built on Love.
Our parents showed us Love
as well as Christian Love.
Our parents taught and instructed us to Love each other.
Our life is not built on possessions and things.
We need to realize the impact of their love and what they left us.
The integrity of their lives is the legacy and treasure we can hold on to.
Our parents always put God first then family.
If we put God first then our lives will be filled with good things for our families.
Our parents left us their most prized possession.
Their Love.
That Love can bring peace and Love to all the families.
Love surpasseth all.
Take the time to reflect on their Love and Love for one another.
Our Love for one another will be the integrity and legacy we leave for our family and children.

We sure miss you, Dad & Mom.
One day we will see you.
Sadly missed -

Rams Lose Double-OT Thriller To Allegany, Then Defeat Beall

One of the most exciting area high school basketball games of the season was played in Oakland last Friday when the Southern Rams hosted the Campers of Allegany in a Western Maryland Interscholastic League clash; however, the outcome was equally disappointing for the Rams and their fans, as the Campers held on for a 65-62 win in double overtime.

It was only the third loss in 11 starts for Coach Tom Bosley and the Rams, and the 11th victory in 12 games for the Campers.

The Rams bounced back into the win column Tuesday evening by topping visiting Keyser, 60-48.

The contest with Allegany remained close from the opening tip-off, with the score knotted at 8-8 at the end of the first quarter, tied at 24-24 at halftime, and the Campers up by four, 40-36, after three periods.

A pair of free throws by Alco's Donavin Vinson just before the end of regulation tied the score at 52-52, sending the game into its first overtime period.

It appeared late in the first OT period that the Rams would be the victors, as they led 56-54 with just a few ticks left. But a put-back shot underneath by Bryan Hansel knotted the score once again at 56-56 and forced the second overtime. Hansel hit the shot following his second of two big offensive rebounds.

Allegany moved out to a 60-56 advantage in the first minute of the second overtime period, but a foul shot by Cory Bosley, followed by a three-point bucket by Corey Tressler, tied the score again at 60 apiece.

A bucket by David Latimer and a free throw by Hansel put the Campers back up, 63-60.

Bosley hit a basket with just 20 seconds remaining to cut the Allegany lead to one, 63-62.

Camper Michael Paige went to the foul line for two attempts. He missed both of them, but Vinson got the rebound on the second miss and scored with 4.9 seconds remaining.

A final shot at the buzzer by the Rams was no good.

Bosley led all scorers with 28 points, including a dozen from three-point range, while Corey Tressler finished with 16 points and nine rebounds, and Evan Lantz recorded 16 points and eight rebounds.

Vinson led the Campers with 27 points, and Latimer finished with 11.

It was the first WMIL loss of the season for the Rams, whose league mark is now 4-1, while the Campers are 3-1.

The Southern junior varsity squad, which came into the preliminary game with an unbeaten record, also lost by three points, 47-44, and also in overtime. Sean McCreery and Adam VanBogelen led the Rams in scoring with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Pacing the Campers with a game-high 24 points was Tyler Wharton.

Tressler was the top offensive player for the Rams on Tuesday in their win over Keyser, as he poured in 24 points, while Bosley was close behind with 20 points.

The Rams held leads of 13-5, 23-13, and 38-31 at the quarters, and Keyser could get no closer than sev-en points in the final stanza.

Bosley finished a perfect 9-for-9 from the foul line, and eight of those free throws were made in the fourth period.

Leading the Golden Tornadoes offensively was Aaron Amtower, who recorded 19 of his game total of 23 in the second half. Josh Kuykendall and Donnie Marple also reached double figures with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

The Rams actually won the game at the foul line, from which they made good on 19 of 20 attempts for a 95% team average. Keyser finished with a 20-19 edge in field goals, with each team hitting three three-pointers.

It was the sixth loss in 11 starts for the Golden Tornadoes.

The Southern jayvees (9-1) also got back on the winning track in the first game, defeating the Keyser junior varsity, 38-29. Ryan DeWitt scored 13 points to lead the Rams, and teammate Tim Reams finished with 10. Mike Green and Nick Whiteman each netted eight points for Keyser.

The Rams will be back in action at home this Saturday against Williamsport, with the jayvee contest slated to begin at 6 p.m. and the varsity clash tipping off at 7:30.

They will travel to Westmar next Tuesday.

Southern Girls Upset Fourth-Ranked Beall; Perfect In WMIL

The Southern High School girls' varsity basketball team pulled off an upset of WMIL rival Beall Monday night, as the sixth-ranked Rams knocked off the fourth-ranked Mountaineers by a convincing nine-point margin, 55-46. The victory came about in large portion at the foul line, where SHS connected on a phenomenal 15 of 16 attempts.

Both teams came into the contest with perfect WMIL records, with the Mounties at 5-0 and the Rams at 3-0.

Host Beall seemed to be on its way to another league win after taking a 14-10 lead after the opening quarter, but Southern refused to cave and grabbed a 22-19 lead by the halftime buzzer. The Rams doubled their lead to six, 38-32, as the final stanza got under way.

Southern put together a fine team effort, with three players reaching double figures. Senior Jasmine Scheffel paced the squad with a team-high 15 points, and juniors Kendra McLaughlin and Sarah Cosner had 12- and 10-point tallies, respectively. The Mounties' (9-4) Kacey Kahl led all scorers with 24 points, including four three-pointers.

Southern took the junior varsity contest, 38-34. Adrienne Yoder and Brittany Boyce scored 14 points each for the Rams, and Jenna Delaney and Chelsea Raley had 10 points apiece for Beall.

SOUTHERN (55)
Sarah Stephens 2 0-0 4, Kayla Nazelrod 3 2-2 8, Sarah Cosner 4 2-2 10, Caitlyn Brown 2 2-2 6, Kendra McLaughlin 3 6-6 12, Jasmine Scheffel 6 3-4 15. Totals 20 15-16 55.

The Rams head east Saturday to Jefferson County, W.Va., to take on Hedgesville, then return home Monday to host Fort Hill in a 7:30 p.m. varsity contest (6 p.m. junior varsity). Southern meets Northern on Wednesday in Accident at the same times.

Ram Freshmen Win Two More; Still Undefeated

The boys' freshman basketball team of Southern High School maintained its perfect record this past week, as the "Little Rams" recorded a 62-41 victory over host Petersburg on Monday and crushed visiting Beall last night, 61-35. The pair of victories gave Coach Jon Hegeman and his squad a 10-0 record.

Against Petersburg, Matt White led Southern in scoring with 14 points, while Jordan Pacella and Drew Proudfoot each finished with 12.

Derek Jones netted a game-high 18 for the Vikings, 13 of which were recorded on 15 attempts at the foul line. Mike Redman added nine points, as the Vikings fell to 3-7.

Proudfoot had a big game last night for the Rams, finishing with 26 points, while White also reached double figures with 11.

Pacing the Mountaineers offensively was Brandon Twigg, who recorded 10 points.

The Southern freshmen are scheduled to host Tucker County next Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Huskies Downed By High-Flying Hancock Friday

The Northern High School boys' varsity basketball team dropped its only outing of the week in a 71-62 loss to Hancock Friday in Accident. The Huskies gave the visiting Panthers – one of the top squads in western Maryland – a run for their money in the home court contest.

Northern trailed 20-14 after the first quarter, and was down by only two points, 30-28, at the half. Hancock pulled out to a 46-36 lead as the fourth quarter opened.

NHS guard Chris Speicher led all scorers with 23 points, as the senior nailed eight field goals and 6 of 7 free throws. Junior forward Blake Walker was the only other Husky in double figures with 16 points.

Hancock (11-1) was paced by 16 points from Dylan Shives, while teammates Brad Spielman recorded 15 points and eight assists and Alex Younker contributed 13 points and seven steals. Jeff Willison put in a dominating performance for the Panthers with 15 points, 12 rebounds, and five blocked shots.

The contest was a physical battle from start to finish, as three Huskies – Matt Bass, Brent Beachy, and Aaron Rawe – fouled out, as did Shives and Willison for the visitors. The two squads went to the charity stripe for a combined tally of 55 foul shots.

Northern's Lucas McMillan netted a game-high 17 points to lead the Husky junior varsity to a 53-42 triumph over the Panthers' JV. Hancock's Josh Unger had 15 points.

The Huskies (6-5) close out a five-game home stand this week when Bishop Walsh visits on Saturday and Allegany visits on Tuesday. Varsity tip-offs are set for 7:30 p.m. The jayvees play at 6 p.m.

Huskies Hang Tough With 'Cats; Fall Prey To Falcons

The Northern High School girls' varsity basketball squad dropped a hard-fought 49-40 contest to Westmar Saturday, then fell hard to Frankfort last night by a 59-29 tally. The action leaves the NHS with a 5-7 record.

The Huskies and Westmar's Wildcats were knotted at 8-all after the first quarter Saturday, but NHS fell behind by five, 28-23, at the half. Northern pulled back to within one, 36-35, as the fourth quarter opened, but was outscored 13-5 over the final eight minutes.

Jeseca Gibson had a game-high 16 for Northern, and was the only Husky to make it into double figures. Jessica Marsh and Megan Patton had 11 and 10 points, respectively, for Westmar (4-7).

The Huskies won the junior varsity contest 37-35 as Amber Savage netted 12 points. Holly Williams had 14 for Westmar.

Last night's home contest with Frankfort started off rough for Northern, and stayed that way. The visitors jumped out to a 15-5 first-quarter lead, rolled up a 35-19 halftime margin, and held a 47-23 advantage heading into the fourth quarter.

NHS's Weimer put up nine points and grabbed 11 rebounds. Jenn Cessna netted 25 points for the Falcons (6-5).

Northern committed 19 fouls to Frankfort's 10, and the visitors sank 19 of their 23 free-throw attempts.

The Husky jayvees were defeated 37-27. NHS's Savage scored a dozen points for the second time in a row.

NHS hosts Bishop Walsh tomorrow, visits Allegany Monday, and hosts Southern Wednesday. The home contests get under way with 6 p.m. junior varsity contests, followed by 7:30 p.m. varsity battles.

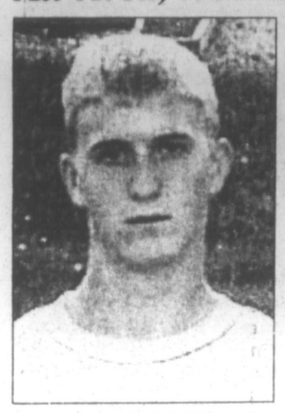
Children's Ear Infections and Antibiotics

In the US, children experience an estimated 12 million ear infections each year. Most occur in children under the age of 5 years, and most involve at least one visit to a doctor's office. Pediatricians usually divide middle ear infections into two groups, acute otitis media and otitis media with effusion (meaning there is fluid present in the middle ear that usually contains bacteria.) In many instances antibiotics and combination products are prescribed. For the most part antibiotics kill organisms that cause ear infections and help such infections heal better than if they were not prescribed.

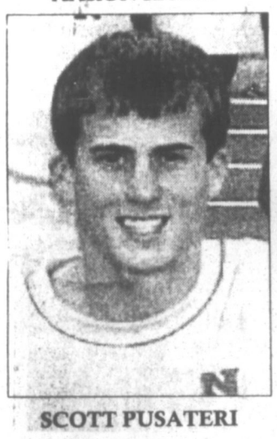
Antibiotic use for ear infections increased considerably in recent years. However, physicians became aware of the problem of antibiotic resistance (organisms causing the infection became resistant to the effect of the antibiotic.) Many are now being cautious in prescribing these and other antibiotics to children. In the mid 1990s the American Academy of Pediatrics published guidelines for the treatment of ear infections with effusion in children. These guidelines called for a more cautious approach such as observation (a watch and wait approach) or prescribing antibiotics in otherwise healthy children from 1 to 3 years old with this type of ear infection.

Huskies, Rams Are Named To All-Area, WMIL Soccer Squads

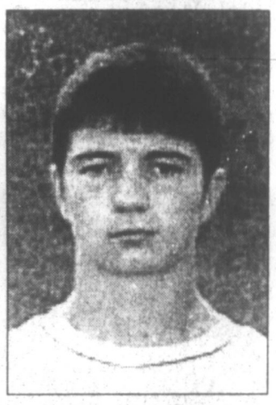


AARON RAWE

MAX BEITZEL



SCOTT PUSATERI



DEREK CUTTER

CHRIS SPEICHER

Eight Garrett County high school male soccer players were named this past week to either the All-Area first team or the All-Western Maryland Interscholastic League first team, or both. Six players from Northern and two from Southern were selected for the honors via a vote of area coaches.

Northern's Aaron Rawe and Max Beitzel were named to both of the first teams, as were Sean McCreery and Bobby Bonser of Southern. In addition, Max Beitzel, Scott Pusateri, Derek Cutter, and Chris Speicher were selected first-team All-WMIL.

Pusateri, Cutter, and Speicher were named second-team All-Area, along with Taylor Crabtree of Southern. Named second-team All-WMIL were Northern's Chris Fickes and Brian Schlosnagle, and Southern's Crabtree, James Naylor, and Ethan Chorpenning.

Honorable mention All-WMIL picks included Matt Morgan, Logan Craig, Alan Gnegy, Chuckie Burton, and Mike Mosser, all of Southern.

Pacing the Northern Huskies to a best-ever 12-4 overall record and a 7-3 WMIL mark were seniors Rawe and Beitzel. Two of the Huskies' losses were by one goal apiece, and both to the area's #1 team, Beall.

Rawe, also named first-team All-Area last year, was a key player both offensively and defensively for Coach Tom Ables and the Huskies, and has particularly good skills at controlling and positioning the ball.

Describing him as "aggressive and unselfish," Ables said Rawe's experience and strong all-around skills made him a team leader.

During Rawe's junior and senior seasons, the Huskies amassed an overall record of 23-8-1 and a WMIL mark of 11-4. They scored 65 goals just this past season, with Rawe recording five of them plus an assist, and the Husky defense allowed a total of only 18 goals in 16 matches.

Ables said that the defensive play of Beitzel was a key factor in the impressive low number of goals allowed. At 6-4, Beitzel also possesses excellent speed and was able to stay with any attacker in the area.

"Max's kicking, heading, and throw-in skills, coupled with his determined play, were major factors in our success this past year," Coach Ables said. "With him as the defensive leader, we recorded five shutouts and allowed just one goal or less in 11 of our 16 matches."

Southern's McCreery was the only sophomore to be named to both first teams. He was the second-leading scorer on the team this past year with five goals and one assist. He played both the striker and midfield positions.

"Sean's tenacity and ball control make him a threat at either position," stated Ram coach Bob Bonser.

Bobby Bonser, a senior midfielder for the Rams, was a key player on both sides of the ball. After being plagued by injuries his freshman and sophomore seasons, Bonser put together two excellent efforts the past two years. He scored three goals and one assist in the 2004 campaign, and was a team leader defensively.

"Bobby has a nice, light touch on the ball and a keen sense of the field," Coach Bonser said.

Beall led the All-Area and All-WMIL in terms of total first-team picks, with six first-team All-Area players and seven first-team All-WMIL selections.

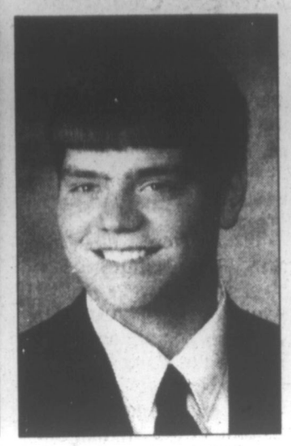
Southern's Gregg And Reams To Be Dapper Dan Honorees

ROBBIN GREGG



BILLY REAMS

Two outstanding student athletes at Southern High School, both of whom graduated last spring, will be among area high school Players of the Year honored at the 57th annual Dapper Dan Awards Banquet, scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 29, at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club in Cumberland.

Robbin Gregg, daughter of Fred and Carol Gregg, Oakland, led the Southern girls' varsity basketball team to its first-ever state championship last year, defeating Baltimore Southside Academy in the Maryland Class 1A championship game at the University of Maryland Baltimore County.

She was the second-leading scorer for the 23-4 Rams, averaging over 16 points per game, and was the team leader in assists, averaging 4.7 per game, and steals, with a 2.6 average. She also grabbed an average of four rebounds per outing.

From the field she made good on 42 percent of her two-point attempts and 35 percent of her three-point shots. She was a 75 percent free-throw shooter.

Gregg is now a freshman member of the McDaniel College women's team.

Billy Reams became the first catcher to be awarded the Skip Cook Memorial Award as the area's high school baseball Player of the Year.

A left-handed hitter, Reams led the area last season with an outstanding batting average of .508, recording a team-leading 29 hits, 28 runs, nine doubles, five home runs, and 31 RBIs.

His SHS career batting average of .4789 was second only to that of Josh Bosley (.4792) in the history of the school. In Reams's two-year varsity career, the Rams were 34-5 overall and 16-2 in Western Maryland Interscholastic League games, and captured two All-Area and All-WMIL team titles.

Reams, who is the son of Brad and Lenora Reams, Oakland, is currently a freshman at Potomac State College, Keyser, W.Va.

Persons interested in attending the Dapper Dan event may obtain ticket information by contacting the Sports Shoppe in Cumberland at 301-722-5490.

Mtn. Top Hoops Results Noted

Three games were played in the Mtn. Top Basketball League Sunday, and Condoerr, Mortimer Builders, and Mt. Top Paving each came out winners.

ConDoerr defeated Bosley Construction 58-46 in the opening contest, as Pete Brosnihan scored 14 points in an 8-for-8 free-throw tally. Dennis Gibson netted 13 points. Bosley's Jason Brenneman led all scorers with 20 points, and teammate James Jones added 15.

Mortimer Builders pounded out a 66-59 win over Copeland's in the second game. Joey DiSimone led the winners' scoring attack for Mortimer's with 35 points, and J.J. Bolyard contributed 13. Jamie DeWitt scored a season high 20 points for Copeland's, and Jason Shank recorded 19.

Mt. Top Paving flattened Coney in the finale, 78-43. Matt Stephens led Mt. Top Paving with 22 points, and Bryan Panther netted 14.

This Sunday's contests pit Mortimer Builders vs. ConDoerr at 1 p.m. (Copeland's keeping score); Copeland's vs. Mt. Top Paving at 2 p.m. (Coney); and Coney vs. Bosley Construction at 3 p.m. (Mt. Top Paving).

GC Knocks Off Unbeaten 'Cats; Runs Past Allegheny, Rockville

The Garrett College women's basketball team ran its winning streak to seven straight this week by nipping Potomac State College 59-54, downing CCAC-Allegheny 53-40 and beating Montgomery-Rockville 52-45. The Lakers have only lost twice in 13 outings so far this season, and have a perfect 7-0 mark in the Maryland JUCO.

The first outing on the slate, played last Thursday, Jan. 13, was a huge showdown, as GC traveled to Keyser to take on an 8-0 Potomac State squad. It didn't take Garrett long to establish itself as the spoiler when the Lakers ran up a 31-21 halftime lead.

The Catamounts fought back hard in the second half to defend their perfect record, and outscored Garrett over the second half by a 33-28 margin. GC fell slightly behind halfway through the second period, and the battle went down to the wire. After being hampered by first-half foul trouble, the Catamounts had to start fouling near the end to stop the clock, and Garrett made a number of free-throws to hang on for the win.

DeKresha Davis, Jami Anderson, and Autumn Beavers scored 10 points apiece, and Victoria Lawson contributed nine points. The 'Cats Charlisa Cummins had a big night as she led all scorers with 23 points, snagged five steals, and blocked four shots.

Garrett downed CCAC-Allegheny Sunday, as it expanded a 24-15 halftime lead to a 13-point margin by game's end. Denae Kennedy, Karley Hall, and Anderson each tallied nine points for the contest. Anderson ripped down 12 rebounds, and Kennedy and Westia Russell grabbed 10 rebounds apiece. Kennedy dished out six assists and Anderson snagged four steals. CCAC-Allegheny was led by Maria Medley's 11 points.

Another fine team effort resulted in a seven-point victory last night at Rockville, where Russell and Kennedy paced the Lakers with 15 and 11 points, respectively. Kennedy also accounted for eight rebounds, three assists, and four steals, Davis contributed seven rebounds and three steals, and Lawson snagged four steals.

The Lakers put their JUCO streak on the line again Saturday when they visit Takoma Park's Falcons. Garrett returns home to host Northern Virginia Community College in a 7 p.m. showdown.

High School Netters Earn First Team All-WMIL Volleyball Kudos

JULIA BOSLEY

KAYLA NAZELROD

SARAH STEPHENS

LAKIN WEIMER

Three Rams and one Husky earned First Team honors on the All-WMIL Volleyball Team this week. Southern High School's Julia Bosley, Kayla Nazelrod and Sarah Stephens, and Lakin Weimer of Northern High were each selected to the squad in a recent poll of the league's head coaches.

Fort Hill's Lauren Mouse was named WMIL Player of the Year, and rounding out the First Team were Traci Guthrie of Fort Hill, Jessica Burkett of Beall, and Erin Steele of Westmar.

Junior hitter Chelsea Wassell of Southern received honorable mention accolades.

Seniors Bosley and Nazelrod, along with sophomore Stephens, teamed up to pace Southern to a 15-2 mark (9-1 WMIL), as the Rams reached the Class 1A West Region final. Bosley and Stephens were recognized by the SHS coaching staff as co-Most Valuable Players of the 2004 Ram squad, and Nazelrod was singled out as Most Outstanding Hitter.

Bosley led SHS with 169 service points during the fall campaign, with 65 aces and a 90 percent average from the service line. She tallied 98 kills, good for second on the squad. The outside hitter also finished the year having achieved several career milestones, including notching the top Southern career marks for service points with 435 and service aces with 116. She is tied for second in career kills at 241.

"Julia worked very hard to become the outstanding player that she is," commented Southern coach Sue Newton. "She was a top defensive player, and was responsible for many perfect passes that led to kills for her teammates, and had a very unselfish attitude about her role on this year's team."

Bosley is the daughter of Todd and Craig Bosley of Oakland.

Nazelrod led the Rams in kills this year with 149, which put her on top of the SHS career tally with 259 kills. She was second this year in blocks with 28, and had 140 service points with an 85 percent serving average.

"Kayla has been one of the most coachable players I've ever had," Newton said of the middle hitter. "She dominated at the net for us this year, and her style of play was fun to watch. She dedicated many hours to becoming the outstanding player that she is."

Nazelrod is the daughter of Vickie and Tim Skipper of Oakland.

In just her sophomore year, Stephens showed her potential by pacing the Rams in service points with 169 and in service aces with 67. She finished third in kills with 97, just one behind Bosley, and on defense accumulated a team-high 82 digs.

"Sarah is going to have an outstanding career at Southern, and is going to be a player to watch" Newton predicted. "She has outstanding knowledge of the game, and proved it with an outstanding season."

Stephens is daughter of Helen and Mike Stephens of Oakland.

Weimer was a dependable leader at Northern, where she led the Huskies in kills and blocks, and also netted team-high numbers of 88 percent in hitting accuracy and an 83 percent serving accuracy.

"Lakin was invaluable at the net," Northern skipper Linda Wengerd remarked of her squad's co-captain. "Her outstanding attitude and work ethic helped set an excellent example for the whole team."

Weimer is the daughter of Sharon and Warren Weimer of the New Germany area.

Jeremy Murphy Joins Pit Crew Of Ricky Craven

An Oakland native has been hired as a member of the pit crew for Ricky Craven, who drives the #99 Craftsman truck in national races.

Jeremy Murphy, who completed pit crew school after graduating from Southern High School in 2000, has been a racer with a winning cart-racing (ARCA) team since his graduation. He has now been selected to be a member of the Jack Rousch ("Cat in the Hat") NASCAR team. The Rousch organization owns Craven's #99 truck, as well as various other ARCA, Busch, and NASCAR vehicles.

Murphy has moved to Mooresville, N.C., where the Craven team is based. He and his teammates are currently testing for the Daytona 500, slated for next month.

Murphy and his sister Jennifer started racing go-carts in the local area several years ago and captured numerous trophies and titles. Jennifer is now a student at Allegany College of Maryland.

Murphy is the son of Randy and Mona Murphy, Oakland, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Murphy, Mtn. Lake Park.

Brenneman Nets 50 Points In Rec League Contest

The highlight of action in the Oakland Recreational Basketball League games played Sunday was a 50-point scoring performance by Jason Brenneman, as his team, Quality Machine, crushed Fox's Pizza Den, 109-59.

Brenneman's teammate Mike Harvey finished with 29 points, while Bryson Paugh and Doug Copeland were the scoring leaders for Fox's with 32 and 19 points, respectively.

In other games, Joey DiSimone led Mettiki Coal to a 53-44 win over Markwood Citgo by pouring in 27 points. Rick Selders led Markwood with 13 points.

Mead Westvaco rolled over M Acres Boys, 61-31, with Mike Burdock pacing the winners with 14 points and Dave Bender hitting a dozen points to lead the Boys.

Games slated for this Sunday, Jan. 23, are: Mead Westvaco vs. Fox's Pizza, 6 p.m.; Mettiki vs. Quality Machine, 7 p.m.; and Markwood Citgo vs. M Acres Boys, 8 p.m.

Ram Grapplers Whip Huskies, Sentinels, Golden Tornadoes

Three convincing victories, including one over cross-county rival Northern, were recorded this past week by the Southern High School wrestling team.

Coach Dave Taylor's Rams won a tri-match in Cumberland last Wednesday, whipping host Fort Hill, 56-21, and rolling over Keyser, 57-21. Then they defeated the visiting Northern Huskies last Thursday evening, 48-25, which upped the Rams' overall record in regular-season matches to 7-1.

Defending state champion Scott Wildesen at 171 pounds recorded three pins in the three matches to stretch his personal unbeaten streak for the year to 15.

Other Rams gaining pins in the win over Fort Hill were Josh Tasker at 103 pounds, Daniel Carr in the 130-pound division, Justin Ratliff in the 135-pound class, Andrew Pritts at 140 pounds, Nathan Sines at 145, Jeremy Gregory at 160, and Brandon Manko in the 189-pound bout.

Nick Tressler garnered a technical fall in the 112-pound class, and Justin Fitzwater won the 215-pound division via a decision.

Getting pins for the Sentinels were Justin Nichols (119), Zach Huffman (152), and Michael Yost (275).

Harlem Rockets Ready To Light Up Scoreboard, Smiles At Southern Gym

The Harlem Rockets, one of the world's premier "comedy" basketball squads, will make two return appearances next month in the wake of last year's standing room only performance at Southern High School. The Rockets take on the 911 Outlaws at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 10, then battle the Tasmanian Devils in a 7 p.m. contest on Monday, Feb. 14.

The family-oriented events will take place in the SHS gym, where over 100 fans were turned away at the door to the packed house for last year's visit by the Rockets. Early ticket purchases are strongly encouraged, and all proceeds from both contests will benefit the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

The Harlem Rockets were formed in 1993 by Brig. General George Mitchell, who had worked for the Harlem Magicians for several years. Since their formation, the Rockets have amassed a record of approximately 1,700 wins against exactly zero losses.

The Rockets' roster boasts a number of former NCAA Division I basketball players, including likely the tallest player ever to take to the court at SHS, center Ricky "Rim Rocker" Lopes (7-2), who played for Duquesne University and who also has several national TV commercials to his credit. Lopes is joined by teammates Kevin "Showboat" Jackson, known as the "King of Comedy Basketball"; Donnie "Razzmatazz" Seale, who had an outstanding career at North Carolina State University and briefly played for the NBA's Charlotte Hornets and Denver Nuggets; Johnny "Magic" Dadzie, who starred at Southern Illinois University; Alexander "Skywalker" Howard, the team's 6-3 show dunker; and Dwayne "Swoop" Simpson, a former standout for Southern Connecticut University.

The Rockets, who have played coast to coast and on two overseas tours, are expected to play a record 175 games this year. The squad has appeared on ABC television's Good Morning, America, and has been featured several times in other TV and radio spots.

As last year's sold-out crowd can attest, the Harlem Rockets are known for presenting an outstanding family show with direct audience participation. These professional athletes, who strive to set a good example on and off the court, always incorporate the fans into their games, especially children. The Rockets make themselves available to meet the fans and sign autographs at halftime and after each contest.

In addition to delivering athleticism and entertainment at their evening games, the Rockets also make visits to local schools during the day to deliver a message to students about the importance of staying in school and furthering their educations, and avoiding the pitfalls of peer pressure and drug and alcohol abuse. The players also provide a demonstration of their basketball skills for their student hosts at each school.

Organizers are currently seeking volunteers (i.e., victims) to fill out the rosters of both home teams, the Outlaws and the Devils, which to date include local law enforcement officers, firefighters, 911 dispatchers, Southern High basketball alumni, and Garrett County Community Action Committee staffers.

Advance tickets for the games are $7 each for all ages, and are available at Marvin's Men's Wear and the Get 'N Go convenience store in Oakland, and at Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek Lake. Tickets at the door will be $8 each. Persons may also make advance ticket reservations by calling 301-501-3292.

Weekend Drunk Driving Arrests Made By GCSO

Several drunk driving arrests were made this weekend by Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Early Saturday morning, James Martin Hershman, 42, Swanton, was charged with drunk driving after his vehicle was observed swerving and crossing the center of the road on Maryland Highway near Main Street in Deer Park.

Hershman was arrested and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI), DUI per se, driving while impaired by alcohol (DWI), and failure to drive right of center.

A few hours later, William Chad Pociernicki, 29, Pittsburgh, Pa., was arrested for drunk driving. His vehicle was stopped in the area of Garrett Highway and Sang Run Road at approximately 4:25 a.m.

After failing field sobriety tests, he was charged with DUI, DWI, DUI per se, negligent driving, failure to drive right of center, and exceeding the posted speed limit.

Two drunk driving arrests were also made on Sunday. Johnny Ray Evans was arrested after failing field sobriety tests following a traffic stop on Gorman Road in the area of Doc Bernard Road. He was charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, and failure to drive right of center.

Samuel Matthew Storey, 50, Swanton, was also arrested after his vehicle was observed swerving in the roadway on Maryland Highway near Pysell Crosscut Road. According to police, the tags on the vehicle were reported stolen.

Storey was charged with failure to display tag on plates of vehicle as required by MVA, two counts of displaying registration plates issued to another vehicle, failure to display license on demand, failure to drive right of center, driver giving false name to uniformed police, driving vehicle on highway with canceled registration, driving an uninsured vehicle, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, driving on a revoked license, driving on a suspended license, DWI, and DUI. He was also given a warning for a loud exhaust.

Four Injured, Driver Charged In Vehicle Mishap

Four people were injured in a two-vehicle accident last Thursday afternoon on Garrett Highway near Weber Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

The investigation revealed that Matthew Patton, 21, Aurora, W.Va., was operating a vehicle southbound when he came upon another vehicle which was making a left turn onto Weber Road. Patton's vehicle struck the other vehicle, which was operated by Sara Pennington, 30, Terra Alta, W.Va. Pennington and her three occupants were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Citations were issued to Patton for failure to control speed to avoid a collision and failure to reduce speed at an intersection.

Oakland firefighters also responded to the 2:31 p.m. scene.

In an other incident, deputies responded to the hospital for a reported snowmobile accident that occurred at the Wisp Ski Resort on Sunday. Andrew Alan Hiss was treated for injuries and later released, police said.

vengood, including a college scholarship fund for local students. Among the other remembrances is the National Law Enforcement Memorial in Washington, D.C., where his name is carved in a stone wall along with the nearly 17,000 of his fellow American police officers who have died in the line of duty since 1792.

"We thank God for the life of David Livengood and we wish that day will come when all people can recognize and appreciate the value of all human life."

A Postscript

In speaking to the principals who were involved in these tragic events that took place a quarter-century ago, this reporter was struck by how each of those men, who have spent the better part of their lives protecting the rest us from danger as policemen, dispatchers, and prosecutors, grew very, very sad when recalling the murder of David Livengood. Their still-living bonds with him are not only a tribute to the man, but also what his life and profession represents – an unselfish willingness to serve others, and if need be their own willingness to pay the ultimate price in doing so.

If you see a police officer today, thank him – or her – for what he or she does every day.

those towers was a flat fee of $30, based on two inspections conducted by the department.

But the county currently has no permit structure specifically for towers. The rationale for establishing one and setting a higher fee is that wind turbines are more complex structures than cellular towers, Nelson indicated.

The proposed turbines are expected to be 390 to 400 feet in elevation (to the tip of a blade at its highest point), according to the director. About 900 yards of concrete will be needed for each tower's 30-foot by 30-foot in-ground foundation, which means 80 or 90 truckloads of concrete being transported on county roadways to the construction site, he added.

Additionally, because of the complexity of the turbines, more work will be required of Planning and Land Development. The structures will need to be inspected three or more times, Torrington noted. The department will also have to address easement, sediment, and erosion control issues, he added.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg said he personally did not think it was unrealistic to a charge $1 a foot, but he wanted the fee to be fair and not single out one type of tower. He noted that in addition to permitting fees, wind turbine companies would be paying personal property taxes each year. He asked if other tower types were subject to taxes.

Torrington said he believed they were, but that he would check.

The commissioners and Nelson's department will discuss the fee schedule further before making a final decision. As a basis for comparison, Torrington will also see what other counties charge for tower permits.

The chief also reported to the commissioners that his department issued 751 building permits in 2004, which is a 1.21 percent increase from the previous year. Torrington noted, however, that while the total cost of those new buildings was 10.88 percent higher in 2004 than the previous year, their total square footage was 4.51 percent lower than in 2003. This reflects the large increase in construction costs.

About 40 percent of those permits were issued for buildings in the Deep Creek Lake area.

Pap Smear Clinic
Garrett County Health Department
In recognition of National Cervical Cancer Awareness Month, the Garrett County Health Department is urging all women to have annual Pap smear tests. Pap tests check for abnormal cells on the cervix. This test can detect HPV infection, precancerous cells, and cancer cells. In many cases, treatment can stop cervical cancer before it fully develops. If caught early, treatment for cancer of the cervix can be easier, and the chances of curing it are much higher.
The Garrett County Health Department will offer a Pap test screening clinic on January 28, 2005. This clinic is free to any woman. Please call 301-334-7770 or 301-895-1111 to schedule an appointment.

Mr. And Mrs. Sines To Celebrate Their 71st Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Sines will observe their 71st wedding anniversary next Thursday at the their home near Swallow Falls. Edgar and Peggy were married Jan. 27, 1934, in Clarksburg, W.Va., by Rev. Nelson Thorn.

The couple moved to the Oakland area from Morgantown, W.Va., in 1945.

They are the parents of six children: Rich, Steve, and Eddie Sines, all of Swallow Falls; Marilyn Friend and Frani Grove of Friendsville; and Walter Sines, deceased. They also have 19 grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren, and three great-great-grandchildren.

Edgar is a retired welder and heavy equipment operator, and Peggy is a homemaker. They attend the Oakland Church of the Nazarene, pastored by Rev. Art Evans.

Family and friends may stop by the Sines home at 4284 Oakland Sang Run Road on Sunday, Jan. 30, between 2 and 5 p.m. for sandwiches and cake. The couple requests that no gifts be given to them.

Marriage Permits Recently Issued

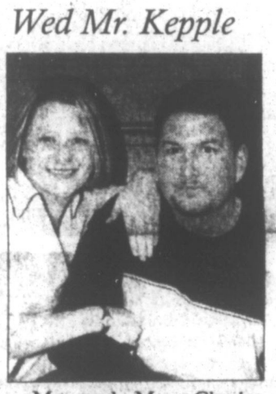
Three couples recently applied for their marriage licenses, according to David Martin, clerk of the Garrett County Circuit Court.

Robert Carl Glass, 35, and Susan Gail Burrows, 38, both of Albright, W.Va.

Robert Shayne Lockmiller, 21, and Ginger May Stemple, 19, both of Oakland.

Kalle Rattasepp, 23, and Karen Lyn Gallagher, 21, both of Accident.

Miss McCrobie To Wed Mr. Kepple



Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCrobie and Mr. and Mrs Howard Kepple, all of Oakland, announce the forthcoming marriage of their children – Janet Lynn McCrobie and Michael Clark Kepple.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Southern High School, Allegany College of Maryland, and Bowie State University. She is employed as a certified occupational therapy assistant with Garrett Rehab Services in Oakland.

The prospective groom is a graduate of Southern High School and is the owner/operator of Outhouse Gutters and Downspouts, Oakland.

The wedding is planned for April 2005. Invitations will be sent to friends and family.

Christmas Bird Counters Kept Busy This Year

The annual Christmas Bird Count (CBC) took place last month during exceptionally fine December weather, which organizers said resulted in good numbers of birds counted. Though nearly all ponds in the count area were frozen, a portion of Deep Creek Lake was still open, and counters were able to add 17 species of waterfowl to the 2004 CBC list, boosting the overall species count considerably from last year.

A cackling goose spotted by Fran Pope was a first for the local count. Pope was also able to snap several nice photos which show the size difference between the Canada goose and the cackling goose.

A number of hawks took advantage of calm winds to carry out their hunting, which led to the CBC's highest red-tail hawk tally in the 34 years of the survey.

Mourning doves, red-bellied woodpeckers, blue jays, and American crows were also present in high numbers. Two red-headed woodpeckers were noted for just the fifth time in the history of the local count.

A lone surf scoter found on Deep Creek Lake was also deemed a good find, as it was only the third year the species had been observed.

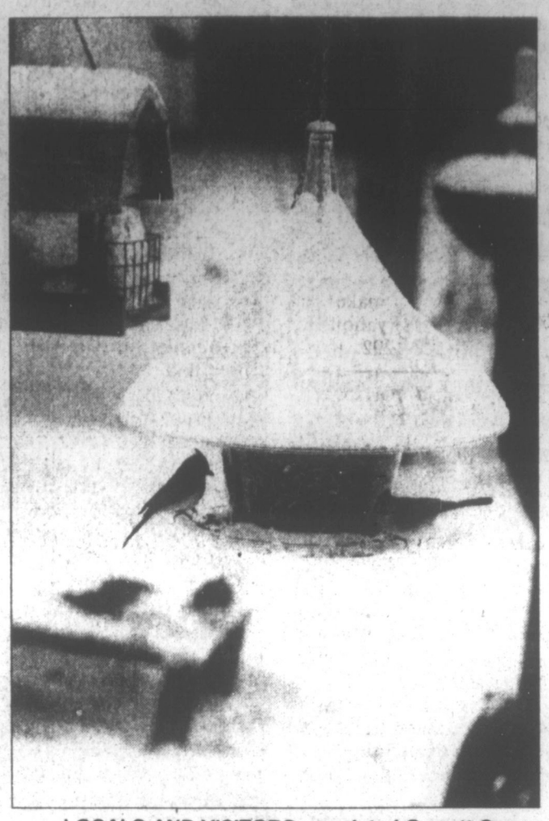
Numerous American crows was tallied this year, as counters logged 11,214 individuals of the species in comparison to 7,127 in 2003. Pope's efforts in counting the crows as they came to roost near Oakland were singled out for recognition by local CBC compiler Connie Skipper.

Another counter who "did an exceptional job" was Aaron Holochwost. "He spent a lot of time scouting his territory. It paid off in some really good birds and a high species count for the day," Skipper said.

The survey involved six field teams, composed of Kevin Dodge, Holochwost, and Mikey Lutanerding; Fran Pope; Bill Pope; George and Barbara Gaffney; Courtney and Mike Englar; and Connie Skipper, Jeff Opel, and Tina Opel.

The feeder watchers – including regulars Dessie Bowman, Frances and Harold Hoecker, Barbara Skipper, and Sallie Thayer, and newcomers Katharine Smith, Cathie and Jere Yohn, and Judy Pitman – also supplied data for the count. The feeder watchers added a number of new species to the list.

The Midwinter Bird Count is slated for Saturday, Feb. 5. Dodge and Holochwost are currently organizing that survey, which will encompass the entire county. Persons interested in participating are asked to contact either Dodge by calling 301-387-3328, or via e-mail at kdodge@gcnet.net; or Holochwost at 301-387-8563, or via e-mail at aholochwost@hotmail.com.



LOCALS AND VISITORS populated Garrett County during the recent Christmas Bird Count, which tallied a number of new species in one of the most productive counts ever. Counted among the native population were the pair of tufted titmice shown above that were photographed by feeder watcher Katharine Smith. Field counter Fran Pope spied a rare find on the waters of Deep Creek Lake, the cackling goose which she photographed in the foreground of a group of much larger Canada geese (shown below). This cackling goose was the first ever tallied in the 34 years of the annual CBC. The Midwinter Bird Count is set for Saturday, Feb. 5, and contact information for persons interested in participating is contained in the accompanying article.

COMPUTER CLASS

A class of seven weeks' duration, "Introduction to Computers," will begin Jan. 25 at Aurora School. Cost is $10 and students will be using Microsoft Windows. Classes will be held from 5 until 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday evenings. A few openings are left. Interested persons may call Aurora School at 735-3781 or call Sandy Callahan at home, 735-6700.

MOUNTAINEER 4-H

Nine members of the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club met Jan. 10 at the Eglon Memorial Building. Devotions, titled "Best Friends," were given by Caitlin Roth and Caitlin Norwish of the Health Committee. Cody Hardesty led the pledges.

Jesse Schalker began the talks and demonstrations by showing how to care for a ferret, using a videotaped segment with his ferrets. He followed this with a talk on ferret shows. Quite a few questions were asked of him about this unique animal.

Kaitlyn Schalker gave a talk about her horse project titled "Different Horse Breeds." She explained their different characterisitics and how horse breeds influence their capabilities.

Chad Vandevender gave a talk on "4-H History" to conclude that segment of the meeting.

The upcoming poster and photo contest was explained, and members volunteered to make posters in the various categories and to enter photos for judging. These are due to the leader by Feb. 3.

Members and families signed up for the Feb. 20 WVU vs. Seton Hall basketball game in Morgantown. Deadline for registering is Feb. 4, with money to be paid by that same date.

Caitlin Roth and Debbie Collins plan to attend the March 4-6 Teen Leader/Charting Weekend at Jackson's Mill. Dance Camp weekend is March 11-13.

At the Feb. 14 meeting, the club will be making Valentines, with Caitlin Roth heading the activity. Project talks and demonstrations will again be emphasized.

Those attending were Jonathan Blamble, Debbie Collins, Cody Hardesty, Tyler Harsh, Caitlin Norwish, Caitlin Roth, Jesse Schalker, Kaitlyn Schalker, and Chad Vandevender.

GIRL SCOUTS SELLING COOKIES

The annual Girl Scout cookie drive is under way, and Aurora Troop 4139 is taking orders for thin mints, samoas, tag-alongs, truffles, do-si-dos, all-abouts, lemon coolers, and double Dutch. Persons may call Carla Wotring at 735-3354 or Barbara Snyder at 735-5769 to place an order, or check at the local post office or businesses for order forms.

SHUMAN BIRTHDAY

Catherine Martin Shuman of Fairmont was guest of honor at a recent celebration for her 70th birthday. It was planned by her daughter, Kelly Bajus, and held at the Free Methodist Church social room, Fairmont. Her brothers, Earl Martin and Reed Martin, were among the approximately 85 in attendance. Also attending were cousins Russell and Donna Beckman, Shirley and Guy Lipscomb and Evelyn, of Eglon, Regina and Harley Donham of Grafton, and relatives of her late husband, Jesse Shuman.

Catherine is a daughter of the late Ronald and Leota, Martin who were residents of Eglon, and she attended schools at Eglon and Aurora.

PERSONAL MENTION

Keith and Dee Douglas of Aurora visited in Ohio with their children and grandchildren during the New Year holiday, a delayed Christmas celebration. While they were in Ohio, Mrs. Douglas's sister, Vada Fusselman of Sebring, Fla., flew here to visit her mother, Leota Elsey, who is a resident of Cortland Acres Nursing Home at Thomas.

Grace Giordana, Eglon, has recently become a resident of Cortland Acres at Thomas. Since the death of her husband she has resided at Eglon with her daughter, Ruby Feather.

Matthew Bachtel, son of Bill and Diana Bachtel of Eglon, left recently to serve a two-year stint with the U.S. Peace Corps in Niger, Africa. Prior to his leaving for orientation in Pennsylvania, an open house for him was held at the Bethel United Methodist Church.

Judy Hauser of Gnegy Church remains a patient at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, but is reportedly improving.

Sandra Hauser of Stemple Ridge had out-patient surgery Friday at a Morgantown hospital.

Genevieve Ball has been ill at Cortland Acres Nursing Home, and her family has been staying with her during this time.

AURORA PIONEERS

by Michael O'Connor

The January meeting of the Aurora Pioneers 4-H Club was called to order by Marissa Bachtel. Bridgette Strawser led the pledge of allegiance and Chelsee Rinker led the 4-H pledge. Katelyn Radford led members as they sang "E Me Me Mi Moe" and "The Beaver Song." Daniel O'Connor led the group in a game of "Telephone," and Hunter Radford led the group in a writing relay game.

Under old business the club talked about Project North Pole.

Under new business, the new club "How How" leader is Haley Rocha. Photos and posters for the contest are due at the February meeting, which is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 6. The change from the regular meeting time is because of the Super Bowl.

Devotions were read by Wyatt Snyder, who read "A Childs Prayer" and by Jessica Shillingburg, who read "God made Me and Earth."

The club's bowling activity is slated for 2 p.m. this Saturday, Jan. 22, in Oakland. 4-H members can participate at no cost.

WARM THE CHILDREN 2004

Providing New Warm Clothing for Needy Children

This year's Warm the Children was a huge success once again. The entire process seemed to run smoothly, and that is only because so many people are completely dedicated to seeing it through. This year we raised approximately $28,000 and helped nearly 300 local children in need by taking them shopping to get new, warm winter clothing and footwear. Thanks are due to the hundreds of monetary donors, noted on this page, as well as the many volunteers. The Civic Club of Oakland once again took the program under its wing. Thanks to Betty Ellington, Bobby Andersen, and Bobbie Henderson, who coordinated the volunteers in the southern part of the county, and to Lisa Broadwater, who handled the northern part. Dora Hanlin of the Dept. of Social Services was again indispensable in her role of helping find and screen recipients. Thanks to our public school system for helping us find the children. Ellen Fritz and her army of thank-you note writers worked nearly constantly from the beginning to the close of the campaign, sending off personal notes to each and every donor. Our 40-some volunteer shoppers gave their time and effort to so many local families, and the customer service staff at Wal-Mart was again outstanding in assisting with the program. First United Bank & Trust continues to give Warm the Children a fee-free account as well. All of these people and their efforts have helped keep many Garrett County children warm this winter. Thank you all again, God bless you, and see you next year!

Personnel Hired For Courthouse Security System

Three new sheriff's deputies assigned to the security of the Garrett County Courthouse were sworn in this week by Circuit Court clerk Dave Martin. Working under the supervision of Deputy Randy Resh are J. Terry Schlossnagle and Larry N. Smith.

Collectively, they have more than 75 years of experience. Schlossnagle is a retired detective lieutenant, having served a 32-year career with the Howard County Police Department.

Smith retired after 25 years with the Maryland State Police, and served for many years in Garrett County as a K-9 handler.

Resh recently retired from the Maryland State Police after 28 years, with the last four years of his career serving as the commander of the McHenry Barrack.

All three reside in Garrett County.

COURTHOUSE SECURITY STAFF SWORN IN – Additional personnel were sworn in this week to carry out the enhanced security for the Garrett County Courthouse. Working under the supervision of Deputy Randy Resh are J. Terry Schlossnagle and Larry N. Smith. Collectively, they have more than 75 years of experience. Above, from left to right, are Sheriff Dick Sanders, Smith, Schlossnagle, Resh, and David Martin (Clerk of the Cirtcuit Court). See story.

"With their combined experience, our three newest deputies bring tremendous value to the Sheriff's Office Courthouse Security Program," said Sheriff Dick Sanders. "Over the next few weeks they will received hands-on training with the Frederick County Sheriff's Office Courthouse Security Unit. The Frederick program has received recognition, and is the model four courthouses statewide."

Among the equipment soon to be added to the courthouse are a metal detector and an X-ray machine. All persons not employed in the courthouse or having received prior clearance credentials, and their packages, entering the courthouse will be screened. This enhanced security is expected to be fully operational by mid-February, said Sanders.

Homeland Security Grant funds help support this initiative. Persons with questions may contact Major Gary Berkebile at 301-334-1911.

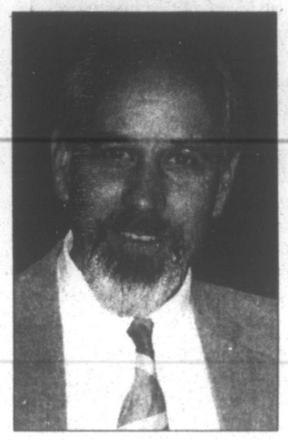
Bloodmobile To Visit Oakland Next Thursday

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will be in Oakland next Thursday, Jan. 27. Donors will be welcomed at the St. Peter's Catholic Church social hall from noon to 6 p.m.

In order to be eligible to donate blood, persons must be at least 17 years of age, weight at least 105 pounds, and be in generally good health. Those meeting these requirements may donate one unit of blood every eight weeks.

SEVENTH GRADERS GIVE TO DOVE CENTER – The seventh graders at Southern Middle School recently collected items to donate to the Dove Center as a Service Learning Project. In their homerooms, students learned information about the Dove Center, including some statistics about family violence and the types of clients the agency serves. "The students responded very quickly and by the deadline," said a school spokesperson. "The entire cargo space of a Yukon XL was filled with items ready to be delivered." One seventh grader said, "I think the project was a good experience, and even though I knew some things about the Dove Center already, it felt good to help people during the holidays. It made me think about kids in need most of all." Pictured are the students from Jane Nolan's 7th grade homeroom who donated items. In the front, from left to right, are Conor Forrester, Travis Wolfe, and Andrew Mowbray. In the middle are Ben Myers, Brutus Scheffel, Brady Donaldson, Katie Gindlesberger, Kelly Bean, and Alicia King. In the back are Jeremy Sharpless, Kristen Skeweris, and Emilee Bosley.

Ruckert Honored For 25 Years At Children's Trust



Salem Children's Trust, Grantsville, recently honored Tom Ruckert, risk manager, who observed his 25th year at Salem in August.

Ruckert resides in New Germany State Park with his wife Diane and their two daughters, Kate and Lauryn. In his spare time, he enjoys keeping active by running, cross-country skiing, swimming, bicycling, and mountain climbing.

New Arrivals

A son, Malaka Isaac, was born to Jessica Stone and Justin Dalton, Oakland, on Dec. 17, 2004, at Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown, W.Va.

Matthew and Tiffanie (Parrish) Martin, Keyser, W.Va., announce the birth of a son, Kameron Mykel, on Dec. 4, 2004, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The maternal grandparents are Donald Amtower, Keyser, and Diann Ramey, Swanton, and the paternal grandparents are John and Charlotte Miller, Keyser, W.Va.

A daughter, Morgan Claire, was born to John and Heidi (Hauser) Qualls, Oakland, on Jan. 12 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

A son, Skyler LaMar, was born to Robert and Rhonda (Ford) Lewis, Mtn. Lake Park, on Jan. 10 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Seaman Bill S. Sgaggero Jr., son of Brenda L. Sgaggero, Bloomington, and Bill S. Sgaggero Sr., Oakland, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Sgaggero completed a variety of training, which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp was "Battle Stations." This exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. It is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork, and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of honor, courage, and commitment.

Stalking Awareness Month

by Victoria Thomas
Crisis/Legal Advocate
The Dove Center

Stalking statutes and laws have only been in effect since 1990. Before 1990, stalking was not considered a crime in United States. As part three on our series of stalking, we wanted to concentrate on safety. If you feel you may be a victim of a stalker, here are some researched safety tips. Some of these may not apply to your specific situation, but others may. Utilize those safety tips that will assist in maximizing your safety.

In general:

- Educate yourself about stalking and stalking laws in your state.
- Tell the stalker only once that you want no contact. After that avoid all contact with stalker.
- Keep a stalking journal including dates times and specific incidents.
- Consider filing a peace or protective order against the stalker.
- Keep an "escape bag" at a trusted friend's house. In this bag include items such as cash, clothing prescriptions, and copies of important documents (Social Security cards, birth certificates, divorce papers, proper identification).
- Tell family, friends, employers, and co-workers you are being stalked.
- Check in daily with family or friends.

In the home:

- Consider adding an alarm system to your home.
- Trim bushes and shrubs around the home to reduce a hiding place for the stalker.
- Secure the house by changing the locks to include deadbolts, add safety locks and wood blocks to windows, and secure sliding glass doors. Keep doors and windows locked.
- Secure your basement and garage areas.
- Check outdoor lighting. Leave light on.
- Create a safety room.
- Consider getting a dog.
- Teach your children safety and not to open doors to anyone.
- Keep a cell phone inside the home.
- Ask the police to make frequent checks at your home because of problems. Give complete information to police.

At work:

- If possible, vary your work schedule.
- Have escort to and from your car.
- Instruct all persons at your work place not to disclose any info about you to a third party.
- Have someone else record your voice mail message, so that it is not your own voice.

In the car:

- Vary your daily routine by driving different routes.
- Drive with your doors locked.
- Peer inside and underneath the car before entering.
- Check tires and brakes.
- Park in lighted areas.
- Have car locks changed if necessary.
- Take pictures and keep record of any damage to your car.
- If stalker is following you, drive straight to police station. Do not pull over.
- If stalker approaches you in your car, drive away and lean on your horn to attract attention.
- If stalker gets inside your car with you, avoid driving anywhere and throw away the keys as far as you can.

Phone safety:

- Have your phone number changed to unlisted. Consider adding a second phone line for which only close family and friends have the number.
- Use an answering machine with a pre-recorded message on it so stalker cannot hear your voice.
- When making outgoing calls, use call block (to call block, dial *67, then the number you are trying to reach). Call block prevents your number from showing up on caller ID screen.
- Save any threatening or obscene messages.
- Have harassing calls traced by using Call Trace. To use Call Trace, hang up from the call and dial *57.

For more information on stalking, please contact the Dove Center at 301-334-9000 or 301-334-6255.

LOCH LYNN KIDS LEARN RHYTHM – The Loch Lynn After School Program started the new year with a new twist – sport yoga and drumming are on the agenda Thursdays from 4 to 5 p.m. for first through fifth graders. Presented by Camp Earth, the yoga and drumming sessions are funded through a 21st Century grant. Class instructors are Carol Calhoun, Peggy Santamaria, and Josh Gambetta. The Loch Lynn After School Program, coordinated by Trish Falkner, is sponsored by Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc., with funding from Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families. In the photo above, kids increase upper body strength and flexibility with a "cobra stretch." Below, students beat out some noise with their rhythm sticks held high.

Ballistic Fingerprinting Law Gets Thumbs-Down From State Police

Maryland governor Robert L. Erhlich Jr. has released a September report by the Maryland State Police that recommends repeal of a law requiring collection of ballistic imaging information, also known as "ballistic fingerprinting. In its second progress report on the Maryland Integrated Ballistics Identification System (MD-IBIS), the state's Forensic Sciences Division recommends that "this program be suspended."

Ballistic fingerprinting relies on the concept that each individual gun's firing pin creates unique markings on the base of the shell casing when the gun is fired. The MD-IBIS program was designed to capitalize on that theory by requiring that a fired cartridge case from each handgun sold in the state be provided for entry into a state database. Proponents claimed that police would then be able to match casings left at a crime scene with the guns registered in the database, thereby providing a selection of firearms a state police firearms examiner would evaluate in order to determine a "match."

Maryland has spent $2,567,333 on its ballistic fingerprinting program over the past four years, having "collected and imported 43,729 cartridge cases into the system as of Sept. 7, 2004," the report stated. "It has incurred 208 criminal investigations leading to six 'hits' or matches.

"The cost per 'hit' value is $427,939, or approximately $60 per gun sold. None of the 'hits' has been used in a criminal trial, and five of the six did not work according to the manner in which the system was designed. It actually functioned in reverse, [as] the gun was already present," the report stated.

"It should be noted that the theory upon which MD-IBIS operates is sound," the report pointed out. "Digital imaging and comparisons can be very accurate and have been proven to be so; [however], the variables around the science need to be reduced."

The report specified a number of "problems that continue to plague the MD-IBIS," including crime guns not being entered into the system, personal bias of examiners, and the ease with which a gun barrel can be altered to change its ballistic fingerprint. Experts also note that regular wear incurred by firing a gun will, over time, change the ballistic fingerprint the barrel leaves on a shell casing.

The report goes on to recommend a repeal of the collection of cartridge cases from current law be enacted, and that laboratory technicians associated with the program be transferred to the DNA database unit.

"The MD-IBIS Program has not led to the solution or expediency of an investigation that could not have been accomplished by other traditional sources," the report continued.

"For all its good intentions, the program has not proven to be a time-saving tool for firearms examiners or an investigative enhancement to criminal investigators. It has simply failed. Fiscal resources for the MD-IBIS Program would be well spent in other Forensic Sciences Division programs proven to be of value to the law enforcement community," the state police report concluded.

Red Cross Slates Health And Safety Services Courses

The Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross, which serves a wide region including Garrett County, has slated several health and safety services courses for next month. Several courses will be offered at the chapter office in Oakland, located at 12 South Third Street. Preregistration is required for all classes.

The course listing follows:

•Community CPR – This four-hour course includes caring for and recognizing breathing and cardiac emergencies in adults, children, and infants, including choking; injury prevention and how to lead a healthy lifestyle for people of all ages. A discount is offered when the course is taken in conjunction with First Aid. The cost is $30 for a new student and $25 for a student seeking recertification, and includes the text, CPR kit, and certification for one year.

Community CPR will be presented from 6 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 8, at the Cumberland Chapter House.

•Professional Rescuer CPR – This eight-hour course is developed for volunteers and career professionals who routinely respond to emergencies. The course emphasizes how to recognize and respond to respiratory and cardiac emergencies in adults, children, and infants, including two-rescuer CPR and AED training. This course meets the standard requirements for nursing, allied health professions, and emergency medical services.

The cost is $35 for a new student and $30 for a student seeking recertification, and includes the text, pocket mask, and certification for one year.

Professional Rescuer CPR will be offered from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 26, at the Cumberland Chapter House.

•Community First Aid and Safety – This eight-hour course combines Community CPR and First Aid courses into an entire day of training. The cost is $40 for a new student and $35 for a student seeking recertification, and includes the text, CPR kits, FA practice kit, and two certification cards.

Community First Aid and Safety will be presented from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the following dates at the these locations: Tuesday, Feb. 1, at the Cumberland Chapter House; Thursday, Feb. 10 at the Oakland ARC office; Wednesday, Feb. 16, at the Keyser ARC office; Saturday, Feb. 19, at the Cumberland Chapter House; Tuesday, Feb. 22, at the Oakland ARC office; and Thursday, Feb. 24, at the Cumberland Chapter House.

•First Aid – This three-hour course covers techniques for recognizing and caring for life-threatening emergencies in adults, such as burns, injuries to muscles, bones and joints, sudden illnesses, bleeding, poisonings, as well as heat and cold-related emergencies. This course meets OSHA guidelines, and is designed to fit the needs of businesses and industries. A discount is applied when taken in conjunction with a CPR class. The cost is $25 for a new student and $20 for a student seeking recertification, and includes text, practice FA kit, and a three-year certification card.

First Aid will be offered from 6 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 9, at the Cumberland Chapter House.

•Babysitter's Training – This seven-hour course is offered to individuals between the ages of 11 and 15, and includes information and skills teaching necessary to provide safe and responsible care for children. This training will help participants develop skills in basic care, safety and safe play, first aid, leadership, and professionalism.

Babysitter's Training will be presented from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 5, at the Cumberland Chapter House.

The Red Cross will offer Lifeguard, Learn To Swim, and Water Safety courses in March and April.

For further information, or to pre-register for any course, persons may contact ARC Western Potomac Chapter Health Services director Lorri Witt by calling 301-722-1760, ext. 307, or via e-mail at lkwitt@allco-net.org.

MUNICIPAL PRIMARY ELECTION

Because of the response of candidates for Town Council, a primary election will be held Monday, Jan. 24, at the town hall from noon to 7 p.m. Voters will vote for no more than six of the following candidates: Herschel H. Allen III, Eugene Dixon, Jane G. Fox, Frances E. Friend, Agnes C. Lichtner, James Allen Naeseth, Joseph E. Sessa, Shawn M. Sessa, Alice Marie Spear, and James Spear.

Following is a summary of the candidates and their platforms:

Herschel Allen III has been a resident of Friendsville for 15 years, is married, and has a son who attends Friendsville Elementary School. He served in the U.S. Army, with two years of duty in Vietnam. He previously served on the town council for two years, at which time he says he "got the ball rolling on the handicapped sidewalks and also headed the project for the energy-saving street lights." Herschel is running for council again because he feels that he would work for the people.

"I care about the people and the town," stated Herschel, "and I've seen what other towns have received through grant money and feel that we can do the same in this town."

Eugene Dixon has been owner and operator of the Yough Motel for the last year and a half. He has been a lifelong resident of Garrett County, in Deer Park until his move to Friendsville.

"I like Friendsville and always have," states Dixon. "Friendsville has a great opportunity for growth and I would like to see the vacant buildings occupied."

Eugene is one of the founders of PCM Industrial Services, and upon retirement desired a home with a business and decided to settle in Friendsville with the purchase of the Yough Motel.

"I feel that our business brings travelers who partake of the other businesses in town, and we are happy to support the community in that way."

Dixon hopes to become a councilman so that he can help the town create business opportunities for the future of the community. He and his wife are current members of the Garrett Co. Chamber of Commerce. He is a veteran of the Vietnam War.

Jane Fox is a life-long resident of Friendsville and is well known in the community. Since her retirement as principal at Friendsville Elementary School, she has served on several county boards and is presently serving on the Garrett County Historical Society board and as treasurer for the Retired Teachers Association. In the two years that she has served on town council she has been committed to the recycling project that was started and she was one of those instrumental in developing a newsletter for the residents of Friendsville to be kept informed. She is also chair of the Tree Committee, which has provided tree trimming and removal to create a better environment.

"I would like to make this an ongoing project and to be a 'tree city,'" stated Fox. "Trees are such an important part of the environment. I would like to remain a council member so that I can continue these projects that I am passionate about."

She is also anxious for younger people to become involved and participate in the community.

"The younger people need to make time for the future of the community and the future of the children. I have learned a lot by being a council member and would really appreciate it if I were able to continue," she said.

Frances Friend has been a council member for four years. "I would like to stay on as council member to help hold the town together and to see the park expand," she said.

During her time as a council member, she has served to help with the town lighting and the Christmas lights. She has also helped with the planting of flowers to help keep the streets clean. She is retired after 31 years with the Board of Education and says she enjoys being a member of the town council. She said she does her best to help solve any problems that come up and is concerned about the needs of the residents.

Agnes Lichtner, a first-time candidate for the town council, was born in Philadelphia. She said she soon found she was not a "city girl," and she and her husband have traveled from place to place to find the perfect residence to serve all of their needs. Their journey brought them to Friendsville, where they purchased an old hotel and are renovating it into a bed-and-breakfast.

"I decided to run for town council to get someone from the outside with new views and optimism," states Lichtner. "I am someone who likes fresh beginnings, and I see lots of potential in Friendsville."

She has served on the Friendsville Revitalization Task Force, which was instrumental in getting new street lights, trash cans, and the façade grant that helped many area businesses improve their frontal property.

"I think that Friendsville is a very worthwhile community and hope to do something positive for its future growth," she said.

James Naeseth is originally from Hampton, Va., but has been a resident of Friendsville for 15 years. Through a lot of different avenues he became owner and operator of the natural food/alternative medicine store in Friendsville beside the Yough Motel. He has served 1½ years on the Revitalization Task Force that has helped to improve the businesses and streets in Friendsville. He also joined forces with town council member Tom Fike in writing for and receiving a $120,000 grant to be used at the Town Park. He was also involved in the election rules by serving on the committee and wants to get involved on a different level.

"I decided to run for town council because I would like to help realize the economic future of Friendsville," he said. "I would like to see reasonable growth to our town that won't take away from the quiet beauty of the area. This is a very special town, and a lot of good things can happen when we achieve balanced growth."

Joseph Sessa has been a resident of Friendsville since 1971 and has been "Joe the Barber" since. In those 24 years, he served as town council president for six years, and while serving, acquired the property from Harry Guard that would become the Town Park. He is owner and operator of the Sunset Inn, an 18-unit motel, along with his wife Mary Ellen, and they are finalizing construction for a coffee shop on their motel property.

"I will work again to help the town residents and the community to meet our needs," he said.

Shawn Sessa is the youngest candidate of the town council and hopes to be able to serve the community with fresh ideas. "I grew up in Friendsville and am in the part of my life where I have a desire to make my community a better place," he said.

He attended college at WVU and earned a master's degree prior to working for his current employer, which is the Maryland Dept. of Juvenile Services.

"I look forward to being a voice on the town council and work with the community to achieve our goals," he said.

Alice Spear says she is running for town council because of her interest in the town. "I care what happens, and am concerned about the lack of businesses," she said. "I am concerned about our youth and feel that they need some guidance." Spear served previously on the town council and said she was amazed to find out what it takes to keep a town moving smoothly. Owner and operator of Discount Liquors, she also served many years for the Board of Education as a teacher's aide and secretary of the Friendsville Elementary School.

"I feel lucky to be a resident of Friendsville and would not want to live any other place. If chosen for the town council, I would like to work together with other people to get more businesses into our town," she said.

James Spear was a member of the town council for a total of 20 years and served as mayor for two years. "I would like to make a better town out of Friendsville by trying to get more money to fix the streets," he said. "I feel that some of the money we get is spent on things that we don't need, and would really like to help better the streets. I also feel that the town has been going downhill every year and will soon be a ghost town." Spear says he can remember the times when the town was "vital and thriving with three taverns, three grocery stores, a hardware store, two gas stations, restaurants, and three or four auto shops.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Md. Agriculture Hall Of Fame Dinner Slated

Maryland's agricultural industry leaders will dine with state and national legislators on Thursday, Feb. 3, to celebrate the importance of Maryland's number one industry, agriculture. Over 700 are expected to attend the annual gala at Michael's Eighth Avenue in Glen Burnie, which is sponsored by the Maryland Agriculture Council. "Building Bridges" is the theme of the event.

During the dinner, the prestigious Governor's Agriculture Hall of Fame award will be presented to farm families who have demonstrated an exceptional commitment to agriculture and the communities in which they live and work.

The Maryland Agriculture Council will also award several thousand dollars in grants for various agricultural projects throughout the state.

The role of the Maryland Agriculture Council is one of educating the public on the importance of agriculture. Various avenues enable the Agriculture Council to interact with the public on a year-round basis, such as Ag Week shows at the malls, web sites, fairs, community shows and newsletters. The council's grant program offers funding to individuals or organizations for the promotion of agriculture.

Tickets for the dinner are still available at $85 per person. For ticket information and reservations, persons may call Gail Yeiser at 301-405-2434; or for more information on the dinner, Susan Summers at 301-865-1045.

Preston County Farm Service Agency Reports

Eric M. McCartney, County Executive Director
Preston County FSA Office
425 E. Main St., Suite 420, Kingwood, WV 26537-1793

FARM SERVICE AGENCY ASSISTS RISK MANAGEMENT AGENCY

The Agricultural Risk Protection Act of 2000 (ARPA) passed by Congress requires USDA's Farm Service Agency and Risk Management Agency (RMA) to work together to improve program compliance and integrity in the Federal Crop Insurance Program. County FSA offices conduct a program to monitor crop conditions throughout the growing season.

Also, under the monitoring program FSA will conduct field spot-checks in efforts to identify and eliminate waste, fraud, and abuse of the Federal Crop Insurance Program. All suspected cases will be referred to RMA for necessary action.

Producers may also file complaints with the Preston County FSA Office.

RMA and private insurance providers will reconcile all relevant information from insured producers with FSA to identify discrepancies in unit structure acreage reporting, and production documentation. Additionally, FSA will assist in auditing claims for crop loss.

Risk Management Agency reminds producers to accurately report crops and acreage timely to their insurance provider. Moreover, it is equally important to report all damage and potential losses within the applicable time period, as stated in one's insurance policy.

COMMITTEE ELECTION RESULTS

The 2004 Preston County FSA Committee election was held in Local Administrative Area (LAA) 2 (Kingwood, Portland, and Valley Districts).

Patrick Foley, who operates a livestock farm along Greens Run, was re-elected to another three-year term on the County Committee. Hoy Wiles was elected first alternate, and Ben Walsh second alternate. Foley, Wiles, and Walsh took office at the start of the month.

At the January 12 County Committee organizational meeting, the following positions were determined: chairperson, Dayton Bolyard; vice-chairperson, Patrick Foley; and regular member, Milford Gibson. LaDeana Teets serves as the County Committee advisor.

The County Committee has the responsibility of administering USDA-FSA programs for the coming year. The committee meets in regular session at 9 a.m. on the Wednesday of the second full week of each month. All regular sessions are open to the public.

Persons with disabilities who require accommodations to attend or participate in these meetings may contact Preston County FSA executive director Eric McCartney via telephone at 304-329-1923, via the Federal Relay Service at 1-800-877-8339, or via e-mail at eric.mccartney@wv.usda.gov. Arrangements need to be made no later than one week prior to the regular monthly meeting.

The Preston County Farm Service Agency thanks all of the farmers who took the time to vote in this election. For further information regarding the role of the County Committee in administering USDA-FSA programs, persons may either visit the FSA office located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, or call 304-329-1923.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

COMETS AND ASTEROIDS

Q. I saw on TV that NASA has shot off a rocket aimed at a comet out in space. Why? Are they trying to blow it up?

This NASA mission is intended only to study the comet, not to destroy it. There is a lot of misunderstanding in this entire field, and people often worry unnecessarily. It's important to understand what comets are, and where they come from. Moreover, we don't want to confuse a comet with an asteroid, which is an entirely different type of object.

Comets are located mostly in the outer reaches of the solar system, beyond even the planets Neptune and Pluto. All planets travel around the sun in elliptical orbits, but except for Pluto, those orbits are very nearly circles. Comets, on the other hand, have extremely eccentric orbits, traveling from far away to fairly near the sun and back out again. The point of closest approach to the sun is called the perihelion and the point farthest away is called the aphelion. That enormous change in distance is what makes comets of interest to human observers. Comets can tell us something about the composition of the early solar system.

We know today that a comet is a ball of frozen gases, mainly water but usually including some methane and ammonia. It is a remnant of the earliest stages of the solar system, before the planets coalesced. In the outer solar system, there is nothing to disturb or change a comet, but when it comes near the sun, the outer layers of gas warm up and evaporate away from the ball. That gas, stretching millions of miles into space, receives energy from the sun and lights up, and is visible on earth; we call that the "tail" of the comet. It was a puzzling feature (until about 1960) of comets that the tail always pointed away from the sun, regardless of whether the comet was approaching or receding from the sun. When the early space probes discovered the existence of the solar wind (a steady stream of particles outward from the sun), the reason for the gases being deflected became clear, and the puzzle of the tail-direction was understood.

By measuring the radiation from the gases in the tail, via the technique known as spectroscopy, it is possible to figure out a lot about the chemical composition of the ball itself, and thus to find out what chemicals were significant during the formation phases of the solar system. That's a very good reason to study comets.

A century ago, the most famous comet was Halley's Comet, which came near the sun (perihelion) in 1834 and 1910, and was beautifully visible from earth. Naturally, scientists studied it with the best instruments available at the time. Because of its 76-year orbit, everyone was anticipating its return in 1986. But the 1986 visit fizzled – it was nowhere nearly as bright as its earlier appearances. Perhaps prior to 1986 Halley's comet lost much of the material that would have lit up. Subsequent comets were much more visible, especially in the spring of 1995.

The recently launched NASA space probe will not try to hit the comet, but will pass through the gases of its tail, in order to get a close-up view and learn much more than can be observed from earth. It's one of the components in a total program of solar-system exploration.

Asteroids, on the other hand, are something completely different. In between Mars and Jupiter, there were enough rocks to coalesce into another planet, but with the sun pulling one way and Jupiter pulling the other, the rocks never came together as one large ball – they remained as just loose rocks, floating in orbit at the distance where the planet "should have" formed. We call this the asteroid belt. Those loose rocks are still out there today, and they drift along harmlessly in a nearly circular orbit, until one happens to bump into another.

When that happens, both rocks change to a different orbit, and may actually leave the asteroid belt. Some of those itinerant rocks come inward toward the sun, and follow a pathway that takes them through the orbit of some other body: Venus, Earth, our moon, Mars. When we look at the craters on the moon, it is evident that over a very long time, a lot of rocks have come our way, and some have actually hit the surface of the moon. But it's important to remember that for the huge majority of asteroids that cross the orbit of a planet, there is "nobody home" when the asteroid goes by, and thus its trajectory is a non-event.

Errant asteroids sometimes reach Earth, and then we call them "meteors." Most of these are very small and burn up in the atmosphere; we call those "shooting stars." But a big one that strikes the surface can make quite a difference. In 1908, something big hit Siberia, but records from that remote time and place are not good enough to provide much information.

It appears very likely that a massive asteroid struck Earth 65 million years ago, probably in the Gulf of Mexico near the Yucatan peninsula, and that did a lot of damage. According to the best current theory, fire and darkness wiped out so much plant life that all the dinosaurs starved to death in a short amount of time.

Could such a thing happen again? Sure, and that's what makes for entertaining science fiction, and movies with great special effects. (And yes, it would launch a tsunami.) However, the likelihood is incredibly small, tiny compared to hazards like being struck by lightning or hit by a train. Little meteors hit the earth every night; huge ones only a handful of times in a billion years.

Nevertheless, it's fun to talk about and worry about, and some folks want to see the government "do something" about the possible hazard of a major meteor. The term "far-fetched" seems particularly appropriate for a worry originating in the asteroid belt.

The effort to study comets, on the other hand, is a reasonable activity within the overall science of the solar system.

PREPARE FOR SATISFACTION!

Has your doctor ever put a cast on your arm before first learning that you have a head cold? Has a car dealer ever delivered a Geo Metro to your doorstep before first discovering that you intended to purchase a Cadillac? Of course not!

Why are these scenarios so unlikely? From experience, you know that doctors ask questions before prescribing treatment. Auto dealers pose lots of questions too, to avoid wasting your time on the wrong model. Buying a home is no different.

Before you begin looking at homes, define your objectives. Why are you planning to buy? What size and style home will meet your needs? Do you have specific locations in mind? What price do you plan to pay, and will financing be necessary?

When you've answered those questions, choose a real estate agent to assist you with your purchase. Invest time with the agent, up front, discussing your objectives. The agent will research all available homes, then make appointments to see only those which meet your requirements.

You will see homes that match your dreams, without the inconvenience and frustration of sorting through those that don't. It could take you weeks to accomplish what the agent can do in hours. You benefit from the agent's experience, training, and expertise, saving time and confusion. Your investment in preparation can bring great dividends in satisfaction.

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call at the office, or on my cell phone at 301-501-DALE

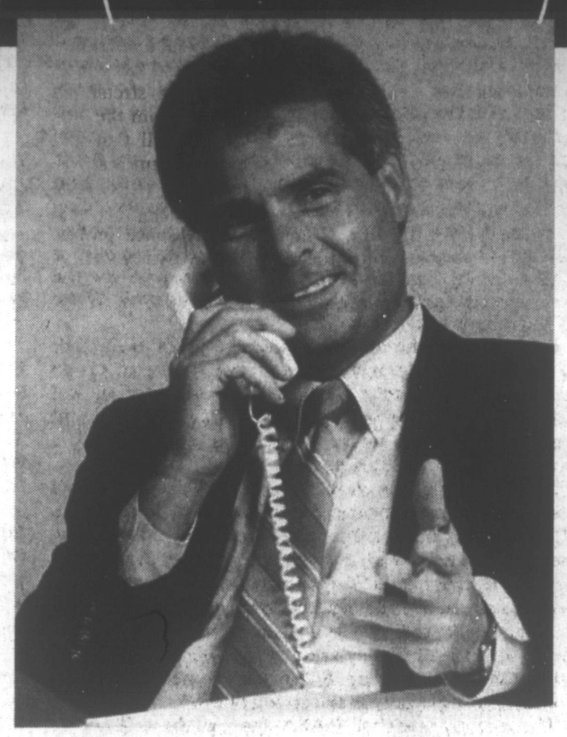
"Make My Day!" (GOD'S WAY)



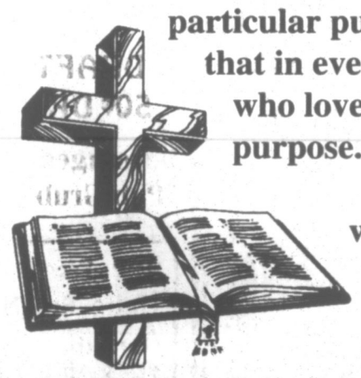
When was the last time someone gleamed at you and said, "You made my day!"? Do you remember what you did that got that response?

Perhaps you looked up and smiled sincerely as a co-worker walked by your desk, telling her, "I'm so glad you're here. I know you'll be a big help with this job!"

No? Did you take dinner to a neighbor the evening she returned home from the hospital…and stay to wash the dishes?

You may have encountered a troubled acquaintance and offered your phone number and a listening ear… "day or night".

Whatever the situation, it is important to realize that we never know when we could be making a life-altering impact with a small kindness or extra consideration. God may be using us for His particular purpose. Romans 8:28 explains, "We know that in everything God works for good with those who love Him, who are called according to His purpose."



Would you like to learn more about God working through you? Worship at your chosen House of Worship this Sabbath. It will make your day…God's way.

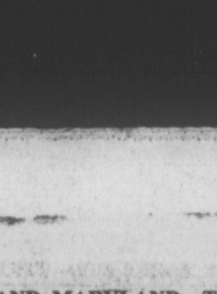
Beware Your Self-serving Bias

We tend to have a self-serving bias in many areas of daily life. To illustrate this, the comedian George Carlin once said, "Why is it that everyone driving slower than me is an idiot and everyone driving faster than me is a maniac?" The reason for this is our self-serving bias. We tend to see things our way, and to assume that others are just wrong. Consider how we tend to judge ourselves and others: we often judge others harshly in exactly the same circumstances where we would judge ourselves charitably. For example, when we give a small tip at a restaurant, we are likely to rationalize that it is because of poor service; however, when someone else leaves a small tip, we are likely to judge that the person is cheap. Our judgements, whether about ourselves or others, tend to be rationalizations, which are essentially defense mechanisms designed to protect our ego. And that, in the final analysis, may be the reason we have this self-serving bias: to protect our egos. We are naturally selfish creatures, and the sooner we realize this, the easier it is to overcome our self-serving biases.



Why do you see the speck that is in your brother's eye, but do not notice the log that is in your own eye?

Bee Venom evaluated for Rheumatoid Arthritis Pain Relief

Bee venom has been used in health care since ancient times, according to Dr. Glenn Rothfeld, who has written about the medi-cinal value of honey bee products. He indi-cates that there are currently approximately 1,500 articles in the scientific literature about bee venom and that the US military has spent time evaluating more than 15 active substances in this naturally occurring ven-om. The most prevalent substance is called melittin, an agent with potent anti-inflam-matory properties.

A recent report indicates that researchers have studied the effect of low doses of bee venom in test animals with rheumatoid arthritis. A new study shows how bee venom reduces pain and inflammation in the pre-sence of rheumatoid arthritis. Researchers have found two possible effects. One is to block the effect of genes in the body that cause arthritis-type pain and inflammation. The other possible effect is to reduce the amount of nitric acid in joint cells. Research-ers indicated that more studies are needed to determine the most effective dose of bee venom for those who suffer with this type of arthritis.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• You might be surprised to learn that it was Henry Kissinger who made the following observation: "Nobody will ever win the battle of the sexes. There's too much fraternizing with the enemy."

• The first recorded fire insurance was issued in Germany in 1591.

• In 1800, if you wanted to buy a reliable timepiece, you had to be prepared to shell out some serious money. At that time, a good clock cost about 80 percent of a man's annual salary.

• What do kittens, rabbits, wolves, hedgehogs, cheetahs and pandas have in common? They're all born blind.

• Many people are frustrated in social situations because they can remember someone's face, but can't come up with a name; others have the opposite problem, being able to remember names of people they meet but not what they look like. Some have speculated that the reason for this phenomenon is that memory of people's names is stored in the left side of the brain, while memory of face recognition is stored in the right side.

• The country of India — the second most populous nation in the world — recognizes 15 official languages.

• The next time you see a school bus, you can put the official name to the ubiquitous yellow color: "National School Bus Chrome Yellow."

• Holiday Inns at one time offered on-call doctors.

• Not many people realize that TV personality Dick Clark's middle name is "Wagstaff."

• I'm not sure who Joachim Heinrich was, but he must have been a golfer. It was he who defined a golf cart as "a method of transporting clubs that has one big advantage — it can't count."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 27, 1302, poet and politician Dante Alighieri is exiled from Florence, where he served as one of six priors governing the city. Dante wrote his masterpiece, "The Divine Comedy," as a virtual wanderer, seeking protection for his family in town after town.

• On Jan. 26, 1838, the first Prohibition law in the history of the United States is passed in Tennessee, making it a misdemeanor to sell alcoholic beverages in taverns and stores. Fines collected for retailing "spirituous liquors" would be used in support of public schools.

• On Jan. 24, 1907, in Ormond Beach, Fla., Glenn Curtiss, an engineer who got his start building motors for bicycles, sets an unofficial land-speed record of 136.29 mph on a self-built V-8 motorcycle. An automobile would not surpass that speed until 1911.

• On Jan. 25, 1924, the first Winter Olympics are held, at Chamonix in the French Alps. Spectators were thrilled by the ski jump and bobsled as well as 12 other events involving a total of six sports. Canada won the hockey gold, scoring 110 goals and allowing just three goals in five games.

• On Jan. 29, 1964, Stanley Kubrick's black comic masterpiece, "Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb" opens in theaters. Kubrick's satirical attacks on the U.S. and Russian policies of nuclear stockpiling and massive retaliation struck a chord with the American people, particularly after the Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962.

• On Jan. 30, 1972, in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, 13 unarmed Northern Catholic civil-rights demonstrators are shot dead by British Army paratroopers in an event that becomes known as "Bloody Sunday."

• On Jan. 28, 1996, Jerry Seigel, creator of Superman, dies at age 81. Seigel, a writer, created Superman with artist friend Joe Shuster when they were teenagers. When they finally landed a comic-book deal in 1938, Superman became an instant hit.

Gross Behavior Comes Naturally to Dogs

Q. Why do dogs sniff other dogs' rears, roll in nasty stuff, and pee in several different spots? It's disgusting! —Joe E., Dothan, Ala.

A. It may be disgusting to you and me, but to a dog, it's like surfing the information superhighway (to borrow a badly overused cliché). Dogs use their very acute sense of smell to find out all sorts of things, including where they are and whether they're in danger or not.

When walking your dog, you may see numerous behaviors that are not socially acceptable among humans. For example, your dog will want to sniff every light pole, fire hydrant or bush along the path. It's picking up "markers" left by other dogs — finding out which dogs have been in the neighborhood recently. Your dog may leave a mark of its own by lifting its leg and peeing in the same spot. This is a way of establishing territory, or just saying, "Hey, I'm here too."

When dogs meet for the first time — or after not seeing each other for a while — they often circle each other and sniff. This is a ritual that helps dogs establish each other's identity and status without resorting to aggression.

What about rolling in nasty stuff, like garbage? Animal experts theorize that the practice is a way that dogs instinctively disguise their scent. Even more disgusting are dogs that eat animal feces. This is a more common practice than most folks like to admit. And while this also stems from an instinctive trait (wild dogs often supplement their diets this way), owners should discourage their pets from doing so because of the risk of parasites.

So there you have it — just a few of the disgusting things your dog is prone to do. And I'm sure that, as the years pass, your dog will continue to amaze you with the smelly, unpalatable, gross things it gets into. Just consider it one of the many joys of pet ownership.

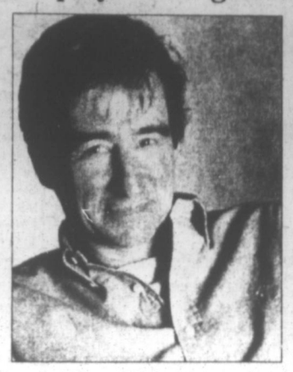
'Law & Order' character plays name game

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it



Sam Waterston

Q: On "Law & Order," Sam Waterston plays the character Jack McCoy, but on his desk, the name plate says "John J. McCoy." So why do they call him "Jack" on the show? –T. Beebe, Ypsilanti, Mich.

A: It's a nickname, and not an uncommon one for people whose given first name is John. Many people who knew President John F. Kennedy called him "Jack"; in fact, that was the title of a CBS documentary made about him several years ago.

Q: In the episode of "The West Wing" in which Special Agent Donovan (Mark Harmon) is killed, what is the name of the song at the end, and who sings it? It is a very haunting melody. –Jim Barnes, Mount Kisco, N.Y.

A: It's Jeff Buckley's version of the Leonard Cohen song "Hallelujah," and NBC's White House drama isn't the only TV series to have used it. It also has turned up in episodes of Fox's "The O.C.," CBS' "Without a Trace" and NBC's "LAX."

Q: Help! My friends don't believe this movie exists. It's one of my favorite Andy Griffith movies, "Angel in My Pocket," co-starring Lee Meriwether and made in 1969. Is there a chance it will be shown again? –Gary Speed, Odessa, Texas.

A: That charming comedy about a reassigned minister (Griffith) and his new congregation definitely exists. While it's true it hasn't appeared on television in some time, there's always the chance a cable channel such as AMC will run it again. AMC has the rights to many movies of that period made by Universal, the studio behind this one. Keep your hopes up.

Q: What happened to Sabrina Lloyd after "Sliders"? –Anonymous, via e-mail.

A: The actress made another well-received series, the Aaron Sorkin-created "Sports Night," which ran for two seasons on ABC. It also starred Peter Krause ("Six Feet Under") and Felicity Huffman ("Desperate Housewives"). Lloyd later had a multiple-episode stint on "Ed" as the title character's love interest, and she happens to return this week to full-time series work. She stars with Rob Morrow ("Northern Exposure") in the CBS crime drama "NUMB3RS," which premieres Sunday and settles into its regular slot Friday.

Q: What ever happened to Rod Roddy, the jolly man with the flashy jackets who was Bob Barker's announcer on "The Price Is Right" for so long? –Donna Peltzer, Longview, Wash.

A: Sadly, the cheerfully flamboyant Roddy – who also was the announcer for the satirical ABC sitcom "Soap" – died of cancer on Oct. 27, 2003, in Los Angeles.

MUSEUM DONATION — Spinning Wheel Antiques, Dream Weavers Antiques and Collectibles, and Chicken Coop Antiques, Grantville, recently presented a $500 donation to the new Grantsville Community Museum. Elizabeth Brant, owner of Spinning Wheel Antiques, and Debbie Klotz, owner of Dream Weavers Antiques, donated an antique spinning wheel for raffle during their recent 15th anniversary celebration. The raffle winner was Bonnie Fetzer, LaVale. Alice Faith-Trauger, museum curator, expressed her appreciation to the antique store owners for their generosity. "Their donation will go a long way in the restoration and renovation of the former library, where the museum will be located on Grantsville's Main Street," she said. Several volunteers are currently renovating this building, and artifacts and donations are currently being accepted. For more information on the museum and its progress, persons may call Faith-Trauger at 301-687-0333. Pictured above, from left, are Faith-Trauger, Brant, and Klotz. Not present for the photo was Susan Brenneman, owner of Chicken Coop Antiques.

"ALL ABOARD the Route 40 Reading Express" was the name of a school-wide reading activity completed by students at Rt. 40 Elementary School. The theme was based on the movie The Polar Express, and the goal was for each classroom to read enough books by the end of the activity to "reach the North Pole." Since the North Pole is approximately 3,300 miles from the school, each book was equal to five miles. The entire school read a total of 2,347 books, which was equal to 11,735 miles. Guest readers helped with the event, and Santa also visited the school to congratulate the students. The students were also treated to a movie night at Garrett 8 Cinemas, where they saw The Polar Express. Pictured above is guest reader Mrs. Claus (Tina McKenzie) reading to her son Bradley and the rest of the first grade class. Pictured below is Samantha Phillips with Santa.

GNEGYS WIN LITERACY ACTIVITY PRIZE – Joni Gnegy, a kindergarten student at Yough Glades Elementary School, and her mom Stacy were recently named the grand prize winners in the Overlook Judy Center's November Family Literacy Month Activity. The event, in celebration of National Family Literacy Month, provided daily activities to help parents build their children's literacy skills. The Gnegy family received a $25 gift certificate from the Book Mark'et in Oakland for their efforts. The following classroom winners each received a book: Samantha Wilt, Early Head Start; Bradley and Jacob Wilt, Head Start; Gina Roberts, Yough Glades prekindergarten; Kristopher Tusing, Dennett Road prekindergarten; Dan Friend, St. Mark's; and Joni Gnegy, Yough Glades kindergarten. All participants received a book marker. "The Overlook Judy Center has plans to sponsor more fun educational activities for families," said a center spokesperson. The center is part of a statewide effort to promote school readiness and is operated by the Garrett County Community Action Committee in partnership with the Garrett County Board of Education.

Nazarene Church Sets Program On Sanctity Of Life

The Oakland Church of the Nazarene will host a presentation by Mtn. Top Crisis Pregnancy Center director Nellie Ashby beginning at 6 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 23. Ashby will be speaking on the topic of the "sanctity of life," according to a church spokesperson. Jill Holler, the Crisis Pregnancy Center's assistant director, will sing.

The Oakland Church of the Nazarene is located at 203 S. 8th Street. Persons may call 301-334-4113 for further information.

Buckwheat Cake Supper Slated At DC Fire Hall

An "all-you-can-eat" buckwheat cake/pancake supper will be held Saturday, Jan. 29, from 4 until 7 p.m. in the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company hall.

The meal will include sausage, applesauce, and drink. The cost is $5 for adults, $3 for children 3 years and older, and free for children under 3.

Proceeds benefit the American Cancer Society Relay for Life. For more information, persons may call Debbie Workman at 301-746-8717.

Under a power of sale contained in a Deed of Trust from Shirley J. Harvey, dated August 13, 1998 and recorded in Liber 749, folio 171 among the Land Records of Garrett Co., MD, default having occurred thereunder, the Sub. Trustees will sell at public auction at the Circuit Court for Garrett Co., at the Court House Door, Oakland, on

February 9, 2005 AT 1:00 PM

ALL THAT fee-simple LOT OF GROUND and the improvements thereon situated in Garrett Co., MD and more fully described in the aforesaid Deed of Trust.

The property, which is improved by a dwelling, will be sold in an "as is" condition and subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $4,000 by cash or certified check. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett Co. Time is of the essence as to the purchaser. If the purchaser defaults, the deposit shall be forfeited and the property shall be resold at the purchaser's risk and expense. In the event of a resale, the defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to receive any benefit from the resale, including, but not limited to, additional proceeds or surplus which may arise therefrom. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received by the Substitute Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. In the event that the Secured Party executes a forbearance agreement with the borrower(s) described in the above-mentioned Deed of Trust, or allows the borrower(s) to reinstate or payoff the subject loan, prior to the sale, with or without the Substitute Trustee's prior knowledge, this Contract shall be null and void and of no effect, and the Purchaser's sole remedy shall be the return of the deposit without interest. Purchaser shall pay for documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees and/or homeowner association dues, all public charges/assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, shall be adjusted to the date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The Purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $500 of outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to the date of sale. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey insurable title, the purchaser's sole remedy shall be limited to a refund of the deposit without interest. In the event the sale is not ratified for any reason, the Purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit without interest. Purchaser agrees to pay $275.00 at settlement, to the Seller's attorney, for review of the settlement documents. (Matter #99144)

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE TO PUBLIC
OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS
TOWN OF OAKLAND

The purpose of this Notice is to identify two separate but related actions to be taken by the Town of Oakland, Maryland.

On or about February 5, 2005, the Town of Oakland will request that the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development release of funds under the Maryland Community Development Block Grant Program be used for the following project:

Project Title: Glades Park Community Center

Purpose of Project: To construct a Community Center, complete with restrooms and a kitchen

Location: Glades Town Park, West Liberty Street, Oakland, Maryland

Finding of No Significant Impact

Notice is hereby given that the above named municipality has prepared an Environmental Review Record on the project described in this Notice and has determined that said projects will have no significant effect on the quality of the human environment. No further environmental review of said projects is proposed prior to requesting Release of Funds.

The Finding of No Significant Impact is based on the following:

The project was previously submitted to appropriate State Agencies, was reviewed and subsequently approved in March and April of 1995. There were no significant findings at that time. The Community Building was included in the original plan, but could not be completed at the time, because of a lack of funds. The current grant funds for this project will allow the completion of the Community Building.

The Environmental Review Record which documents the Environmental Review of the project is available for public examination at Oakland City Hall, 15 South Third Street, Oakland, Maryland, during normal business hours.

Public Comments on Finding

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments respecting the environmental impacts of the described project to the offices of Oakland City Hall and to the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development. All such comments must be received no later than February 5, 2005. All comments will be considered and the Town of Oakland will not request the release of funds nor take any action on the project prior to this date.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

The Town of Oakland will undertake the project described above with the Maryland Community Development Block Grant Funds. This Notice also certifies that Asa M. McCain, serving in the official capacity of Mayor of Oakland, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews decision-making and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the Town of Oakland may use the Maryland Community Development Block Grant Funds and the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development will have satisfied its responsibilities under that National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

Objections to the release of funds will be accepted by the Department of Housing and Community Development only if on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Certifying Officer; or (b) that the Town of Oakland Environmental Review Record for the project indicated omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the program in the Environmental Review Process; or (c) no opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its Executive Director to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the National Register of Historic Places, or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 35 CDR Part 800.(d) Objections by a Federal Agency. All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments to the Town of Oakland and to the CDBG Environmental Officer, MD Department of Housing and Community Development, 100 Community Place, Crownsville, Maryland 21032-2023. All such comments must be received no later than February 23, 2005.

Funds Available For Private Child Care Training

The Overlook Judy Center is seeking licensed child care providers who are interested in learning how they can benefit from a state grant that can assist their professional development in several ways. Judy Center staff will conduct a round table discussion at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 24, at the Overlook Judy Center in Oakland, and at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 31, at the Grantsville Library. Persons who are interested in attending are asked to call the Judy Center at 301-334-4211.

"We are looking forward to talking with private child care providers to share our excitement about this wonderful opportunity for providers of early child care and education services," said Overlook Judy Center director Barbara Hornyak.

The center is in the process of applying for a Maryland State Department of Education Early Child Care and Education Enhancement Grant. These funds can be used to assist licensed child care providers in obtaining or maintaining national or state standards, and in offering professional development leading to increased competency and credentialing of staff working with children ages birth to 6.

Any licensed child care provider in Garrett County could become a partner in the grant application, be involved in developing the concept for the grant and/or be a recipient of training, technical assistance, and classroom materials needed for accreditation that can be provided with the grant funds.

The Overlook Judy Center is located at 41 Highview Drive, Oakland. The Grantsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library is located at 102 Parkside Drive, Grantsville.

The Overlook Judy Center is operated by Garrett County Community Action in cooperation with the Garrett County Board of Education.

FUNDRAISER PROCEEDS PRESENTED TO COMPTON – Proceeds from a fundraiser were recently presented to Tom Compton, who has non-Hodgkins B-cell lymphoma and is undergoing treatments in Morgantown, W.Va. The fundraiser was sponsored by Garrett County Head Start, where Compton's wife Yvetta is employed. The North Star 4-H Club also helped in raising the funds, and many cash donations were received, according to a fundraiser spokesperson. More than $4,200 was raised, and the Garrett County Chapter of Thrivent #30966 matched the first $3,000, for a total of more than $7,200. Pictured are the Comptons with George Haenftling, far right, presenting the check to Tom. Haenftling is the financial director for the Garrett County Chapter of Thrivent.

United Way Week Slated At Bear Claw Tubing Park

Wisp at Deep Creek Mountain Resort has slated Jan. 24-27 as the fourth annual United Way of Garrett County Week at the Bear Claw Snow Tubing Park. Five dollars from each ticket sold during this week will be donated to the local United Way.

"We are very grateful to Wisp for holding this event every year," said Robin Murray, United Way campaign chairperson. "This is a great way to raise money for the local community and have fun at the same time. With the return of winter on the mountain, we are confident it will be a successful fundraiser."

Tickets are $15 for unlimited tubing from 1 until 9 p.m. Snow tubing can be enjoyed by the entire family, as it requires no skill, but children must be 42 inches tall to participate.

Riders are reminded to dress appropriately. Warm clothing including gloves and winter footwear is advised. Loose clothing, such as scarves, and ski and other hard-shell boots are not permitted.

For more information, persons may call 301-387-4911 or visit online at skiwisp.com.

Formed in April 200, United Way of Garrett County is fully supported by contributions from individuals and businesses in the community. For more information, persons may call 301-359-9697 or visit garrettunitedway.org.

Wildland Fire-Fighting Classes Slated By DNR

The Maryland DNR Forest Service will offer the four-day National Wildfire Coordinating Group certified training courses on the Tuesdays and Thursdays of Feb. 11-12 and Feb. 25-26 at Fort Frederick State Park in Washington County. The sessions are slated for 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day, and students must attend all four days to successfully complete the training.

The courses are Wildland Firefighter (S-130), Introduction to Wildland Fire Behavior (S-190), and Introduction to the Incident Command System (I-100). Successful completion of the courses qualifies firefighters for certification through the Maryland Fire Service Personnel Qualification Board as a Wildland Firefighter I.

These basic wildland fire courses are also prerequisites for firefighters to participate on Maryland's wildland fire crew. A prospective fire crew member must also be a member in good standing with a volunteer or career department, be at least 13 years old, and pass the "pack test," a physical endurance test.

Wildland fire crew members must also attend the simulated fire camp training session set for Friday to Sunday, May 20-22, at the Broad Creek Scout camp in Harford County. Red cards will be issued after successful completion of all of the above requirements.

Preregistration is required by Friday, Feb. 4. To preregister, persons may contact regional fire manager Ric Lillard by telephone at 301-478-2976, or via e-mail at rlillard@dnr.state.md.us. Prospective students are asked to provide their name, daytime phone number, and fire department affiliation.

FOP DONATES TO CRELLIN PROJECT – Fraternal Order of Police Lodge #99 recently donated $2,000 to help fund a new playground at Crellin Elementary School. Designed by Deep Creek Lake Design Studio and Leathers & Associates of Ithaca, N.Y, the playground will reflect the coal mining and timber industries which represent the history and heritage of the town of Crellin. The playground is the first step in a community-based reclamation project that also included the reclamation of a former coal tipple and coal stockpiling site located on five acres adjacent to the school which will be transformed into an outdoor science classroom and a park and recreation area. Pictured in the front row from the left are Crellin Elementary students Madalyn Walsh and George Zimmerman, and standing in the back row is Crellin School parent Dee Welsh as she accepts the donation check from FOP Lodge #99 chaplain Capt. Larry Gnegy of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

PUFFS OF SMOKE rise and firefighters' safety reflective tape glistens in the early morning sun Tuesday after a blaze of as-yet unknown origin gutted the Sisler Lumber Company mill in Mtn. Lake Park. The loss has been estimated to be $3 million. The 2:30 a.m. alarm ultimately brought to the scene approximately 70 volunteers from a dozen local fire departments, who battled the fire for over five hours. There were no injuries reported. The owners of Sisler Lumber, which employs about 100 people, said yesterday that they did not know yet if they will rebuild on the same site or move the business somewhere outside the county. They said that the results of a meeting today with Garrett County Economic Development personnel will help them make that determination. See story for details. Photo by John McEwen.

Ehrlich Includes $8.5M In Budget For GC Projects

Gov. Robert Ehrlich released his new capital budget yesterday afternoon (Jan. 26) in Annapolis. Included in the financial plan is nearly $8.5 million for Garrett County projects, announced Garrett County commissioner Fred Holliday, who attended the governor's budget presentation.

Also included in the budget for the new fiscal year is more than $54 million for capital projects in Allegany County.

"Garrett and Allegany counties really hit a home run today," said House Minority Leader George Edwards following the governor's presentation.

The funding for Garrett County projects includes $2 million for the Adventure Sports Center in McHenry, $1.75 million for the Mountain Lake Park water system, and $845,000 for the Garrett College Athletic and Community Recreation Center.

The other local projects slated for funding are $768,000 for Deep Creek Lake State Park water and wastewater infrastructure improvements, $705,000 for the Bloomington water system, $400,000 for the Crellin water system, $320,000 for the Oakland Memorial Drive water extension, $300,000 for the Oakland Memorial Drive sewer extension (supplemental assistance), $531,000 for Southern High School, $502,000 for Northern High School, and $367,000 for Southern Middle School.

Prior to the governor's budget presentation, Holliday attended a Maryland Association of Counties (MACo) meeting in Annapolis. He and the other members meet each Wednesday during the Maryland General Assembly session to keep abreast of legislative issues and to lobby for bills important to their counties.

Holliday said he finds it very worth while to travel to Annapolis to find out about issues such as the governor's budget allocation for Garrett County.

A LIFESAVING AWARD was recently presented to Maryland State Police trooper Troy Wagoner by Woodmen of the World Lodge 41, Grantsville. Tfc. Wagoner saved the life of truck driver David Taylor last Oct. 21 when he pulled him from a burning tanker rig after it crashed on westbound Interstate 68 near Finzel. Tfc. Wagoner is a member of the MSP detachment based at the McHenry barrack. Pictured with Wagoner is Janice Pope of Lodge 41.

Local Foundation Donates $35,000 To Crellin Project

The Carl DelSignore Charitable Foundation has made a $35,000 donation to the Crellin Elementary School project, Gary Yoder, project coordinator, announced this week during a meeting with the Garrett County commissioners. Numerous other individuals and organizations have also contributed time and money to the endeavor.

Donald Cussins, of the foundation, recently presented the check to the school, where about 108 students attend. The foundation's other members are G. Douglas Reinhard and James L. Crickard.

"This is a huge step for a small town that is doing a lot of work," said Yoder, who is with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

The donation will be used to construct a new playground at an old coal tipple and stockpiling site behind the school. Another area there will serve as an

GC Salary Review Comm. Presents Recommendations

The Garrett County Salary Review Committee presented its recommendations to the Garrett County commissioners this week. In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 91-2 of the Code of Garrett County, the group consists of a representative from seven local organizations each of which periodically review the salaries of elected and appointed county officials.

On the current committee were Dr. Donald Forrester, Advisory Committee on Education; chairperson Brooks Hamilton, Farm Bureau; Denny Glotfelty, Chamber of Commerce; Henrietta Lease, League of Women Voters; Thomas Pratt, Democratic Central Committee; Brenda Butscher, Republican Central Committee; and Mike Phillippi, Volunteer Firemen's Association Inc.

Their recommendations for salary adjustments are as follows:

Flu Vaccination Restrictions Are Lifted In State

Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. announced this week that all influenza vaccination restrictions in Maryland have been lifted. Current surveys show vaccine supplies in Maryland are adequate to now offer preventive doses to those who had deferred to Maryland's high-risk individuals.

"I am truly proud of our residents for working together to ensure the limited vaccine supplies would be available to those citizens at highest risk," said Ehrlich. "Now that our most critical needs have been met, anyone who wishes to receive a flu shot is eligible to do so."

The Garrett County Health Department is now offering the vaccine to any

New Underground Fuel Tanks Face New Regulations

The Maryland Department of Environment announced this week that emergency regulations have been approved to prevent MTBE (methyl tertiary butyl ether) and other petroleum products from reaching groundwater supplies in certain parts of Maryland.

In Garrett County, the new regulations require installation of double-walled pipes on all new regulated motor fuel underground storage systems and built-in sensors to warn of leaks. These measures are designed to provide rigorous safeguards against leaks from new underground fuel storage systems.

The emergency regulations, unanimously ap-

Sisler Lumber Ravaged By $3 Million Blaze Tuesday

A Mtn. Lake Park lumber business that has been in operation for 47 years sustained an estimated $3 million in losses as a result of a fire of undetermined origin early Tuesday.

Personnel and equipment from a dozen volunteer fire departments were called to Sisler Lumber Company, located along state Rt. 135 (1771 Maryland Highway), at 2:30 a.m. after a passerby saw fire coming from the sawmill.

According to Oakland VFD fire chief John Feather, the 200' x 200' wood-frame, metal clad, two-story building was fully engulfed in flames upon the arrival of the first units.

"Flames were shooting at least 50 feet into the air, and the roof area was completely burned off when we got there," Feather said.

Some 70 firefighters battled the blaze for approximately five hours. There were no firefighter injuries reported.

The fire rekindled at about 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, causing firefighters from Oakland to return to the scene for less than an hour. They were called back to the scene last evening

There were no fire alarms or automatic fire sprinklers in the structure, as they are not required by law in this type of building, according to the fire marshal's report.

The fire was discovered by Mike Glotfelty of Oakland, who was delivering the Cumberland Times-News. He said that when he picked up his papers at the BFS store, located across the highway from the Sisler property, at about 2:15 a.m., he did not notice any smoke or fire at that location.

"But when I came back through the area about 10 minutes later, the whole thing was on fire," he said. He used his cell phone to call 911.

Responding to the scene, besides the Oakland VFD, were equipment and volunteers from the following departments/companies: Deer Park, Gorman, Bayard, Terra Alta, Aurora, Kitzmiller, Accident, Bloomington, Tri-Towns, Kingwood, and Mt. Grove.

Also responding was the Southern Rescue Squad, plus personnel from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office, Allegheny Power Company, and the Maryland State Highway Administration.

Investigators, including

Recycling Report Deadline Nearing For Businesses

The Garrett County Solid Waste & Recycling Division, General Services Department, reminds Garrett County businesses that it is recycling report time once again.

"If you are a Garrett County business and [you] recycle but have not received a report, please contact the office immediately," said the division's recycling coordinator, Kimberly Madigan.

The Maryland Recycling Act requires Garrett County to divert at least 15 percent of its waste to recycling programs. All counties must report their recycling tonnages to the Maryland Department of the Environment for review and approval.

In 2003, the state realized a 39.8 percent waste diversion rate composed of a 36.6 percent recycling rate and a 2.8 percent source reduction credit. Garrett County's waste diversion rose from 17.06 percent in 2002 to 19.9 percent in 2003 (the figures each contain a 1 percent source reduction credit), according to Madigan.

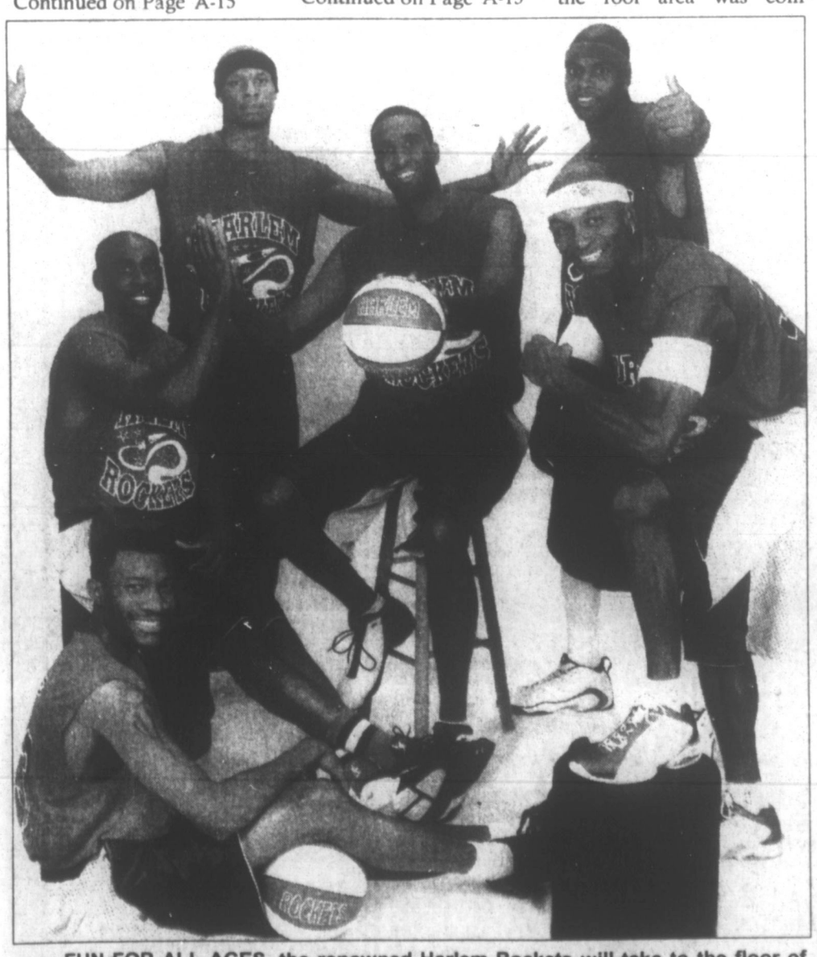
Snowmobile Operator Dies After Hitting Pickup Truck Sunday

An Oakland man was killed after his snowmobile hit the side of a truck Sunday afternoon on Spring Glade Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies. See complete obituary on page A-6.

Jeremy Gilbert Smith, 31, was operating a Polaris snowmobile and failed to stop after he crested a grade on Spring Glade Road. He struck the passenger side of Ford Ranger pickup truck operated by Nikki Erin Brown, 30, Oakland, who was turning into a driveway.

Smith was ejected from the snowmobile and was pronounced dead at the scene, police said. Brown did not sustain any injuries in the 4:30 p.m. accident. Deer Park firefighters assisted.

The accident investigation is continuing, police added.



FUN FOR ALL AGES, the renowned Harlem Rockets will take to the floor of the Southern High School gym twice next month, in a pair of 7 p.m. fundraisers for the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad slated for Thursday, Feb. 10, and Monday, Feb. 14. The contests (and we use that term loosely) with the 911 Outlaws and the Tasmanian Devils, both composed of Garrett County law enforcement officers, firefighters, SHS basketball alumni, and other locals, will feature a unique combination of athleticism and comedy, as the Rockets draw the audience into the event with their gregarious and hilarious personalities. Over 100 fans were turned away at the door to last year's sold-out Rockets' visit, so early ticket purchases are suggested. Advance tickets for the games are $7 each for all ages, and are available at Marvin's Men's Wear and the Get 'N Go convenience store in Oakland, and at Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek Lake. Tickets at the door will be $8 each. Persons may also make advance ticket reservations by calling 301-501-3292.

WATER OF THREE forms, snow, ice, and liquid, combined to help cause this tractor-tanker rig to jackknife Tuesday morning on Sand Flat Road less than a half-mile east of Garrett Highway. Sources indicated that the rig, owned by National Freight of Vineland, N.J., was carrying a load of spring water when it went out of control on the ice-slicked road surface before jackknifing into a snow bank. The driver was not injured, and no other vehicles were involved. The Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department and Maryland State Police were summoned to the scene. Sand Flat Road was closed at the location for an unspecified amount of time. Photo by John McEwen.

HABITAT RECEIVES GIFT FROM M&T BANK M&T Bank has made a two-year donation of $10,000 per year to provide "decent, affordable" housing to qualified home partners of Garrett County Habitat for Humanity. "M&T Bank is committed to the mission of Garrett County Habitat for Humanity," said L. Christine Baronner, vice president, regional CRA officer. She added that she was impressed with the commitment of the Habitat board and staff to provide "safe and warm homes to those in need." Doug Riley, executive director of GCHFH, said the money will be used to partially fund the construction of one of the three homes that Habitat will build in 2005. This home will be called the M&T house. "If any other organization would like to participate in this vital ministry of Garrett County," he said, "please contact the Habitat office at 301-533-0600 or driley@garrettcac.org." Pictured, left to right, are Baronner; Bill Riley, president of the board for GCHFH; Kevin O'Connor, M&T Bank and a GCHFH board member; Doug Riley; and Sandy Winters, M&T Bank.

Southern History Students Launch Tsunami Benefit

World History students at Southern High School have initiated a fund raising campaign to benefit victims of last month's tsunami in southern Asia. The "One for the World" campaign continues tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 28, when students ask every person entering the SHS building to consider donating a dollar to the effort.

The campaign's goal is to raise $1,000 that will be donated to Save the Children, one of the many non-governmental agencies mounting relief efforts in the 11 countries affected by the tsunami that took nearly 300,000 lives.

The World History students are also participating in the school-wide announcements, making signs, and producing a video to help fellow students understand how they can help. The school has also made contact with the Indonesian embassy who has agreed to set up a "sister" school for Southern High School when life there returns to normal.

The SHS Athletic Department has agreed to participate by contributing $1 from each admission to Friday evening's Southern vs. Northern boys basketball game. (See story in the Sports section.)

Railey Mtn. Lake Vacations To Host After Hours Event

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce will hold a Business After Hours at Railey Mtn. Lake Vacations on Tuesday, Feb. 8, from 6 to 8 p.m.

The staff at Railey Mtn. Lake Vacations invites chamber members and guests to visit its new quarters at 5 Vacation Way, Mc-Henry, for socializing and refreshments.

These types of events are promoted by the chamber to encourage area business people to visit different businesses.

The next Business After Hours will be held March 15 at Builders Way, 124 Service Center Dr., Oakland. To make reservations or to ask questions, persons may call Lynne Crehan at 301-387-4386 or e-mail lynne@garrettchamber.com.

GBI Reminds Residents To Be Aware Of Scams

The Garrett Bureau of Investigation reminds area residents to be aware of continuing scams targeting area businesses and the elderly. The latest attempted fraud was reported to GBI and involved a traditional "Nigerian-type" scam, police said.

An Oakland business received a handwritten envelope containing a letter requesting the owner contact a man via e-mail in reference to allowing use of his account to hold $6.5 million from a South African firm. In exchange, the owner would keep 30%, according to police.

Area residents have also been targeted recently with a "Lottery-type" scam from non-existent businesses originating from Canada or England, and involved the target receiving a check for several thousand dollars. The sender requests a wire transfer of funds to cover expenses to receive a large sum of money. The checks sent out are fraudulent, and are usually not discovered until after the victim has wired up to several thousand dollars to cover expenses, police noted.

GBI asks that anyone receiving such letters, telemarketing calls, or e-mails not respond to such requests. For further information, persons may visit the following web sites for tips on dealing with fraud: www.ftc.gov/bcp/conline/pubs/tmarkg/target.htm and www.usdoj.gov/criminal/fraud/telemarketing/doj.htm.

Bulk Of Capital Budget Funds Education, Health, Environment

by Mike Torralba
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Gov. Robert Ehrlich on Wednesday released his five-year spending plan for construction and renovation of state buildings, with a record amount set aside for community colleges.

The capital budget allows for $157 million in the 2006 fiscal year to go to public school construction, a key issue during this General Assembly. The total funding through fiscal 2010 is more than $557 million.

The capital budget allows for $181 million for the state university system in 2006 and $684 million through fiscal 2010. Community colleges will begin receiving the first $47 million of what Ehrlich said is the largest-ever capital improvement program for Maryland community colleges: $240 million through 2010.

"Numerous institutions within the system have been underserved for too many years," Ehrlich said. "We've tried to balance it."

Coppin State University will receive nearly $52 million — $185 million through 2010 — to build the first three new academic buildings there in a quarter century. More than $11 million was set aside for a new dental school at the University of Maryland, Baltimore.

The amount set aside for education in 2006 comes to a total $397 million, or 42 percent of total funds. More than $39 million would go toward new health facilities in 2006. That includes $15 million for new ambulatory health centers operated by the University of Maryland Medical System and $10 million for a pediatric trauma center at Johns Hopkins University.

The governor's budget scraps funding for renovations to the 51-bed Walter P. Carter Center psychiatric hospital in south Baltimore.

The highlight of the budget's environmental projects is $128 million — $1.1 billion by the final year — for wastewater treatment improvements to restore the Chesapeake Bay.

"With regard to the environment, we are somewhat of a 'Johnny One-Note,'" Ehrlich said. "But that 'Johnny One-Note' is the most important initiative we can accomplish in the short term."

More than $76 million will go to land preservation in 2006, for an out-year total of $693 million.

Funding for public safety and correctional services totals nearly $50 million in 2006. More than $36 million goes to expand the North Branch Correctional Institution in Allegany County. About $18 million is earmarked for improving facilities to provide treatment and services for juveniles.

The budget indefinitely defers funding for four jail renovation projects and training centers around Maryland, as well as a new forensic science laboratory for state police in Baltimore County. The governor's budget also calls for $20 million for neighborhood revitalization in Baltimore, Montgomery County, and elsewhere.

Governments typically borrow money in the form of bonds to help pay for expensive projects, such as building construction. For the fiscal year beginning July 1, Maryland will issue $695 million in bonds, nearly all general-obligation bonds. The remainder of the $947 million capital budget will come from special funds, general funds, and federal funds.

Read, Then Recycle.

Garrett College Names Financial Aid Director

Alan Batchelor has been named director of financial aid at Garrett College, where he said he looks forward to helping students with their financial needs, and showing potential students how they can afford a college education.

"Alan Batchelor brings significant experience to the position of financial aid director," said Garrett College president Dr. Steve Herman. "He will be a great resource for the college and the community."

Batchelor started in the field in 1992 as an information specialist for the Federal Student Aid Information Center. He said he learned a great deal about the application process, policies, and procedures that govern the financial aid process under the supervision of Cissy VanSickle of Garrett County.

After graduating from Allegany College of Maryland, Cumberland, in 1995, Batchelor transferred to West Virginia University, where he earned his bachelor of science degree in journalism in 1999. He is currently pursuing a master's degree in higher education administration at WVU.

As part of the Federal Work Study program at WVU, Batchelor requested to work in the university's Financial Aid Office. "I was asked by a WVU staff member where I wanted to work for my Work Study job and I told her I wanted her job," he said. "She moved away from her computer, I sat down and said 'OK, now what do I do?'"

Batchelor said he was able to connect with WVU students from their perspective when, in 2000, he was named the university's financial aid counselor. In that position he counseled students and parents on the financial aid process and developed database structures for processing information online. He also maintained the Financial Aid Office web site, designed online forms for student data collection, assisted the veterans' certifying official with certification of Veterans Administration benefits, was responsible for development of an Office Training Program, and represented WVU at high school and college financial aid presentations.

Batchelor worked at WVU for four years before joining the staff at Garrett College.

Another previous position he held was as a telecommunications information specialist at Biospherics Inc. in Cumberland.

Further information about financial aid at Garrett College is available at www.garrettcollege.edu/admissions/financialaid.

Oakland Man Jailed After Domestic Call

An Oakland man was arrested on an assault charge last night after a reported domestic altercation at an Alder Street residence, according to the Oakland Police Department.

Barclay Henry Dixon, 38, is accused of second-degree assault following the 10:06 p.m. incident, during which a woman claimed that he tried to choke her. Police reported observing marks on the alleged victim's neck consistent with her statement.

Barclay was released from the Garrett County Detention Center this morning after he posted a $1,000 bond set by a District Court commissioner.

MLP Resident Arrested On Drug Charges

A Mtn. Lake Park man was arrested on drug charges stemming from a traffic stop Tuesday near Friendsville, according to Garrett County state's attorney Lisa Thayer Welch, spokesperson for the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force.

Douglas Patton, 42, was arrested and charged with possession of cocaine, possession of drug paraphernalia, driving on a suspended license, and providing a false identity.

A positive alert for drugs was made by a drug canine, and a search of the vehicle resulted in the recovery of suspected crack cocaine and drug paraphernalia.

Task Force investigators were assisted by uniformed personnel from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Driver Injured After Losing Control On Ice

An Oakland woman was injured after she lost control of her vehicle on the icy road last Thursday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Catherine Leppert, 69, was southbound on Oakland Sang Run Road when she lost control, traveled off the roadway, and struck a tree. She was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Also responding to the 10 a.m. incident were Oakland firefighters.

Vehicle Mishap Leads To Drunk Driving Charges

Following a single-vehicle accident early Sunday morning, the driver was charged with drunk driving, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Richard Howard of Swanton was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired, and DUI per se. Police reported that Howard lost control of his vehicle on Foster Road partly because of the snow-covered roadway and blowing snow, and his vehicle became disabled. No injuries were reported.

One Injured As Car Strikes Rig Near DCL Lake

A car veered out of its lane yesterday afternoon on Garrett Highway at Deep Creek Lake and struck the trailer portion of an oncoming tractor-trailer, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police. The driver of the sedan was charged in the mishap after he was transported to the hospital.

The 2:56 p.m. crash occurred in front of the Lakeside Creamery ice cream store, when a southbound 1993 Subaru operated by Rocky Tichinel Jr., 26, Mtn. Lake reportedly entered a curve too fast, crossed over into the northbound lane, and struck the rear tandem of a 2002 Peterbilt rig. Tichinel was transported by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, while the truck driver, Milton Feather, 47, McHenry, escaped injury. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company also responded to the scene.

Tichinel was charged with driving at a speed greater than reasonable for the existing road conditions.

Sisler Lumber

Deputy State Fire Marshals Jamie Rodeheaver and Jason Mowbray, have been combing through the ashes since Tuesday in an attempt to identify the cause of the fire, which has not yet been determined.

Sisler Lumber Inc. has been a family-owned business since its founding in 1958 and has been operating at the Mtn. Lake Park location since 1972. It currently employs 55 people, but also has nearly 50 more contractual employees, according to Eddie Sisler, one of the owners.

Sisler said yesterday that the company will attempt to keep the majority of its employees on the payroll. He will be meeting with the Garrett County Department of Economic Development today to see if there are any incentives to help the company remain in the county.

"We would like to stay in Garrett County," he said. "It's our home," adding that there is a 75% chance that he will rebuild on the same property in Mtn. Lake Park.

He said the results of today's meeting will be a major factor in deciding whether or not the company will remain in the county.

Two Peas in a Pod...

Today is the 60th anniversary of the liberation of the Nazis' Auschwitz concentration camp, an event that occurred in 1945 only because of the literal blood, sweat, and tears of the United States military. Granted, the troops of other nations were involved as well, but there is no way such a liberation could have occurred without the U.S.

There will undoubtedly be memorial ceremonies conducted in various locations today, both in Europe and the United States, and one of the themes of those observances will most likely be that the horrors of Holocaust are never, ever forgotten. Another will be that such a brutal slaughter of innocent human beings is never allowed to happen again.

Hitler proved himself to be a genocidal maniac, whose regard for human life was non-existent except for those like him whom he considered "elite." The price to rid the world of him was extremely high, but thank God he was finally stopped.

There will be an election held next Monday in Iraq, an event which, it is hoped, will ultimately have significant, positive, historical impact on that nation and in the Middle East. This writer predicts that the voter turnout will be high, despite the threats and acts of terrorism by a relatively tiny minority of insurgents that have been a daily occurrence there for months. In fact, it will not be surprising if the voter turnout there is greater than the average turnout for national elections in the United States, as enthusiastic Iraqi citizens can now see freedom and democracy within their grasp.

There would, of course, be no election if Saddam Hussein and his henchmen were still in power in Iraq.

Hussein proved himself to be a genocidal maniac, whose regard for human life was non-existent except for those like him whom he considered elite. The price to rid the world of him is becoming extremely high, but thank God he was finally stopped.

To the Editor:

Thanks for making Adam Sincell your movie reviewer. He is the best to date. He has a smooth way with words that is clear, easily understood, and accurate. His evaluations are right on the mark.

Keep up the excellent work, Adam.

PBS aired Christmas special after Christmas special. They even used the C-word "Christmas" over and over. One special featured the Mormon Tabernacle Choir. PBS receives 15% of its funds from the federal government.

The ACLU sued school superintendent after school superintendent. Christmas pageant after Christmas decoration after Christmas story was removed from public schools, who receive 8% of their funding from the federal government. Could someone please tell me how this is fair?

To the Editor:

In last week's article about my uncle, David G. Livengood, my father's name was left out. He is James N. Livengood, brother of David.

Even though I never had a chance to meet my uncle, I hear all good things about him. I wish I would have had an opportunity to know him myself. I know that this is a very hard time of year for my family. My dad always gets depressed right now, because he and David were very close.

I also thought that the article was very upsetting. It had too much detail in it about my uncle's death. But it made me realize how tragic this incident was.

David was shot to death by Roberto Rezek and Richard Tichnell. They are still sitting in jail, but Rezek is up for a parole hearing in April. I really hope they do not get out. They killed before; they can kill again.

Sincerely,
Jessica Livengood

To the Editor:

The article by David Foster (which was a good article) about the murder of Deputy David Livengood brought back a lot of memories, both good and sad. Dave and I graduated from high school together, worked together, and played basketball together. I considered Dave a good friend.

You know how everybody remembers where they were at and what they were doing on 9/11/01. I also remember where I was at and what I was doing when I heard Dave was murdered.

It makes me sick to think that some day Rezek or Tichnell will walk out free men. The parole board has received a letter from me every time either one of them have come up for parole and I will do the same in the future.

I have a lot of respect for any man or woman who puts their life on the line every day to keep us safe.

To the Editor:

After reading the article about Officer David Livengood and Sarge I just need to respond. The article was wonderful. I knew David and he was truly an officer and gentleman, and an animal lover.

And, yes, we do need to love and respect all our law enforcement officers. Without them our safety would truly be in jeopardy.

During this terrible weather they are faithfully on the roads checking on people and road conditions. Without these officers the Humane Society would not be able to do all we are doing.

During this blizzard they have checked on animals that we could not. They know every road and street in the county, something our members do not know. Nancy Helbig and I have been lost so many times in this county, you would think we hadn't lived here all our lives.

Again, for me and my family and members of the Humane Society, we are truly grateful for all our officers who do their very best to protect each and every one of us and the animals in Garrett County.

To the Editor:

For several years it has been my privilege to work with the Garrett-Preston Rural Development Coalition. Among the board members and advisors, I am one of the few with no farming experience – except as a consumer. It is in that role that I commend all those who work endlessly to keep the family farm going, and who cultivate resources, including animals for food and for fiber to make fine wools.

Farming is our heritage. It will hopefully also be our future. We read of imported, tainted foods causing widespread illness or hear of the possible threats of terrorists messing with our food supplies. How fortunate we are to live surrounded by rain-fed farmland which produces nutrient-rich foods. We are able to buy the freshest possible products directly from folks we know.

Which of us would want to lose the views of expansive pastures and farm fields?

Those of you who work the land and prepare its products for our use – vintners, millers, spinners, beekeepers, dairy farmers, and all who coax vegetables from the soil – I salute you for your contibutions to our culture and to our quality of life. May you prosper.

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, I would like to thank The Republican, the staff, and particularly David Foster for the well-written article that accurately depicted events leading up to the murder of Deputy David G. Livengood over 26 years ago.

One of the perpetrators of this horrendous crime, Robert Rezek, has requested a parole hearing in April 2005 to determine his eligibility for release. A representative from this agency will attend that hearing. For those of you who wish to express your desire to the Parole Commission that Rezek should remain incarcerated, you may respond by e-mail to rsmith@dpscs.state.ms.us; by fax to 410-764-4355; or by mail to Maryland Parole Comission, ATTN: Victim Services, 6776 Reistertown Rd., Suite 307, Baltimore, MD 21215-2343. Begin all correspondence with the salutation "Dear Commissioners," and reference all correspondence "Robert Rezek, DOC #152544." Letter writers are asked to address how they and/or their community has been affected by the crime for which Mr. Rezek was convicted.

A petition opposing his release has been posted in the lobby at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office for those who wish to sign. Thank you.

To the Editor:

Do dogs have angels? My dog Zach does, and her name is Evie Fike. On Christmas Day Art Naylor, (we call Art the "Pied Piper of Dogs") picked up Zach along with his dog and his daughter Janna's dog for their afternoon walk, this time at Broad Ford school. Art walks the dogs four or five times a week, anywhere from two to four miles in rain, shine, freezin' cold, and snow.

Art returned about 3:30 p.m. saying, "I don't have your dog." We (Art, his wife Betty, Janna, and I) launched our search surrounding the Broad Ford school area. As time passed our hopes of finding Zach grew dim. I cannot adequately put into words what I felt when I returned home and retrieved a telephone message from Evie that she found Zach and that he was okay.

It was more than a find on Evie's part! She was jogging in Broadford Park when she saw Zach running on the ice. She figured he might fall through as he was headed toward open water where the waterfowl congregate. He fell through the ice as he neared shore. Unable to reach him, Evie threw large stones, breaking the ice enough for Zach to get closer. She then hooked a large stick through his coat and was able to pull him to shore.

Evie immediately placed Zach near her body, called her daughter to warm towels in the dryer, and jogged a mile back to her house. Zach shivered uncontrollably for 30 minutes, then his body went limp. Evie blew sharply into his face, which brought him back. She telephoned her veterinarian for further instructions. After getting Zach home the four of us sat down for Christmas dinner, bowed our heads, and gave thanks for Evie Fike and her rescue of Zach.

Thank you again, Evie, for giving us a very Merry Christmas.

Sincerely,
Shirley Knowles

To the Editor:

It is part of the purpose of OTT to produce a variety of plays which will open the minds and inspire the imaginations and understanding of its audiences. This week we will be holding auditions for The Twilight of the Golds – the most controversial play we have ever attempted to produce. The language of the play is not scurrilous; it is the subject matter that potentially could raise the hackles of our audiences. The Twilight of the Golds concerns the subjects of homosexuality as well as abortion. The play does not attempt to condemn or condone either of these subjects, but allows the audience to witness these behaviors in a setting where the members of the audience may make their own conclusions. If you find these subjects offensive, don't audition and don't attend the play. We will certainly be offering other productions which will tickle your funny bone or stir you to think and feel.

Our Town Theatre prides itself in being up-front with our community about the productions that we are planning. Generally, our efforts work quite well, with only an occasional "I was shocked!" or "I won't ever attend another play there!" or "Why don't you just do fun stuff?" (This latter comment tends to bother me the most. If you eat nothing but Twinkies for years and years, your body will probably deteriorate. If you only watch entertaining fluff for extended periods of time, your mind, soul – whatever you call your psyche – will more than likely suffer.)

The Twilight of the Golds is one of the most beautifully written plays I have ever experienced. If we can "make cast," it will be a joy to produce it and a challenge to perform it for local audiences. If you have any questions concerning this production, please don't hesitate to call or write to me at Our Town Theatre. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Jane B. Avery

THE HAT

Khaki twill is an important fabric for me. My daily pants are made of it. I have a travel jacket which I also wear nearly every day here in Paris. I had a hat made of it. The hat, I am sorry to say, has gone to hat hereafter, or perhaps now adorns some other head in the Parisian crowd.

It was the Lord's Day, and I was deep in meditation. It was a good activity and on the right day, but not in the right place. I was riding the Metro. Suddenly, I arrived at my destination-external events always seem sudden to those deep in interior space.

I leapt up from the seat, dashed out the door, just before it closed. As the train started to pull away, I realized that my hat had not gotten out of the train with me.

I watched wistfully, powerlessly as the train disappeared from the station into the bowels of the earth. The common belief is that such trains reappear later at other stations and even that they eventually return. But how does one know? Perhaps that train even now is still burrowing, ever deeper.

Whatever may have been the case with the train, my hat did not re-emerge from the earth's entrails. My stop was the next to last on that line. I went to the other side of the track, and waited for the train to come back. I investigated cars one by one, changing at each new station. Surely my behavior provided further evidence in support of the common French belief that all foreigners, and especially all Americans, are crazy.

That pursuit having proved fruitless, I went to the ticket office, and asked about Lost-and-Found. I was not the first to need this information. They have a printed tear-off pad ready for the forlorn. The instructions said that one must wait four days before making an inquiry. for good measure, I waited eight.

That Monday afternoon was sunny, a happy occurrence during the Parisian winter. When I entered the Lost-and-Found office, there was the ubiquitous bureaucratic form to complete. It was mercifully short, perhaps out of the French respect for sadness which, one could reasonably expect, was the primary emotion of many visitors to that place.

The wait was also brief; the outcome as sad as expected. "Am I without hope?" I asked. "I'm afraid so," this employee of the French police replied. As I left, the receptionist looked at me questioningly. I shook my head. Her face showed that she shared my grief. A great French strength is their ability to commiserate in resonating emotions.

I emerged into the sunshine, and took a walk in the park adjacent to the police station, strategically situated to comfort the disappointed.

That hat had been to Europe with me before and to Israel as well. I had bought it in 1986 in preparation for a trip to Germany and Italy. Although in many respects it was like lots of other hats, it was an original as well. L.L. Bean surely sold many of them, but I never saw another.

During the hat's European premiere, young men in Florence offered to buy it from me. Wherever I went from that time until the train bore off my hat, like Charon bearing a soul across the Styx, people admired my hat. Just the Friday before the loss, a French teenage girl ejaculated loudly enough for all the crowd on that corner of Montparnasse to hear, "I adore his hat."

She got a smile from me and, who knows, maybe from my hat as well. While her expression was more vivid than the usual admiration, friends accompanying me often observed how people on the street stopped to behold that simple, excellent hat.

In fact, I had planned to retire my hat. It had been my intention to send it to my son, now a college freshman, as a keepsake. He loved to hate that hat. He loves to hate all my hats really, but he loved to hate that hat most of all. Perhaps he did not realize that it was admiration which strangers felt for my hat. Perhaps for a teenager, it would not have mattered: strangers staring at your parents is always a bad thing.

So I wrote an e-message to him, reporting, as I said, "some small, sad news." My son is sage beyond his years, and I have long since learned to listen carefully to him. He replied: "I am terribly sorry and overjoyed at the same time to hear the news of your hat. You're right, I did love to hate that hat, but I know it meant a lot to you. Maybe it was just time. Material possessions can't last forever."

"Chapeau" is the French word for "hat." It has a charming colloquial use as a synonym for "Bravo!" when someone has done well. "Chapeau!" captures the joyful storm of hats at commencements upon the pronouncement of diplomas or degrees conferred.

There is also the old saying in English, "I take my hat off to you," as a word of appreciative congratulation. It survives from a more chivalrous age when gentlemen really did take off their hats in salutation and salute.

I cannot send the hat to my son. I can and do send him a word which shall last, in all that it betokens, an eternity longer than ever the hat could have: "Chapeau!"

outdoor classroom to educate and involve the students in environmental issues.

A portion of the project involves nearly six acres of county-owned land. The commissioners, however, transferred the deed to that property, without cost, to the Garrett County Board of Education this week.

Gary Mullich, director of General Services, noted that the county had "inherited" the property in 1992 and had tried to sell it, but was unsuccessful because of the condition of the land.

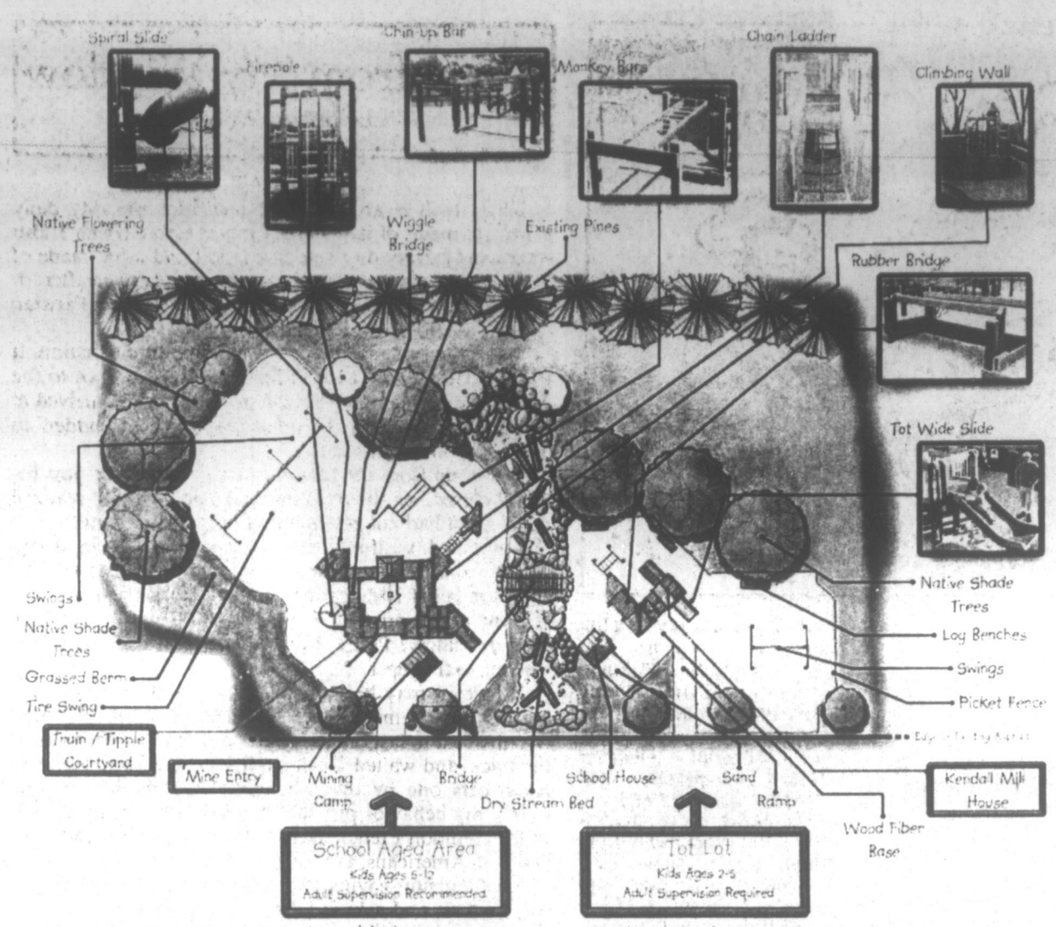
Dr. Dana McCauley, principal of Crellin Elementary, was the "brain child" behind the project. She had the idea of cleaning up the coal site for some time and eventually approached Yoder about a possible project.

"We had all of these ideas, and Gary made them work" McCauley said.

The site had served as a staging area where high-grade coal was brought to a cleaning plant in Crellin. Unwanted materials, such as filings, and lower grade coal were separated out and dumped at the tipple. Later, the unwanted coal was simply spread around and about 8 inches of low-quality soil was put on top of it.

Reclamation work at the site will be conducted by the Maryland Department of the Environment, Bureau of Mines. Last September, the federal Office of Surface Mining awarded the project $100,000.

"None of this would be possible without the Bureau of Mines," said McCauley.



THE CRELLIN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL PROJECT moved one step closer to becoming a reality this week, thanks to a $35,000 donation from the Carl DelSignore Charitable Foundation. The money will be used to build the playground portion of the project, pictured above. Designed by Leathers & Associates of Ithaca, N.Y., and Deep Creek Lake Design Studio, the playground will reflect Crellin's coal, timber, and railroad heritage. See story for details. Pictured below in the second row, left to right, at the check presentation are Mikal Zimmerman, PTO treasurer; Donald Cussins representing the Carl DelSignore Foundation; Dr. Dana McCauley, principal of Crellin Elementary; and Gary Yoder, project coordinator. Standing behind a design rendering of the playground is Dee Welsh, chair of the playground committee. Surrounding them are the school's third and fourth grade classes. The bureau's Joe Mills stressed that tax dollars were not being used for the project, "The funds are generated by the active coal industry," he said.

They come from the $.17 per ton levy that coal companies must pay the federal government. The government then returns that money to the states.

Mills also stressed that strict guidelines had to be followed with the funds and that they would only be used for the reclamation portion of the project. They cannot be used for playgrounds or playground equipment, he said.

The reclamation will include removing and treating the site's surface water, removing the coal, and hauling in top soil so that grass can grow. Some unique features may also be incorporated into the site, such as a sled-riding hill, seating for an outdoor amphitheater, a bat habitat, and vernal pond for the students to study frogs and tadpoles, Mills noted.

The themed playground will also contain "unique" features that reflect Crellin's coal, timber, and railroad heritage. In addition to the usual swings, slides, and monkey bars, the play-

To the Editor:

Are Blacks human beings? Believe it or not, there was a time when the Supreme Court's answer to this question was no, not if they were slaves. It was 1856. Dred Scott, a black slave, had been taken north of the Mason-Dixon line into Illinois and Wisconsin where slavery was prohibited by the Missouri Compromise. Scott sued for his freedom and lost. The Supreme Court ruled that the compromise was unconstitutional. Congress, they said, had no authority to limit slavery in that way.

In the court's mind, the choice to own slaves was an individual decision, a private matter for each citizen to struggle with apart from interference by the state. If a person, in an act of conscience, chose not to keep slaves, that was his own decision, but he could not force that choice on others. Every person had a private right to choose...

Today the dream of Black America has come true, by and large. Slavery is a thing of the past and Blacks are well into the mainstream of American life. In a climate of civil rights and civil liberties, the question "Are Blacks human beings?" sounds so bizarre it's almost comical. Who could ask such a thing today?

The question, however, is still being asked, this time with a twist: Is an unborn baby a human being? Characteristically, our answer as a nation has been the same as that of Dred Scott's Supreme Court. Today the pro-abortionists claim, "The child is the property of the woman who carries it. A woman has a right to do whatever she wants with her own property. Abortion is a private, individual decision that cannot be denied by others. Every person has a right to choose."

That's wrong. Slavery/racism is and was wrong. Abortion is wrong!

To the Editor:

Thank you very much for your very insightful and excellent editorial about Darwin ("No Dinosaurs," January 20) and the surrounding controversy about how biology should be taught. It is truly regrettable that such intense polarization has developed over what should be a minor issue.

Any scientific explanation at all can properly be called a theory; but calling Darwinian evolution "only" a theory is a distortion of the state of biological science. No one would call Quantum Mechanics "only" a theory; it is the very best theory we have in physics. Similarly, Darwin's theory is comprehensive, and is the very best explanation we have of the many interrelationships among biological species. Any alternative theory of the future, whether in physics, chemistry or biology, has to be at least as inclusive, and explain all the scientific facts that the previous theory explained. There are certainly some holes in Darwinian evolution, but nothing serious enough to suggest that it will ever be completely overthrown. Darwin is as secure in biology as Quantum Mechanics is in physics.

The effort by non-scientists to turn the matter into an issue of religion can only be harmful to science education. Anti-religious groups such as the ACLU have denounced the "Intelligent Design Theory" as a violation of separation of church and state; and they falsely associate Intelligent Design Theory with six-day creationism and biblical literalism. This attempt at "guilt by association" stems from their fear that the entire universe may in fact have been intelligently designed, and they're rather not go there. Meanwhile, as your editorial points out, some religious people are uncomfortable with the idea that God utilizes evolution as His means of creation. In this entire controversy, biology students are caught in the crossfire: Their education in science is diminished when they are told that science is opposed to religion and they must choose between artificially constructed "opposing camps."

Students are sharp enough to realize that there are limits to science: First, there is always room for future developments and better explanations; and second, there are areas of human experience and knowledge where science has nothing to say. The proper way to teach any science is to teach the best theory we have.

To the Editor:

I recently read with great interest an article in the Cumberland Times-News concerning the Bay Restoration Fee, i.e., the so-called flush tax. Apparently the U.S. Navy, and probably all branches of the federal government, are challenging the flush tax. The federal government is not subject to any form of taxation by any state or political subdivision.

The Maryland Department of Environment has countered that the flush tax" is not a tax, but is a fee. According to an MDE official, "If you are contributing nitrogen and phosphorus to the Chesapeake Bay, and you're treating, you are expected to be held accountable for this fee...." Guess what! If you live on the western side of the Eastern Continental Divide, the only thing you are contributing to the Chesapeake Bay is the cleanup fee.

The state can't have it both ways. It is either a tax or a fee. I would like to see the Garrett County commissioners, the Deep Creek Property Owners Association, or some other group challenge the application of the so-called flush tax to those of us living in the Mississippi River Basin on the western side of the Eastern Continental Divide. I don't think the state of Maryland wants to be in court arguing both sides of the issue. Since we are small potatoes compared to the revenue expected from federal government agencies – an estimated $65 million – they might even exempt us from the tax, fee, whatever.

I have no problem with cleaning up the Chesapeake Bay. I do have a problem with the residents of Garrett County being called on to finance the project when the MDE doesn't plan to spend any of the funds in Garrett County. I recommend that county residents pay the Bay Restoration Fee under protest to protect any refund rights you may have.

Sincerely,
John K. Kinzer

- AMAZING GRACE -

It's the only way to describe the incredible transformation that took place in the life of John Newton. Newton was born in London in 1725. His mother died when he was seven. His father sent him to sea at age eleven. Working first as a cabin boy and then a deckhand, John was exposed to a life of drunkenness, profanity and immorality - and he embraced it. Soon John surpassed his peers in outrageous behavior. Sharp-witted and sarcastic, he wrote offensive songs mocking the ship's officers and expressing his contempt for their authority. He amused himself by inventing new swear words and leading his peers on reckless and dangerous escapades. He frequently deserted his post. Still in his teens, John was briefly enslaved on an African plantation and nearly died. But instead of sobering him, the experience only served to strengthen his rebellious spirit.

After Newton regained his freedom, he served time in the British Navy and eventually became captain of his own slave ship. As a slave trader, Newton's heart grew even harder. He earned a reputation for being a foul-mouthed, ill-tempered man, despised by his subordinates and superiors alike. He cared for no one but himself and sought nothing but his own pleasure.

Then one night John Newton hit rock bottom. He had been punished for misbehavior by being publicly humiliated, beaten, and stripped of his rank. His attempts to regain his position had failed. No one cared to take up his cause. Now caught in a fierce storm, he came face to face with a gripping fear of death. As the waves pounded the ship and filled his cabin with water, terror filled Newton's heart. He fought desperately to save the ship, bailing water and plugging holes in the hull with the ship,s sails, burlap bags, even his own clothing. As an experienced sailor, John knew he had little chance of survival. And he was not ready to face eternity.

Memories of his childhood came flooding back - the Bible verses and hymns his God-fearing mother had taught him, her prayers on his behalf. John tried to cry out to God for mercy, but he was stopped abruptly by the thought of how little he deserved it. How could he turn to God for help when he had ignored Him for so long? John spent a harrowing night in deep soul-searching.

The following day, the storm subsided. Miraculously, the battered ship found safe harbor. It was then, Newton said, that he became convinced that "there is a God that hears and answers prayers." He discovered anew the love of God expressed in Scripture: "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through Him might be saved" (John 3:16-17).

In the midst of the storm, Newton's eyes had been opened. He realized that he was a sinner in need of a Savior. For the first time, he understood the meaning of God's grace. Repenting of the sins of his past, he surrendered his life to God completely. In an instant, he became a new man.

Years later, as he reflected on his experience, Newton penned the words:

Amazing grace how sweet the sound, that saved a wretch like me!
I once was lost but now am found,
was blind but now I see.
'Twas grace that taught my heart to fear, and grace my fears relieved;
how precious did that grace appear the hour I first believed.
Through many dangers, toils and snares,
I have ready come;
'tis grace hath brought me safe thus far,
and grace will lead me home.

At the age of 39, the former slave trader became a pastor. He dedicated the rest of his life to sharing with others the good news that Jesus Christ had come "to save that which was lost" (Luke 10:19). Newton influenced the abolitionist in Great Britain, exposing the evils of slavery and fighting to outlaw the vile trade had once engaged in. In his epitaph, he summed up his life this way:

John Newton, Clerk
Once an infidel and libertine, a servant of slaves in Africa, was by the rich mercy of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, preserved, restored, pardoned, And appointed to preach the faith he had long laboured to destroy!

Like Newton, you, too can experience God's amazing grace - no matter who you are or how much you have sinned. You can begin your own life-changing relationship with Jesus Christ. You might pray something like this:

"Dear Lord Jesus, I realize that I am lost in my sins and blind to your truth. I know now that You sent Your Son to die on the cross and rise again for me - to pay the penalty for my sin. Please forgive me. Come into my life and save me from sin and Hell by your grace. In Jesus' name, Amen."

If you sincerely prayed this prayer, please contact us so we can send you some helpful literature.
